12 ATTACKS ON CORREGIDOR!

NEHRU PLEDGES INDIA WILL NOT GIVE IN TO JAPS

Won't Hamper Allies, Says Leader.

BY SAM BREWER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

NEW DELHI, India, April 12.—Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru of the all-India congress party today pledged himself, and called on all Indians to do likewise, to avoid any action that could hinder British or American war effort. Publicly he announced that he was opposed to the refusal of Mohandas K. Gandhi to consider the scorched earth policy for India if the country is invaded.

Jawaharlal Nehru.

In a two and one-half hour press conference the Nationalist leader spared no pains to make clear the fact that he placed victory over the axis above any other consideration.

"Issues before the country are so grave," he said, "that no responsible man can speak lightly of them or be bitter about present events."

Assails Gandhi's "Slavery."

He concluded a long earnest plea for a reasonable attitude with the pledge:

"Whatever may happen, we are not going to embarrass the British war effort or the efforts of our American friends who may come here."

He warned vehemently against accepting Gandhi's nonviolence stand, that one master is as good as another.

"It is a slave's argument, and a slave's way of thinking," said Nehru.

An Indian journalist leaped to his feet demanding:

"What should be the attitude if a popular leader like Subhas Chandra Bose [who is reported in the hands of the axis] came to India with the Japanese armies?"

"Jap Victory a Tragedy."

"Talk of Japan liberating India is, to put it plainly, bunkum," Nehru said. "Any such force that comes to India comes under Japanese control, and to suppose they treat you fairly is a mistaken notion. It would be a tragedy for the world if the Germans and Japanese won the war.

"Today India is the crux of the war. The only other really important theater is the Russian. Very little else counts at present.

"Much, of course, will depend on the Russo-German war in the next two or three months, but apart from that, India is going to be the crux of the war for the next two or three months. It will make a difference to the length of the war and the intensity of the war.

"Because of that, every country in the world realizes this, except, of course, the big people in New Delhi and Whitehall [London]—they are slow in understanding and comprehension—therefore you have these frantic radio appeals from Germany and Japan."

Would Burn and Destroy.

Discussing the scorched earth policy, the Hindu leader said:

"I do not doubt that if I were the national government I would burn and destroy everything that would help the enemy, not caring whose private property it was.

"But I am afraid the British government, as constituted today, if it

U.S. Army Tent Cities Spring Up in Australia

BY E. R. NODERER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

UNITED STATES ARMY HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, April 12.—All over Australia tent cities are springing up overnight in fields which never have known anything but flocks of quietly browsing sheep. Into them are moving American boys in uniform.

A rolling plain becomes a canvas town in a matter of hours when swarms of surveyors, road builders, plumbers, and electricians descend upon it. Sometimes the camps are erected by the American troops; sometimes the Australians have them ready when the Americans arrive.

Camps Ready in 9 Hours.

I watched one of these cities being erected for American troops who are to move in from temporary billets. Within an hour the site was surveyed and the streets laid out. In four hours the tents were up.

Two hours later a permanent water system had been installed and in another two hours each of the tents had electric lights, a complete drainage and sanitation system, and was linked with the outside world by telephone and radio. Next morning an army moved in and got a hot meal.

In some camps troops live in galvanized huts; but most of them are in tents. They say the double walled tent equipped with a charcoal stove is warmer than a hut.

6 to 7 Men in a Tent.

Six to seven men live in a tent, usually on cots with straw ticks.

The country resembles hilly sections of the middle western United States, with long sweeps of prairie between rises. Timber in camp areas has been removed, with only an occasional eucalyptus tree providing shade.

The grass is short and dry and the fields are soon trodden into dust by the tramp of thousands of feet.

Most of the American soldiers are pleased to be ashore again after transport crossings of the Pacific.

Chicagoans Like Country.

Sgt. Eugene Beesley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph H. Beesley, of 5746 Newark avenue, Chicago, said:

"I certainly am glad to be back on solid ground again."

Paul Kocian of 5435 West Twenty-third street, Cicero, said he had felt that if he was to fight overseas, Australia was a good place to do it.

"This is just like America," he added.

In the early stages of camp life, the boys line up to draw rations from the cook tent, and either eat in their own tents or stand at high tables in special dining tents. As soon as possible, however, a galvanized iron mess hall is erected, where the food can be eaten in a little more comfort.

Get Baseball Equipment.

The focus of camp life is usually in the Young Men's Christian association, Salvation Army huts or tents. In the Y. M. C. A. tents the boys find games, magazines, books, and writing facilities. Shipments of baseball and football equipment have arrived, and most camps are near enough to towns to enable the troops to go to movies, dances, and entertainments.

In Salvation Army huts, they can make use of ironing boards and sewing materials, and can obtain coffee, cake, and many other things which ease the monotony of camp life. There was praise for the Salvation Army workers.

"Wherever we go, they seem to be there a day ahead of us," said Eugene Apida, 2341 South Sacramento avenue, Chicago. "Darned if I know how they do it."

Australians frequently comment on the neatness and cleanliness of the troops.

WINCHELL SLURS ARMY OFFICER, DRAWS REBUKE

Baltimore, Md., April 12 [Special].—A spokesman for the military intelligence branch of the army tonight took a figurative poke at Walter Winchell, the navy's night club lieutenant commander, after Winchell had broadcast slurs upon an officer in the army.

The army spokesman here called Winchell's broadcast "detrimental to the armed forces of the United States" and added: "Further publicity on this matter is contrary to the military interests."

In Washington, the office of censorship said it would make no comment, but an officer in the public relations department was less reticent. He closed the discussion by saying "Winchell isn't an expert on anything."

BIG GUNS POUND ALL DAY LONG AT ISLAND FORT

Damage Slight and Casualties Few.

Washington, D. C., April 12 (AP).—The gunners of besieged Corregidor today battled recurring waves of Japanese bombers and enemy artillery batteries firing onto the island fortress from two sides.

The report from Corregidor said the Japanese came over the island 12 times in 24 hours and concentrated on the center of the island.

Anti-aircraft fire from the fortress kept the enemy planes at such high altitude, a war department communique said, that the damage inflicted by the bombers was "slight and only a few casualties were sustained by our troops."

The fortifications at the mouth of Manila bay were fired upon by Japanese artillery located both on Bataan peninsula and on the shore of Cavite province. Japanese radio reports asserted heavy guns had been rolled into position on the southern tip of Bataan.

Guns Two Miles Away.

At the closest point, Corregidor is only a little more than two miles distant from the peninsula—close range for artillery. Occupation of Bataan gave the foe possession of the slopes of Mount Bataan, more than 4,200 feet high, and nearby Mount Mariveles, a peak of about 3,900 feet.

Previous war department reports indicated that the Japanese had been using, both in Bataan and in Cavite province, guns and howitzers of 155 and 240 millimeter caliber, approximately six and nine inch bores. These weapons have a range of 10 miles or more, the 155 millimeter hurling a shell of nearly 100 pounds and the other gun a missile several times as large.

Firing at almost point blank ranges from Bataan, the newly emplaced Japanese batteries multiplied the peril to Corregidor. Fire from the south shore—about eight miles away—has not been particularly accurate, war department reports have indicated.

No Word from Cebu.

There was no new word in the department's communique concerning the fighting in Cebu, in the southern Philippines, where the Japanese landed at several points yesterday.

The army communique, however, did say that "the enemy cruiser sunk a few days ago [by a United States motor torpedo boat] is reported to have been of the Waskuma class." Naval records do not list a "Waskuma" class among Japanese cruisers. In naval circles, it was suggested that the ship possibly was the Yasukani, an 11,939 ton converted auxiliary.

Another possibility appeared to be that it was a ship of the Kuma class, of which five cruisers, the Kuma, the Oi, the Tama, the Kitakami, and the Kiso, were built in 1919-'20. They are armed with seven 5.5 inch guns, two 3 inch guns, and eight torpedo tubes. The normal complement of this type of ship is 439 officers and men.

Six Islands Invaded.

The Japanese have now invaded at least six of the major islands of the Philippines. Aside from Luzon, the principal island, the foe has partially occupied Masbate and Mindoro, im-

Fiancee of Evanston Doctor, 13 Days in Lifeboat, Saved

(Picture on back page.)

An Evanston physician, whose bride-to-be was on a ship that was torpedoed and sunk in the Atlantic on March 29 while she was en route from her home in South Africa to marry him, learned the dramatic news last night that she had landed safely after 13 days in an open lifeboat. Ten other survivors, including another woman and a 3 year old girl, were brought ashore with her by a navy ship at Lewes, Del.

126

[In addition to the announcement of the landing of these survivors, the Navy Department yesterday reported the sinking of two more ships by submarines off the Atlantic coast. The sinkings brought the total since Pearl Harbor to 126, with 841 persons killed, 1,082 missing and 3,113 rescued.]

The physician, who was informed of the latest Atlantic tragedy, is Dr. Henry R. Jacobs, 40 years old, of 536 Michigan avenue, Evanston. His bride-to-be is Miss Blythe Clark, 37, of Pretoria, Transvaal, Union of South Africa.

Indescribable Agony.

Dr. R. C. Beebe of the Beebe hospital at Lewes told THE TRIBUNE that Miss Clark was sleeping last night and that she would recover, altho she suffered almost indescribable agony during the long days the open boat was tossed on the Atlantic. Water rations were an ounce and a half a day and the same quantity each night. The survivors had only four crackers to eat each 24 hours.

Miss Clark is a sister of John Clark of 515 Rush street, a commercial artist.

She and Dr. Jacobs met last year when he was in South Africa studying yellow fever for the Rockefeller Foundation. Upon his return, he established a practice in Evanston and proposed. She accepted, and started for the United States for the wedding.

Child's Mother Died in Boat.

The eleven survivors were brought ashore Saturday night, but the announcement was withheld until last night.

The child among the survivors is Miriam Etter, who was born in Johannesburg, South Africa. Her mother, Mrs. Sora Etter, and John McInnis of Duluth, Minn., a navy seaman who was a member of the torpedoed ship's gun crew, died of exposure an hour before a navy patrol plane sighted the lifeboat Saturday morning. Mrs. Etter and her daughter were en route to the home of the baby's grandfather, Rabbi M. Etter of Harrisburg, Pa.

The belongings of Miss Aletta Jacobsz of Johannesburg, South Africa, were found in the lifeboat. They included a telegram signed by Sue Adams of Chicago. Miss Jacobsz is believed to have perished along with a Jugo-Slav general, Milo Djukanovic, whose personal effects also were in the boat.

The survivors landed at Lewes in addition to Miss Clark and the Etter child, are:

Robert Milton Peck, 39, Long Island, N. Y.
Norman Lee, 28, Beacon, N. Y., first assistant engineer.
Ralph Edmunds Clark, 32, Cambridge, Mass.
Joseph Waxler, 25, New York City.
James B. Jensen, 24, New York.
Duncan MacNicol, 45, New York, first officer of the torpedoed boat.
Lawrence Lewis Frank, 25, Brooklyn, N. Y.
William Jefford, 24, Philadelphia, Pa.
Miss Anna Zurcher, no address known.

The torpedoed ship was an American freighter and passenger carrier of medium size. Eighty-nine survivors were landed at Norfolk, Va., on April 1, after being picked up by rescue ships. Among them was a mother who had given birth to a baby boy in a crowded lifeboat.

FLAGS AND SEALS OF THE AMERICAS

In observance of Pan-American day, The Tribune will present tomorrow in all its editions a full page of national flags and official seals of the 21 American republics. On this page, dedicated to a closer coöperation among the nations of the new world, all flags and seals will be reproduced in their correct colors.

NORSE SHIP SUNK

Norfolk, Va., April 12.—One seaman was lost and one was injured Tuesday morning when a torpedo launched by an unseen submarine sank a medium size Norwegian merchant ship off the Atlantic coast, the navy announced today.

Forty-nine of the 50 man crew were landed here Wednesday.

Survivors reported the vessel sank within an hour after they put off in three lifeboats. Two lifeboats were smashed by the explosion.

21 LAND AT LISBON

LISBON, Portugal, April 12 (AP).—The Spanish tanker Gobeo today landed 21 survivors from the Norwegian tanker Pederbogen, reported sunk March 23 in the Caribbean by two torpedoes from a German submarine.

The crew of 53 took to two lifeboats and 21 survivors, including Capt. W. Dawson, in one lifeboat were picked up by the Gobeo four days after the sinking.

2 NAVY BOMBERS CRASH; 14 KILLED

Planes Fall a Few Miles Apart in California.

Livermore, Cal., April 12 (AP).—Two huge navy amphibian patrol bombers crashed in quick succession today in the cattle grazing country south of Livermore, killing 14 navy flyers and injuring a 15th. The lone survivor was Earl P. Patrick, aviation machinist's mate, first class.

One plane burst into flames when it struck the earth. There was no immediate explanation of the cause of the crashes.

List of the Dead.

The 12th naval district headquarters in San Francisco, 40 miles from here, released this list of dead:

Plane No. 1—Lieut. Frank S. Fernald, Lieut. Edward F. Denney, James

Plane of the Catalina patrol bomber type.

Plane No. 2—Lieut. Com. Loren A. Morris, Charles J. Herriott, radioman, 1st class; Algie Belcher, aviation machisists' mate, 2d class; Robert W. Hastings, aviation chief radioman; Benjamin F. Johnson, aviation radioman, 3d class.

Pending notification of the next of kin, the navy withheld the names of two of the dead, one man from each plane.

Report of Mid-Air Collision.

Aviation machinists' mate Patrick was in the crew of plane No. 2, which crashed seven miles southeast of Livermore. It struck 20 feet below the top of a hill. Patrick was flung clear. The wreckage blazed furiously. Plane No. 1 came down on a cattle ranch 10 miles southwest of Livermore.

The planes were of the PBY-5A type, commonly called Catalinas.

Naval sources would not confirm a report the crashes were caused by a mid-air collision, and indicated no full explanation would be available until a board of inquiry had completed its work.

HERE'S DIGEST OF DEVELOPMENTS ON ALL FRONTS

Latest war developments:

Far ranging allied bombers damaged a large ship in the harbor at Rabaul, New Britain, in the course of raids covering a 2,400 mile arc around Australia, it was announced in Melbourne. An earlier dispatch from a southwest Pacific air base told of a direct hit by allied aircraft on a Jap aircraft carrier near Rabaul. The Melbourne report said allied planes damaged 28 Jap aircraft and set numerous fires on ships and airports.

In Burma, Chinese forces, aided by Yankee Flying Tigers, were reported in a New Delhi communique to be holding their positions along the Sittang river. The Japs were reported advancing on a wide front upon the British lines south of Magwe.

Raid Corregidor 12 Times.

In the Philippines, Fort Mills on Corregidor Island was raided 12 times in 24 hours by Jap bombers, while the enemy's artillery poured shells on the fortress from new positions on Bataan peninsula and from Cavite.

Some of the heaviest air fighting since the big battles of Britain in September, 1940, took place over the English channel when an RAF bombing force attacked the rail yards at Hazebrouck in northern France, said a British communique. The flyers encountered a large squadron of German planes, and in the ensuing battle one British bomber and 13 fighter planes were lost.

Reds Flood Out Nazis.

Kuibyshev dispatches told how the Russian army changed the course of a swollen stream by digging trenches thru which the water poured and flooded the Germans out of a strongly fortified village. The Reds recaptured a town occupied briefly by the Nazis in the Bryansk sector.

Burglar Trap Snaps Shut on 6th Robbery

Samuel Messina set a burglar trap yesterday.

His first floor apartment at 239 West 24th street has been looted by burglars five times since last June. Each time the burglary occurred a short time after the family had gone out. Messina, a trucking contractor, decided that the burglar was some one living in the neighborhood who watched the family's movements.

Messina remained home all day yesterday. Late in the afternoon he sent his wife and children out for a walk.

Bait Put in Closet.

Messina, who is 33 years old, marked five $1 bills and a $5 bill and put them in the pocket of a coat hanging in a closet. Then he hid behind an overstuffed chair.

Presently there was a noise at the back door. The window was pried out with an ax. There was no sound for a moment. Then Messina heard some one walking thru the house.

The intruder walked straight to the closet. Darkness was beginning to fall, so that Messina could not recognize him.

"Put 'em up!" commanded Messina, leaping from behind the chair with his gun drawn.

He told Pekin Inn police that the intruder replied:

"O, no you don't. I'll give it to you!"

Fires on Intruder.

Thinking the intruder meant to shoot him, Messina told police, he opened fire. The first bullet missed. The second went thru the intruder's temple, inflicting a wound from which he died last night at the Bridewell hospital.

Police said they found the marked money in the dead man's pocket.

He was Lawrence Ferraro Jr., 19, a resident of the building and the son of Messina's landlord.

GREEN, BROOKS JOIN IN APPEAL TO ALL TO VOTE

Patriotism Stressed in Addresses.

BY PARKE BROWN.
(Picture on page 3.)

Republican headliners yesterday appealed to all voters to go to the polls in the Illinois state and county primaries tomorrow. Democratic candidates led by aspirants to the United States senatorship continued their bitter battling, speaking at ward meetings and on the air.

[A review of developments in the Democratic campaign and a Washington survey of the Illinois situation by Arthur Sears Henning appear on page 3.]

A Republican tone of patriotism and Americanism was pitched by Sen. Wayland Brooks, candidate for renomination, at two traditional final Sunday meetings of Negro voters. Silent as to his own candidacy, he stressed voting as a sacred duty and renewed his protest against intolerance and discrimination.

Vote, Gov. Green Urges.

An appeal for a large vote also was made in an afternoon talk over W-G-N by Gov. Dwight H. Green, who also was silent on the subject of candidates and parties.

"The indifference of the public to primary elections is responsible in a large degree for the success of machine politics," he said. "As long as voters refuse to exercise their sacred right of choosing the candidates to represent their will, just that long will cities and communities be preyed upon by machine dictators.

"Today, more than ever before in the history of our country, it is the patriotic duty of every citizen to go to the polls and express himself on a ballot.

"It is a sacred privilege in a land where the ideals and hopes of freedom still prevail. It is a privilege that we must cherish and preserve because upon it depends the endurance of the rights bestowed upon us by the American way of life."

Back Brooks, Barrett's Plea.

The same note was sounded by Attorney General George F. Barrett at the same 5th ward meeting addressed by Brooks, but the attorney general, who spoke before Brooks arrived, warmly urged support of the senator.

Barrett told the audience that while Sen. Brooks, like other "truly great Americans," has his critics, they are in other states.

"Sen. Brooks was not elected from those states," he said. "He was elected by the people of Illinois and I believe you will agree that the people of the great state of Lincoln care little about the criticism heaped on the Illinois senator's head by men elected to serve other interests."

That meeting and one sponsored by Committeeman William E. King of the 2d ward and the Chicago Business Men's committee, were the only large Republican gatherings as the campaign reached its end. There was no activity in behalf of State Treasurer Warren E. Wright, Brooks' opponent, by whatever forces he may have in Chicago.

Voice Primary Warning.

Thus organization activity was almost at a standstill except that workers, wherever they went, were carrying the county central committee's warning that if the voter, free to choose now, elects to go into the primary of one party tomorrow he cannot vote in the primary of any other party in the selection of mayoral nominees next February.

Sen. Brooks was the guest of honor at a smorgasbord party at the Swedish club at noon, left there for his own office where, following his practice for years, he wrote in longhand his speech for the day and then went to the meetings where he delivered it.

"The war effort immediately ahead of the United States," he said, "will tax the entire resources of our country—our man power, our production and financial strength, as our naval and military units are ordered to the distant battle fronts of the world.

Asserts All Must Sacrifice.

"This service and sacrifice will reach into every American home. The purpose of this all out endeavor has been said to be to guarantee the four freedoms of all people, everywhere in the world. As we accept this challenge and devote ourselves to that cause we should remember that only under our system of government have these four freedoms been given their greatest expression."

FIRST COMPLETE STORY OF NAVAL BATTLE OF JAVA

Five Allied Warships Never Heard From.

BATTLE MAPS.
Turn to the back page for two maps detailing the naval action in the battle of Java.

BY E. R. NODERER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MELBOURNE, Australia, April 12.—The sound of heavy gunfire off the north coast of Java late in the afternoon of Feb. 27 signaled the beginning of the biggest naval battle since Jutland in World war I, which cost the combined United States, British, Australian, and Dutch fleets 13 warships they could ill afford to lose.

Vice Adm. C. E. L. Helfrich.

The allies had sent a boy out to do a man's job, but the allied fleet had been ordered to inflict as much damage as possible on two Japanese invasion fleets heading for Java.

Some criticism has since been voiced of the strategy of throwing an inferior force against overpowering odds, but Dutch Vice Adm. C. E. L. Helfrich, allied commander in chief, believed the way to fight a war is to fight it, and his order was to attack.

Report Japs Lost Seven Ships.

From the moment the battle began the allied vessels never ceased attempting to contact the enemy regardless of odds. The Japanese losses are not definitely known, but they have been reported as one eight inch gun cruiser sunk, two set on fire and probably sunk, one destroyer sunk and three burning and believed sinking.

Aerial reconnaissance reported one Japanese invasion fleet heading for Java thru the Banka strait between the island of Banka and Sumatra, and a second thru the Macassar strait between Borneo and Celebes.

A number of Japanese naval units detached themselves from the Banka strait fleet and made for the allied fleet, which was halfway between Surabaya, the Java naval base, and Bawean island 100 miles to the north.

Allied Fleet Listed.

The allied fleet, under the flag of Dutch Rear Adm. De Oorman consisted of the flagship, the 6,800 ton Dutch cruiser De Ruyter, the heavy British cruiser Exeter, which figured in the River Plate battle with the Graf Spee, with principal armament of six 8-inch guns; the United States cruiser Houston, carrying nine 8-inchers and four 5-inch anti-aircraft guns, plus the light Australian cruiser Perth with eight 6-inch guns and the Dutch cruiser Java armed with 10 5.9-inchers. The squadron was completed by the British destroyers Stronghold, Electra, Encounter, and Jupiter, the Dutch destroyers Kortenaer and Evertsen, the Australian sloop Yarra and an Australian minesweeper.

Altho strategy was in the hands of Adm. Helfrich, tactical movements were directed by Adm. De Oorman.

Just after 4 p. m. Feb. 27 this fleet contacted a Japanese force consisting of two 10,000 ton cruisers of the Nati class, which were slightly faster and more heavily armed than the Houston.

Had More Destroyers.

There were also a number of other Japanese cruisers and two destroyer flotillas—13 ships in all. The two heavy cruisers had a total of 20 eight-inch guns against the allies' 15, more speed, and an advantage in the number of destroyers.

Heavy firing developed at a range of 14 miles and both sides launched destroyer attacks. One enemy destroyer flotilla was driven off by the fire of allied cruisers, a destroyer being hit by shells of the Exeter.

The second Japanese flotilla then launched a torpedo attack, and in attempting to avoid a torpedo the Exeter was hit in the boiler room by an eight-inch shell, reducing her speed and forcing her out of line. Only one enemy torpedo in this attack scored. It hit the Dutch destroyer Kortenaer, which sank.

Fifteen minutes later, at 5:30 p. m., the British destroyers Electra, Encounter, and Jupiter launched a counterattack against heavy odds, but the Japs retired behind a smoke-screen.

The Jupiter engaged two enemy destroyers after penetrating the smoke, and as the Electra emerged into the clear she sighted three heavy enemy destroyers on an opposite course 6,000 yards distant. The Electra engaged the enemy, scoring hits with four salvos on the leading ship.

Electra Is Abandoned.

Shortly thereafter an enemy shell crashed into the boiler room on the Electra's port side. The vessel, enveloped in steam, took a sharp list to port. Despite the damage, the Electra loosed a number of additional salvos, causing a heavy fire to break out forward on an enemy destroyer which, however, continued to close in, coming so close it opened up with pompoms. The Electra's crew was forced to abandon the ship, which shortly sank.

With the Exeter unable to keep up with the action, the allies were completely outgunned in heavy batteries. However, the squadron pressed on and contacted the enemy at shorter range as it drew clear of the smoke screen.

The enemy sheered off to the northeast toward the Macassar strait, leaving the allied fleet against the sunset. The Japs laid down a new smoke-screen, but it was observed that an eight-inch gun cruiser was burning fiercely. In the fading light Adm. De Oorman lost touch with the enemy fleet.

Explosion Sinks Jupiter.

After nightfall the allied cruisers sighted four enemy ships to the west and engaged them with a burst of fire, but it was too dark to see the result.

De Oorman then tried to work around these vessels in an attempt to find the convoy he believed to be to the north, but this was found to be impossible owing to the higher speed of the enemy. The admiral turned his force southward, planning a sweep along the coast of Java in the hope of intercepting Japanese invasion convoys.

Half an hour after the squadron began patroling the coast the destroyer Jupiter was disabled "by an underwater explosion." She sank four hours later, not far from the mainland.

Two Jap Cruisers Sighted.

At 11:30 p. m., when the allied cruisers were about 12 miles north of Rembang, where Japanese troops were making a landing, two enemy cruisers were sighted between the allied ships and the coast. Both sides opened fire, the De Ruyter being hit by a shell. From a subsequent change of course it was deduced she was being subjected to a torpedo attack by a submarine. As the other cruisers changed courses correspondingly there were simultaneous explosions in the De Ruyter and the Java. Both cruisers blew up and sank.

There are several theories about these explosions. One is that submarines fired torpedoes, another that they came from enemy destroyers, but some observers believe the allied fleet ran into a Dutch minefield. In any case the allied fleet had been dispersed, which ended the action of Feb. 27. Other allied fleet losses occurred on subsequent days as enemy ships pressed home the attack on Java.

Make a Run for It.

The American cruiser Houston and the Australian cruiser Perth, which had been damaged, reached Tandjong Priok, the harbor of Batavia, at 7 a. m. Feb. 28. After dark that night they left the harbor in an attempt to make a run thru the narrow Sunda strait into the Indian ocean. They were completely outnumbered. All day Japanese planes had filled the sky, and there were reports that enemy capital ships had been present behind the advanced cruiser squadrons.

Already the harbor had been devastatingly bombed. Japanese troops were at the southern end of Sumatra which reaches to within 20 miles of Java off St. Nicholas point at the narrowest part of Sunda strait, and part of the invasion fleet which had come thru Banka strait had been making for Bantam province, at the extreme west end of Java.

The Perth and Houston faced two choices. One was to remain in Tandjong Priok, scuttling the ships or surrendering when the Japs arrived. The other was to make a run for it against 1,000 to 1 odds. The commanders of both vessels chose to run for it.

Four Vessels Vanish.

At 11:30 p. m. a radio message from the Perth indicated that it had been attacked by a force of Japanese ships off St. Nicholas point. Nothing has been heard from it since.

Meanwhile at the eastern end of Java the cruiser Exeter, which limped into Surabaya with her boiler room a tangled mass of wreckage, made a determined bid to escape. Accompanied by the British destroyer Encounter and the American destroyer John D. Pope, she departed from the once great Dutch naval base at half speed in an attempt to penetrate the Bali strait into the Indian ocean.

On the morning of Sunday, March 1, she reported three Japanese cruisers bearing down on her. That was the last that was ever heard of the Exeter, Encounter, and Pope.

The Dutch destroyer Evertsen, which attempted to escape thru Sunda strait, encountered two enemy cruisers and, after being heavily damaged, was beached by her commander on the Indian ocean end of the strait along the Java coast.

Destroyer's Fate Mystery.

The fate of the British destroyer Stronghold is a mystery, but she was believed to have been sunk south of Bali in the Indian ocean.

The 1,060 ton Australian sloop Yarra was sunk off the southern Java port of Tjilatjap while convoying a minesweeper and two merchantmen. In this attack, which has been described as "target practice," the entire convoy was sunk.

At 6:40 a. m. March 4 three eight-inch gun cruisers and two destroyers bore down on the convoy while the Yarra tried to lay down a smoke-screen to shield it. The minesweeper and merchant ships opened fire, their crews remaining at battle stations until both vessels were destroyed.

Passenger Vessel Sunk.

One of the merchant ships, a tanker, blew up, while the other, a passenger vessel, sank under gunfire, as did the minesweeper.

The Yarra was both bombed and shelled, one of the cruisers coming in close enough to use its pompoms.

A cruiser which opened fire on the minesweeper from 1,800 yards had difficulty in getting the range, but after a number of rounds it hit the bridge.

With the allied fleet destroyed, Japanese invasion forces landed without difficulty. In addition to landings at Bantam and the Bay of Indromajin, 120 miles east of Batavia, a third force landed 20 miles east of Rembang along a wide front. The conquest of Java in seven days followed.

MR. AND MRS. LOUIS KING.

Los Angeles, Cal., April 12 [Special].—With two bitterly worded divorce complaints on file, one against the other, the contestants still are living together in a Beverly Hills mansion. That unusual situation was noted in Domestic Relations court records when Patricia King, petite blonde film actress, appeared before Superior Judge William S. Baird seeking temporary alimony and a restraining order against Louis King, motion picture director. Directing King to pay all bills in connection with the upkeep of the couple's 12 room home, Judge Baird also ordered him to pay Mrs. King $45 a week.

HOLDUP VICTIMS FAIL TO IDENTIFY FIVE AS ROBBERS

Five Evanston men who were arrested in Glencoe Saturday night when police found in their car three revolvers, two black masks, and a fire ax, were released yesterday after several recent holdup victims failed to identify them.

They will appear tonight before Police Magistrate Ben F. Meyer of Evanston on disorderly conduct charges. They are Robert Schuth, 16 years old, 2617 Thayer avenue; Robert D. O'Brien, 18, 707 Oakton street; Richard G. Schumaker, 17, 621 Oakton street; Murray Yule, 17, 802 Washington street, and Walter Caple, 18, 101 Clyde avenue. The last three are third year students of Evanston Township High school.

They were arrested in a stalled car by Glencoe police at Green Bay road and the forest preserve. They told police they carried the weapons and the masks "just for fun." Police said that O'Brien and Yule had previous records of malicious mischief. They were released on $200 bonds each and the others posted $100 bonds each.

BROOKS BATTLE PROVIDES TEST OF WITCH HUNT

Senator's Victory Would Jolt F. D. R. Policy.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 12.—The national spotlight will be turned Tuesday upon Illinois where, in the first of the congressional primaries, the Roosevelt administration is endeavoring to compass the defeat of Sen. Wayland Brooks [R., Ill.], prewar noninterventionist, for renomination.

None will be awaiting the returns from the Illinois primary more eagerly than the politicians of the national capital, for the outcome of the battle between Brooks and the administration is going to show which way the political wind is blowing as the country heads into the first general election of the war.

Test of New Campaign.

If the administration succeeds in defeating Brooks it will have reason to hail the result as a popular indorsement of its recently launched campaign to unseat prewar noninterventionist members of congress as disloyalists, regardless of their zealous support of war measures since the country was attacked.

Defeat of the senator would be a smashing success for the administration witch hunt at its very beginning, for Brooks, the oft wounded and repeatedly decorated veteran of the World war, has been out ahead of the administration in promotion of victory measures since the Japs struck at Pearl Harbor, and he represents a constituency that was overwhelmingly noninterventionist before the nation was plunged into the war.

Implications Far Reaching.

On the other hand, if Brooks wins renomination the administration witch hunt will sustain a devastating popular repudiation at the outset of the congressional election canvass, the implications of which will be regarded by the politicians as far reaching and significant.

The conclusion generally drawn would be that the electorate is going to judge its servants on their records and qualifications for framing measures that will win this war in the shortest time at the least cost of life and money, and is not interested in punishing any one for opposing the Roosevelt war policies before the war.

The administration has been fighting Brooks with increasing ferocity thruout the primary campaign. Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox has been the directing genius of the anti-Brooks fight. He put Warren E. Wright, Illinois state treasurer, into the race as the candidate he deemed likeliest to beat the senator.

Blasted by Mouthpieces.

The three administration organs in Chicago have deluged Brooks with denunciation for his prewar noninterventionist stand, impugning his patriotism, dubbing him an "appeasolationist," accusing him of aiding and abetting the enemy, and belittling his constructive efforts to bring about a more efficient conduct of the war.

The President has taken no hand openly in the fight on Brooks. In fact, his only public utterance bearing on the congressional election could not justly be construed as unfavorable to Brooks. Mr. Roosevelt said that in time of war we have need of officials who have a record of supporting the government. Brooks, of course, has a 100 per cent record of supporting the government.

Mr. Roosevelt, however, has not restrained his political department from going after Brooks' scalp because the senator opposed the Roosevelt war program in time of peace.

Air Program Belittled.

The administration organs even went so far as to belittle Sen. Brooks' proposals of preliminary high school training of warplane pilots in order that the nation may obtain most expeditiously the 400,000 flyers and 2 million ground service men required by the President's warplane program. One of these organs said that Brooks next would be trying to put grammar school boys in tanks.

The imperfectly informed administration organs, however, found the ground taken out from under them by the administration itself, which in an announcement by John W. Studebaker, commissioner of education, embraced the Brooks program last Thursday. A further sweeping indorsement of the project came today from Robert H. Hinckley, assistant secretary of commerce for air.

"Because we started late," said Hinckley, "we had to begin our training courses at the college level. But that was to start the 'wrong end to.' Instruction in the rudiments of aviation should begin in the elementary and secondary schools.

"All children, even the youngest, are interested in planes and what makes them go. More than three million youngsters are now building and flying model airplanes, largely out of school.

Value to Other Courses Told.

"We feel that this interest should be channeled into the school to give interesting contest to all kinds of courses—to arithmetic, to algebra, and geometry, to physics and manual training courses, to geography, history, economics, biology, chemistry, drawing, and almost any subject you can name.

"To be air minded is not enough. Something more is needed if the United States is to be a nation on wings, which it is surely going to be. This and succeeding generations must become what I call 'air conditioned.'

"When I say 'air conditioned,' I mean that we must become conditioned to the air and the machines of the air in just the same way we are conditioned to the ground and the machines of the ground. It implies knowledge from the use of our hands, our legs, our eyes, and ears, our whole body, and not merely our minds and imagination."

DETECTIVES NAB BOMBER BURKE ON LOOP STREET

Richard Burke, notorious bomber for the shoe repairers' union, who served several prison sentences for terrorism, was seized yesterday by Detective Marshall Pidgeon of the bomb squad when he could not satisfactorily explain his presence in the loop. He was held for further investigation.

Burke was released from Joliet penitentiary March 1 after serving a sentence of three years and nine months in connection with the bombing in 1937 and 1938 of several department store shoe repairing departments. He was convicted with three others after police had traced a shipment of tear gas from Germany to Minneapolis and thence to Chicago and to Burke.

Evidence at the time showed that Burke and his associates had fixed time bombs which would explode and set off the tear gas after they left packages containing the infernal machines in the stores of intended victims.

Cecil J. Woods, president of Lincolnwood school district No. 74 for the last three years, was reelected Saturday for another three year term. The Lincolnwood board is planning a school building for the village this year if government permission to build can be obtained. Early reports from the Saturday school election credited the victory to Irene Bromley.

DEMOCRATS PUT IN BUSY DAY IN QUEST OF VOTES

Opposing Camps Range Far and Wide in City.

BY PERCY WOOD.

Opposing Democratic camps sent their standard bearers far and wide over the city yesterday in penultimate appeals to the voters for support at Tuesday's sizzling primary. The radio and sound trucks were utilized and a number of separate ward meetings were assembled so that Congressman Raymond S [Small Potatoes] McKeough, Nash-Kelly candidate for the senatorial nomination, and his independent opponent, Ald. Paul H. Douglas [5th], might be heard.

Douglas made a daring bid for victory last night by invading the stronghold of strongholds of the Nash-Kelly machine—the 24th ward on the west side, where it has not been unusual for organization candidates to poll 95 per cent of the Democratic vote. Paving the way with a sound truck and handbills, the alderman found a crowd of more than 700 waiting for him at Temple Judea, 1227 Independence boulevard.

Calls for Polls Watching.

"I had heard," he told this audience, "that the Kelly-Nash leaders predict I'll get 500 votes here, and the machine's candidate 25,000. But from polls and other forecasts it looks like I have a lead here. I hope all of you will go to the polls on Tuesday and watch to see that the votes are counted properly."

Douglas was cheered when he said that the Democratic ticket needed a candidate for senator who could get down state support in the fall, then declared, "The Kelly-Nash candidate can't get that support."

The crowd also cheered when Nathan H. Sugarman of the executive board of the Federation of Jewish Trade Unions declared that his organization yesterday had indorsed Douglas.

Appeal for Negro Vote.

Both senatorial candidates made separate appeals to negro voters on the south side, McKeough addressing a big meeting in the Savoy ballroom, 47th and South Park way, arranged by the regular organization, while Douglas spoke at a rally in the Wendell Phillips High school, staged by Ald. Earl B. Dickerson [2d], whom Douglas is supporting for the congressional nomination in the 1st district.

Neither candidate engaged in any last minute predictions over chances for victory yesterday, since that had been taken care of Saturday by their campaign managers—R. A. Nash for McKeough and Ald John S. Boyle [16th] for Douglas—each of whom forecast his man's nomination by around 300,000 votes. Nor did either candidate have anything to say about the other. Instead both talked about the war.

Nash, as chairman of the county central committee, made an especial plea for nomination of the organization candidates for congress—"so that the President will have a 100 per cent pro-Roosevelt delegation from Cook county."

Says War Belongs to All.

McKeough, broadcasting over station WMAQ before starting his rounds of ward meetings, declared that Americans had no choice "in such a perilous hour," but to "pledge ourselves in our every thought and action to the one goal of victory."

"Unless that is done," he continued, "we stand to go down in history as the generation of Americans who meanly lost 'the last best hope of earth.'

"Here is a war that will never be won by wishful thinking. Here is a war which cannot be left to the army, the navy, and the flying corps alone. This war belongs to you and to me and to every American who puts love of country before personal safety or personal ambition.

"It is a war in which all citizens—men and women alike—will be called upon to contribute every ounce of their physical strength and moral strength if we as a nation are to win out over the fanatical forces committed to our final destruction."

Supports Roosevelt Policy.

Douglas, as master of ceremonies at a radio round table over WMAQ earlier in the day, arranged for his benefit and that of his running mate, Frank J. McAdams, candidate for the nomination as congressman at large, said that he had recognized the intent of Hitler and the Japanese long before Pearl Harbor, which was why he had supported President Roosevelt's foreign policy.

"I will do everything I can to help the President win the war and the peace, and build up a system of law and order to protect our future safety," Douglas said. "At the same time I believe that my 25 years of experience as an economist and participant in public affairs helps me to be useful in working out ways to prevent a postwar depression, to preserve the social gains that have been made, and to bring about prosperity under an economic system based primarily upon free enterprise."

McAdams also participated in this broadcast, as did Ald. Dickerson, Mrs. George Bogert, past president of the Illinois League of Women Voters, and Dean Leon Green of Northwestern university's law school.

Debutante No. 1

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

MISS OONA O'NEILL.

New York, April 12 (AP).—A 16 year old girl who says she is not "lace curtain Irish" but definitely shanty Irish was voted "debutante No. 1" of the 1942 season today. She is Oona O'Neill, daughter of Eugene O'Neill, famed playwright. The setting was in the Stork club, where café society dropped in ballots for their choice of the "subdebutante . . . who best combines . . . beauty, leadership, intelligence, and popularity."

Oona has black hair, stands 5 feet 4 inches in high heels, weighs 125 pounds, doesn't smoke or drink, and dates only on week-ends.

Her father is convalescing in Danville, Cal., and she's a bit timid about letting him hear the latest news. "It doesn't seem logical that I'm a successor to glamor girls like Brenda Frazier," she said.

The two young ladies who placed second and third declined to comment.

ASH IS INDORSED IN SENATE RACE BY G. O. P. LEADER

Certain of Victory After Strawn's Approval.

A thumping indorsement of Harry Alexander Ash for the Republican state senate nomination in the near north side 29th district, and a rebuff of one of his opponents by Silas H. Strawn, prominent Republican and civic leader, was described yesterday. Ash declared the twin incidents have broken the backbone of opposition campaigns.

Ash's vigorous and ingenious drive included the mailing of a folder of indorsements by eminent citizens. One of these was by Mr. Strawn, a former national treasurer of the G. O. P., in the form of a telegram to the Legislative Voters league as follows:

Lists Many Qualifications.

"I have known Harry A. Ash for many years. He is a man of good character, widely experienced as a public servant, knows politics and politicians. I believe him well qualified to represent our district in the Illinois senate."

Ash later was in the office of the senior partner of Winston, Strawn and Shaw when a telephone call was received from Benjamin F. Odell, manager for William C. Boyden, one of the four other candidates.

"Did you indorse Ash?" the caller asked Strawn.

"I most certainly did," Strawn replied. "And I so told Patrick F. Buckley [one of Boyden's supporters] several months ago. I am wholeheartedly and unqualifiedly for Harry Ash for state senator.

Admires Eight Year Record.

"I have great admiration for the record he made during his eight years as first assistant attorney general of Illinois. I admire his strength of character. I sent a wire about Ash to the Legislative Voters league in response to their inquiry, and I authorized Mr. Ash to use my indorsement in any manner he saw fit."

Ash said he had received innumerable offers of support by women voters as a result of the personal plea in his behalf by Mrs. Clara Wermuth, mother of Capt. Arthur Wermuth, the "one-man army." Mrs. Wermuth telephoned Ash long distance from Philadelphia after the fall of Bataan.

Certain of His Election.

"Harry, how are things going for you?" the hero's mother asked. "My daughter [Talia] and I are hoping that we can call your baby boy 'The little senator,' because we're sure that you'll be elected Tuesday."

Ash interrupted to make an anxious inquiry as to the fate of Capt. Wermuth.

"I haven't heard a word," Mrs. Wermuth said, "but I'm not worried, knowing him as I do. He's in the hands of God and his country. He will never give up and if he goes down fighting that's the way I want it to be. I'll phone you as soon as I hear anything about him. And I want you to phone me here in Philadelphia on primary night to tell me the size of your victory."

SAVED FROM FIRE IN WHEEL CHAIR.

Mrs. Alfred Smith, 55 years old, 7422 Parnell avenue, was carried to safety in a wheel chair by firemen when fire broke out in a hallway next to her apartment on the second floor of the two story frame building yesterday.

CAPT. M'CORMICK WILL GO ON TRIAL IN GAMING PROBE

Charged with Neglect of Duty.

BY JAMES DOHERTY.

Charges of neglect of duty and inefficiency were preferred yesterday against Capt. Martin McCormick, former head of the morals division of the police department which was abolished last November after a grand jury said the policemen made sham raids and failed to suppress wide open gambling. McCormick, now in command at the Town Hall station, will be required to stand trial before the civil service commission, Commissioner Allman said.

Charges had been filed previously against three of McCormick's former subordinates, Sergt. Tom Lee, and Detectives Fred L. Trauth and James E. Kehoe, who were suspended. Lee's trial is scheduled for Thursday.

Allman Signs Charges.

Commissioner Allman signed the charges against McCormick after he had been assured they were approved as to form by the city's law department. The charges were made by Inspector Edwin L. Daly on evidence supplied by Assistant State's Attorney Richard Austin.

State's Attorney Courtney had directed that evidence given before several grand juries be turned over to Daly so that action could be taken against the policemen held responsible for failure to suppress gambling. Courtney said he favored a public hearing, such as would be afforded by the civil service, so that the public could be informed of what was said in the grand jury room.

"It is our conclusion that in Chicago and Cook county protected syndicated gambling has openly and flagrantly operated for a long time without any real interference from the police, whose duty it is to prevent this evil," said a report by the November grand jury after a statement that it had found shocking conditions had existed here.

Hit "Meaningless Arrests."

"Meaningless arrests of so-called small fry employés of large gambling houses, which do not stop the gambling operations, merely serve to give false color to a claim that police are functioning.

"The practice of arresting one or two unimportant persons or 'stooges' under fictitious names and then immediately releasing them on bail does not, even in a small way, tend to help in the suppression of gambling, but is merely a sham."

Courtney said he had given the policemen every opportunity of proving they had done their duty, or had tried to do so. He said each of the four was questioned several times and their statements were in conflict with the testimony of others or with department records.

Prosecutor Offers Help.

It is not the function of the state's attorney to act as the prosecutor at trials of policemen before the civil service commission, but Courtney's office is said to have offered Allman any help he needs. The prosecutor and the grand jury will be watching the police trials, it was said.

The city civil service commission is comprised of three members with Joseph B. Geary, democratic committeeman of the 4th ward, serving as president. William P. Ronan, a flour manufacturer, and member of the Board of Trade, is the other Democratic member. Wendell Green, a colored lawyer, has served as the Republican member of the board, but he is a candidate for judge of the municipal court as a Democrat, and his continued tenure of office has been questioned in a lawsuit.

Under department rules McCormick will have until April 22 to answer the charges and he then may be given additional time if he asks for it.

INDORSEMENT GIVEN BROOKS' CANDIDACY BY WARREN WRIGHT

Warren Wright yesterday indorsed Sen. Wayland Brooks—the real Warren Wright, former owner of the Calumet Baking Powder company and now owner of the Calumet Farms racing stable and Whirlaway.

Silas H. Strawn said he received a letter from Wright, who now lives in Florida, asking that his indorsement of the senator be announced along with an explanation that he, the Florida Wright, is not a candidate for any office.

The letter said that for several years the writer had been subjected to constant annoyance by confusion of the two names. This he ascribed to candidate Warren E. Wright's dropping his middle initial. Brooks' present opponent used his full name as a candidate in 1930, 1932, and 1934, dropping it in one more unsuccessful race in 1938 and when he was nominated for state treasurer in 1940.

NEHRU PLEDGES INDIA WILL NOT GIVE IN TO JAPS

Won't Hamper War Efforts of Allies, He Says.

follows the policy, is going to follow it in a wrong, perverted way, thinking partly of hampering the Japanese but of hampering India a great deal.

"I am therefore not prepared to trust their scorched earth policy.

"I wanted 100,000,000 Indians in the army. It was not a conception of just an army functioning, but of every man and woman doing something—making it a popular war—of our carrying on defense even if the trained armies in the field failed.

Pledges No Surrender.

"This popular conception of resistance is 'no surrender,' whether soldiers die or live, that is the conception China has given us, the conception seen in Russia, the conception we want in India.

"I cannot tolerate the idea that I should sit idle or that people should sit idle in their houses while the battle for India is being fought between foreign armies, while the Japanese are invading the country."

He said the congress wholeheartedly sympathizes with the causes represented by the British as against the axis, and even when he and other leaders went to prison a year ago, their policy was not embarrassment of the British war effort.

"Congress could have broken the whole British war effort in India," he added.

Offered Trip to U. S.

Nehru revealed that Louis Johnson, special emissary from the United States, offered to arrange for a flying visit to Washington if he wished a chance for personal conversation with Roosevelt; but he felt it would set a bad example to leave India in a time of crisis, and Johnson agreed.

Before the press conference, Nehru privately gave to the Tribune correspondent a two hour explanation of the differences between Cripps' offers and the views of the Indian congress. Nehru was hurt by American criticism which not only he, but Americans here considered unsupported by events.

He charged that the whole situation seemed to be moving toward a settlement when the British government's attitude suddenly stiffened and barred the way.

Nehru denied Cripps' statement that the collapse of the talks was due to last minute objections introduced by the congress.

Promised National Cabinet.

"At the opening of the discussion, he told us we would have a national cabinet with the viceroy in a position analogous to the king's position in England," Nehru said. [The king in England has the technical power of veto, but in modern England it is unthinkable that he should use it.]

"Later in the talks Cripps said this was impossible without a fundamental constitutional change, which cannot be made during war. We said that in that case our 'ministers' would become mere department heads under the viceroy. Cripps replied that this was quite true, but that it would have to be a mere executive council, not a cabinet in the true sense."

A fundamental point in the defense question was: "Can India raise her own forces for the defense of the country?"

The present laws do not allow Indians to possess firearms. The answer to this was never made clear in any public statement, and I asked Nehru if it was clarified during the discussions.

"Man Power" Meant Labor.

"Sir Stafford refused to discuss that," he answered. "He always said that it was a point to be settled by the commander in chief; it was impossible to promise us in advance, but that 'it was hardly likely that he would refuse.'

"What is the 'man power' Cripps mentions as one subject which could be entrusted to the Indian cabinet?" I asked. "Isn't recruiting covered in that?"

"No," said Nehru. "We asked for an explanation, and he said it was supervision of the labor supply for factories, and the only military connection was in welfare work for the troops and the supervision of canteens."

Gandhi Can Split Party.

Nehru unquestionably emerged from the discussions as the biggest man India has, but Gandhi lives on prestige, and has dangerous nuisance value because he can split the Congress party if he is opposed. It is impossible for the congress to accept any agreement which Gandhi opposes because Gandhi can raise enough opposition to make an agreement unworkable, even if it is accepted.

Nehru's attitude and evident honesty won the respect of all concerned, including Cripps, who not only publicly attested their good relations, but told me he had the highest regard for Nehru, and felt he did more than any other leader toward agreement in the course of the discussions. Before leaving, Cripps sent for Nehru yesterday, asking that he come and say good-by on a personal footing, now that the conference had collapsed.

Order Madras Evacuation.

NEW DELHI, India, April 12 (AP).—A communique was issued today at Madras, capital of the Madras presidency, advising evacuation of all among the half million population whose presence is not necessary in that seaport city.

The Madras presidency fronts on the Island of Ceylon and Bay of Bengal, where Japanese naval and air forces already have delivered stiff blows to the British. Madras remembers the exploit of the German cruiser Emden which on Sept. 22, 1914, steamed into Madras roads and shelled the outskirts of the town.

Only last Monday two coastal towns of the presidency were bombed by Japanese planes.

Sir Stafford Cripps was en route home. His plane reached the frontier town of Karachi this afternoon.

Chicagoans Serving in Australia

HAPPY PARENTS LEARN SONS ARE IN AUSTRALIA

Tribune Writer Tells of 3 Chicagoans There.

The parents of two Chicago boys and one lad from Cicero were happy to learn yesterday that their sons, from whom they had received no word in many weeks, were well and safe in an army camp "somewhere in Australia."

A story sent by E. R. Noderer, Chicago Tribune correspondent with the United States armed forces in Australia, told how the three yanks found it easy to adapt themselves to Australian surroundings which closely resemble the mid-western terrain.

Sergeant's Home in Edison Park.

Sgt. Eugene Beesley, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph H. Beesley of 5746 Newark avenue, was glad to get ashore after a long sea voyage from the United States. Beesley, who was in the real estate business with his father, lived in Edison Park with his wife, Betty. He was inducted into the army June 6, 1941. He is 26 years old.

Paul Kocian, 25 years old, of 5435 West 23rd street, Cicero, was a steel worker before he was inducted into the army. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Kocian. Upon arriving in Australia Paul felt that if he had to fight on foreign soil, then Australia was the place to do it.

Inducted 7 Months Ago.

Eugene Apida of 2341 South Sacramento avenue, praised the Salvation Army workers at the new army camps being constructed in Australia. A clerk for the United Drug company before he was inducted Sept. 19, 1941, Apida said the workers made camp life almost as comfortable as life at home. He is 27 years old and the son of Mrs. Apolonio R. Apida. He has five brothers and three sisters, but he is the only member of the family with the fighting forces.

BARTENDER HELD IN SLAYING.

Richard Barnett, Negro bartender in a tavern at 209 East 51st street, was arrested yesterday after he shot and killed Oliver B. Cunningham, 24, also colored. Barnett said Cunningham, who lived at 5138 South Michigan avenue, attacked him with a knife.

MILLIONAIRE PRIVATE GOULD PEELS SPUDS IN AUSTRALIAN CAMP

SYDNEY, Australia, April 12 (AP).—A millionaire is peeling potatoes at a United States army camp here. He in First Class Pvt. George Jay Gould, 23, eldest son of the late Jay Gould and great grandson of the railroad magnate of the last century. He also has served as chauffeur to officers.

He married Eileen O'Malley, New York society girl, soon after he was drafted to the army.

Gould is acutely short of money for the first time in his life. He had no time to arrange for this detail after being posted overseas. He wants to take a suite at a city hotel, and is awaiting funds.

BRISBANE, Australia, April 12 (AP).—An American flag once owned by Stonewall Jackson is to be presented to Gen. MacArthur by its present owner, a Mrs. Gibbon, a widow, whose husband was given the flag. Gibbon was master of the transport Thomas which carried troops in the Spanish-American war. The flag now hangs in the chapel of a seamen's mission in Brisbane.

CANBERRA, Australia, April 12 (AP).—Since the war began about 5,000 evacuees have been given shelter in Australia, arriving from Hongkong, Singapore, Java, and New Guinea. The number includes 1,800 women and children from New Guinea and other islands north of Australia.

SYDNEY, Australia, April 12 (AP).—Lieut. Col. Charles R. Dawley, with the American forces in Australia, is a candidate for the United States senate. Dawley comes from Montana, and is running as a Republican. "All I hope is that my nomination is in time," he said.

MELBOURNE, Australia, April 12 (AP).—United States army authorities in Australia propose giving American names to Australian army camps in Victoria occupied by United States men. One of the largest is to be named MacArthur.

CHILE, ARGENTINA MUST OUST AXIS, SAYS DIPLOMAT

Asserts Residents Are Backing U. S.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Dr. Ricardo Alfaro, former president of Panama and widely known Latin American diplomat, yesterday declared his belief that Chile and Argentina soon will join with the other nations of the western hemisphere in breaking relations with the axis. He spoke before the Charles Carroll forum in the Palmer House.

"My belief is that Argentina and Chile will be forced by the pressure of events, either external or internal, or both, to break completely with the axis," Dr. Alfaro declared. "The overwhelming majority of the residents of those countries is in favor of full coöperation with the democracies."

Tells of Meetings.

Dr. Alfaro, as a diplomatic leader in many hemispheric conferences, outlined the historic meetings which led to the recent agreements on Pan-American nations at Rio de Janeiro.

Chile and Argentina refused to break with the axis at those meetings.

Three results were enumerated as coming from the Buenos Aires conference of 1936. These Dr. Alfaro named as: Establishment of the consultative system between nations of the hemisphere, the declaration of inter-American solidarity, and "continentalization of the Monroe Doctrine."

Barriers to Colonization.

Two years later the Pan-American conference at Lima, Peru, gave strong reaffirmation of the principle of solidarity and framed a statement repudiating totalitarianism in all forms. Later at Panama, an inter-American financial and economic council was set up and has been at work in Washington for the last two and a half years.

The chief accomplishment of the Havana, Cuba, conference was erection of barriers to European colonization in the western hemisphere.

Dr. Alfaro's appearance before the forum marked a beginning of the observance of Pan-American week, also featured in many of the city's churches last night. The observance will come to its climax tomorrow night when Nelson A. Rockefeller, United States coördinator of inter-American relations, will speak at a dinner at the Stevens hotel.

'I HAVEN'T LOST HOPE ON INDIA,' CRIPPS ASSERTS

LONDON, April 13 [Monday]—(AP).—"I have not lost hope that the people of India will one day come to an agreement," Sir Stafford Cripps declared last night in an interview given to Reuters news agency at Karachi, India.

Cripps, who is on his way back to England from New Delhi after Indian leaders rejected the British government's plan for Indian freedom, said: "We will have to come to some arrangement some day. I have no idea when it will be. It depends on the Indian parties and the Indian leaders."

Questioned regarding a statement in his broadcast Saturday that the Indian national government as envisaged by the Nationalist congress would be a sort of cabinet dictatorship, Cripps said:

"We offered everything we could. There was nothing more to offer. There is no good discussing past history."

RECOVER BODIES OF TWO BOYS.

Washington, Ind., April 12 [Special].—Bodies of Russell Rollins, 11 years old, and his brother, Ross, 6, were recovered by searchers today in the flood waters of a creek near their home in Greene county. The boys, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Rollins, drowned yesterday.

RESCUE STAGED BY COAST GUARD, BUT IT'S IN VAIN

A civilian called the Maxwell street police yesterday to report that he had seen a man throw a small dog into a slip of the river at 23d street and Union avenue. He said the animal was swimming in the murky water, trying to cling with its front paws to the slimy piling and that it soon would be exhausted. He said he couldn't get at it to help it.

A detective squad was sent to the river, found it couldn't help the animal either. It was seven feet from the bank to the water; the rescuers couldn't get to the dog so they called the coast guard.

A coast guard boat was sent to the scene. The crew, under Boatswain's Mate Vincent V. Lewis, rowed up the slip and the dog swam toward them as they approached. Detectives on the bank cheered as the dripping victim was lifted to safety.

Police turned the dog over to the small animal refuge of the Anti-Cruelty society at 157 West Grand avenue. But the rescue was in vain. The dog was ill and exhausted from its experience and had to be destroyed.

ALLIES BLAST 28 JAP PLANES IN WIDE BLOWS

Cover 2,400 Mile Arc About Australia.

MELBOURNE, April 13 [Monday]—(AP).—Allied bombers which yesterday continued heavy assaults on Japanese bases north of Australia severely damaged a large ship in the harbor of Rabaul, New Britain, and pounded the airdrome at Koepang, capital of Dutch Timor, it was announced today.

Dispatches from Port Moresby, New Guinea, reported the ship damaged at Rabaul was afire when the allied raiders turned for home after scoring a direct hit on her stern and several near misses.

[Another dispatch reported a Japanese aircraft carrier near Rabaul, New Britain Island, suffered a direct hit from allied aircraft, but said allied headquarters had made no claim that the vessel was sunk.]

The communique announcing the Koepang raid said that hangars and barracks were attacked, but reported details were not immediately available.

Yesterday's raids capped a series of week-end assaults that extended along a 2,400-mile arc from Koepang to Faisi in the Solomon Islands and included a heavy attack on Lae, on the northeast coast of New Guinea.

Allied planes were credited with destroying or seriously damaging at least 28 Japanese aircraft in these operations.

At least 12 of the Japanese planes were destroyed at the cost of only two allied aircraft.

Rabaul Raided Twice.

Rabaul—the main Japanese base for any invasion attempt—was raided both Friday and Saturday.

Eight Japanese bombers and a fighter were destroyed on the ground Friday and other planes were damaged. In the attacks Saturday, three moored flying boats were damaged by machine gun fire, and a P-type fighter was chased away, damaged, in a steep dive.

Buildings at two airports flamed so violently after bomb hits that the fires were seen 50 miles at sea. Ships were bombed in the harbor and enemy troops were strafed, but the results were not wholly visible.

Direct hits were scored on three grounded bombers at Lae, and four other aircraft probably were damaged by a near miss by a heavy bomb. Japanese Zero fighters which rose to attack were driven away after two were shot down and four others damaged. Japanese ships, gun emplacements, and buildings were bombed and several anti-aircraft batteries were believed silenced.

Ward Off Moresby Raid.

Faisi, 1,000 miles to the northeast of Australia, was bombed Saturday morning, but the damage was not observed fully. Wharves and sheds were raided.

The attack on Koepang, northwest of the continent, was made Friday and resulted in several hits on buildings which were left burning.

In fending off a Friday attack on much bombed Port Moresby in southeastern New Guinea, allied defenses shot down a heavy enemy bomber and probably destroyed another fighter. Seven bombers and six fighters were kept six miles high, but allied fighters rose to attack and chased them away toward Lae after a series of dogfights. Damage was negligible and there were no casualties, the Australian communique said.

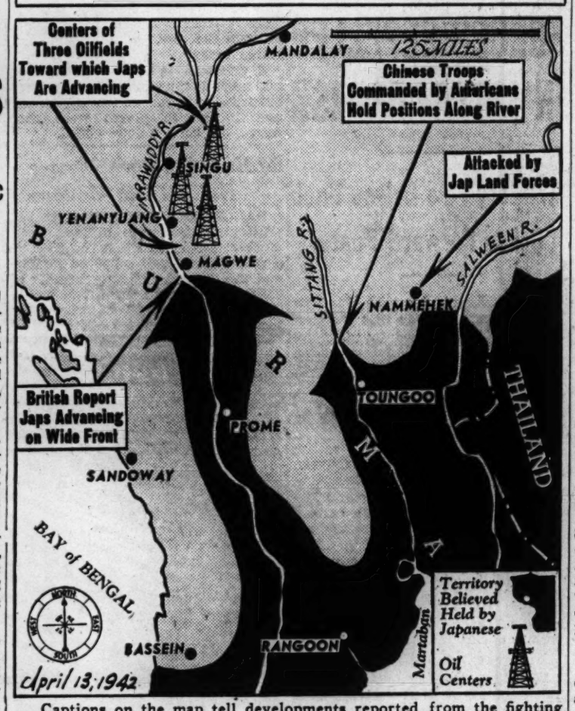
Report Gayda Says U. S. Urges Attack on Italy

LONDON, April 13 [Monday]—(AP).—An Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Zurich, Switzerland, early today quoted Virginio Gayda, Mussolini's editorial mouthpiece, as saying that the United States is demanding that England "commence an offensive against Italy. This is the reason Roosevelt sent Gen. George Marshall [chief of staff] and Harry Hopkins to London," Gayda wrote in the Rome newspaper La Voce d'Italia.

NEGRO SHOT TO DEATH.

Fred Gibson, 35 years old, colored, was shot and killed early today in the room of Robert Wright, 41, also colored, at 710 South State street. Wright, who said Gibson lived in Gary, Ind., was held for questioning.

War Developments in Burma



Captions on the map tell developments reported from the fighting fronts in Burma.

CHINESE AIDED BY YANK FLYERS HOLD BURMA LINE

Japs Advance Against British Front.

NEW DELHI, April 12 (AP).—Chinese defenders, supported along their front lines by American volunteer group pilots and native Burmese, are standing their ground along the Sittang river in Burma, 30 miles north of Toungoo, a Chinese communique said today.

Lieut. Gen. J. W. Stilwell.

Altho the Japanese attacked with concentrated artillery covering fire and aviation support on Thursday, they were being held motionless up to Saturday by heroic Chinese resistance, the communique said.

"Burmese natives expressed admiration for the gallant spirit of our forces by doing their utmost to help us, which contributed greatly to our morale," the Chinese command said. "On April 10 the American volunteer group came to the support of our forces, which inspired our troops to fight with even greater gallantry."

Advance on Wide Front.

But while these forces under United States Lieut. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell held their positions along the Swa river, 180 miles south of Mandalay, Japanese advance guards pressed closer to the oil fields on the western end of the line.

The British said "enemy reconnaissance elements appear to be advancing northward on a wide front south of Magwe," but that the main Japanese forces had not yet been engaged. Magwe is only 20 miles south of Yenanyuang, center of one of the three great Burmese oil pools. The others are at Singu and Yenangat, 50 miles farther north.

Japanese planes roared over the British positions almost unchallenged, bombing and strafing the defenders.

It was disclosed that Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek had spent five days at the Burma fronts conferring with Gen. Stilwell and the British commander, Gen. Harold Alexander. He returned to Chungking today and Mme. Chiang accompanied him from Lashio.

AVG Bags Nine Planes.

Across the Pega Yoma mountains from the British, the Chinese had a measure of air protection afforded by the gallant "flying tigers" of the American volunteer group. In combat Friday, these United States fighters destroyed seven of nine planes attacking a northern Burma port and ran their two day score to 18 victories over the 21 to 24 planes they met. The AVG suffered no losses. The day before that they had shot down 10.

The Chinese reported that 600 Japanese attacked Nammehek, 12 miles east of Mawchi, along the Salween front to the east of the Sittang Friday, but there were no further details. The Japanese also bombed a central Burma town, killing "mostly women and children."

The main force of the Japanese drive appeared directed against the British held positions, and the advancing enemy moved closer to India's eastern frontier. The British forces were relatively small and outnumbered and their supply problem already was aggravated by the loss of Rangoon and the absence of adequate land routes into nearby India.

Famed 'Stars and Stripes' to Be Issued Again for AEF

LONDON, April 12 (AP).—After a lapse of nearly 23 years the Stars and Stripes goes to press again this week. This famed newspaper, founded by the first AEF in France, will resume Saturday with its columns featuring home news for boys of the second AEF now in the United Kingdom. The new issue will be No. 72, volume 2. The Stars and Stripes made its initial appearance in Paris Feb. 8, 1918, and issue No. 71 was published on June 13, 1919.

BOMBS MIGHTIER THAN NAVY, JAP WAR INDICATES

13 of 17 Warships Sunk by Planes.

New York, April 12 (AP).—The question of air bombs versus battleships—a question unsettled in the European war—has a definite answer in the Pacific so far—and it's air bombs.

Of seven important British warships announced as lost in the war with Japan all but two were the victims of Japanese bombers. Of 10 United States warships announced as lost all but two were sunk by Japanese planes. Eight United States warships announced as damaged were damaged by bombs.

Capt. Joseph J. Clark of the United States navy, executive officer on one of the plane carriers which raided the Marshall and Gilbert Islands in the first American offensive action of the war, said that in his opinion the Pacific war was primarily a war of planes and submarines.

Japs Have Coördinated Action.

The Japanese, he said, have coordinated ship, air, and land force action. They have been able to strike with their combined air forces at chosen objectives by moving them quickly from concentration point to concentration point.

The answer, he said, is the airplane carrier. And when air supremacy is obtained it must be followed up with a shore offensive.

Capt. Clark praised the Japanese planes which, he said, were "excellent." In some respects they are patterned on United States planes, especially in motors; in others they have been copied from the Germans, but new and original Japanese ideas had been added to the planes too. He said he inspected planes which crashed during the Pearl Harbor attacks and found their construction admirable.

On the broad strategical implications of the success of Japanese air power Capt. Clark would not comment.

Many Change Fleet Tactics.

But American naval sources, altho relinquishing no whit their belief in Rear Adm. Alfred T. Mahan's famous thesis on the importance of sea power in history, have indicated the success of Japanese bombers may result in changes in the makeup of the fleets and in their tactical use.

To them the plane is a weapon to bolster, not supplant, sea power. It has become the eye and the extended fist for the fleet, which remains the brain and storehouse of sea power.

This is the lesson taught in the Spanish civil war when planes successfully attacked a warship for the first time in modern war, the lesson of Crete and of the sinking of the Repulse and the Prince of Wales.

WORNOUT YANKS ATE PACK MULES, BUT FOUGHT ON

Colonel Says Fatigue Cost Bataan.

Washington, D. C., April 12 (AP).—An army officer just returned from Corregidor reported today that living on the Philippine fortress island was "like living on a bull's eye."

Lieut. Col. Clear. [AP wirephoto.]

Lieut. Col. Warren J. Clear of Monterey, Cal., an infantry officer who reached the capital by way of Australia, said that since the loss of the Bataan peninsula Corregidor would be the target of everything the Japanese have.

"There are literally no places where bombs are not likely to fall," he said in an interview on a war department sponsored "army hour" radio program.

"But the Japanese attacking Corregidor still must combat American courage, American marksmanship, American ingenuity, and American steadfastness," he added.

Eat Their Pack Mules.

Clear said that two months ago the defenders of Bataan were reduced to eating their pack mules, and for weeks they had had no vegetables, eggs, nor citrus fruit.

"Occasionally they were fortunate enough to bag wild pig and carabao, or water buffaloes, but they were few and far between," he related. "Every day our men grew more and more undernourished, more exhausted, from lack of food and sleep; but despite their exhaustion I never heard a complaint from them.

"Thanks to careful forethought and planning they had adequate ammunition until near the last. And there was not a single time when our Americans and Filipinos failed to return fire for fire and to battle savagely in counterattacks.

Exhaustion Caused Collapse.

"The heroism of these men is all the more glorious because they knew all the time that the persistent efforts of the war department to bring them relief and supplies were doomed to failure.

"They knew they were making a last stand. They cheered each ship that arrived; but they knew that for every ship that did get there at least two had been destroyed. And they fought on to the end. Our forces on Bataan collapsed because they were physically exhausted."

The Japanese, he related, knowing the defenders were short of man power, concentrated at night on preventing sleep or rest.

Newly arrived selectees, Clear reported, "stood up right alongside the old timers" as fighting men.

The officer said he and a sergeant who shared the same foxhole prayed audibly during one particularly heavy bombing attack. The sergeant, Clear said, observed afterward that "there are no atheists in foxholes."

Major unoccupied islands include Panay, Negros, Bohol, Leyte, and Samar, all in the central portion, where Cebu is situated. The status of rugged Palawan, westernmost of the large islands, is in doubt.

"Batteries Silenced"—Tokio.

TOKIO, April 12 [from Japanese broadcasts]—(AP).—Japanese heavy guns rolled up to positions on Bataan peninsula today and poured a "withering" fire on the besieged American stronghold as Japanese bombers added to the fury with tons of destructive missiles, the Domei news agency reported.

Huge columns of smoke poured from American positions "casting an ominous pall over Manila bay" as the Japanese pressed the intensive bombardment, said the news agency. American anti-aircraft batteries were declared to have been completely silenced by two mass air raids today.

Movement of artillery into position was made possible, Domei reported, by occupation of Mariveles, last American base on Bataan, at 9 p. m. Thursday when "Japanese vanguards stormed into the town and unfurled the Rising Sun flag after hotly pursuing the retreating enemy troops along the Bataan military road. Japanese soldiers are busy disarming Filipino and American troops which have been surrendering in large numbers."

Claim Transports Seized.

Several medium transports and scores of launches were seized in Mariveles harbor, where the Americans did not have time to put the torch to two wharves, it was said.

Japanese marines who began landing on Cebu, far to the south in the Philippines, were reported mopping up the "last nests of enemy resistance" on that island. About 238 Japanese nationals interned in Cebu City were released following occupation of the city.

These dispatches reported that the first Japanese landed at 6 a. m. on the eastern shore and at Barili on the western shore, and launched a drive against "the enemy entrenched in the mountains of the central part of the island, reducing an undisclosed strategic point at 2 p. m. the same day."

SINGAPORE LEADER UNJUSTLY MALIGNED, SAYS AUSSIE GENERAL

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

MELBOURNE, Australia, April 12.—Lieut. Gen. H. Gordon Bennett, now commanding an army corps in Australia, said today in discussing the fall of Singapore that Lieut. Gen. Arthur E. Percival, who surrendered the base, had been unjustly maligned. Gen. Percival, he said, could not hold the island because there were too few troops, and air defenses were weak.

"The day before the Japanese landing on the island," Gen. Bennett said, "Gen. Percival and I inspected the western defenses. We saw two hills about two miles apart defended by one company of troops each, but the only defense in the gap between the hills was by patrols moving from one company to another.

"Gen. Percival asked me if I'd tell him how to hold Singapore. I replied, 'more soldiers.' He agreed that was the only answer, and that was why Singapore fell."

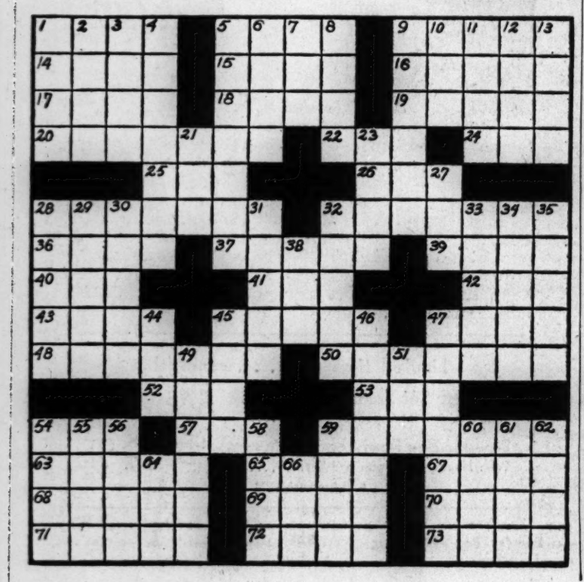
PUZZLE OF SATURDAY, APRIL 11, SOLVED



SEE U. S., BRITAIN ON DEFENSIVE FOR ALL OF 1942

Face Enemy on Six Major War Fronts.

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, April 12.—Gen. George C. Marshall, United States army chief of staff, and Harry Hopkins, chairman of the munitions assignment board, who came here by plane recently, were week-end guests of Prime Minister Winston Churchill, it was understood today. They were believed to be continuing discussions of spring and summer war campaigns against Germany, in the middle east, and in the western Pacific.

It is known that complete agreement exists regarding the vital importance of full and effective aid to Russia, but the drain on British and American supplies and shipping in providing this aid is believed to exclude plans for the early opening of a second front in Europe.

On this score the Sunday Observer said that it would be pleasant but untrue to say that it will be the united nations, not Adolf Hitler, who will take the initiative in the campaign about to open, and added:

"On the highest and widest plane of grand strategy we are still on the defensive and we shall remain there for most and probably all of 1942."

Face Six Major Fronts.

Military experts assert that the problems confronting American and British strategists appear formidable. Exclusive of a second front in Europe, the allies are faced with six major fronts now, not including ancillary military considerations, such as Corregidor, or jockeying for position in the Pacific, Atlantic, and Mediterranean.

All of these fronts, in the opinion of the experts, must be supported, and the drain on combined allied resources is terrific. Russia must be maintained; the loss of the battle of the Atlantic would be fatal; the defense of Australia is regarded as necessary as a base for the full might of the American navy, air, and land forces to hit a devastating blow against Japan; China cannot be neglected, since a separate peace there would release tremendous Japanese forces for more direct action against India and Australia; India's defense is essential to prevent the Japanese and axis powers from joining hands in the middle east or Caucasus; axis victory in Libya and Egypt would isolate India and Russia from the other side, and, incidentally, would invite second fronts against them.

Battle of Atlantic Vital.

Britain's effectiveness to wage war depends on the battle of the Atlantic, which, if lost, would halt aid to Russia. And if Russia is defeated, the bulk of the striking power of all the axis forces would be released to turn in any direction, including the British Isles.

The need for ships has been stressed here for some time as the most urgent allied need.

"If Hitler's dream for 1942 is to be broken, it will be broken by the men of the sea," said the Sunday Observer. "Before men, their guns, pilots and planes can be brought to grips with the enemy, they must pass thru the needle's eye of shipping."

It said that there is "not one of the seven seas where the merchantman is safe without an escort of warships or battleships, without its umbrella of fighters."

Urges British General Staff.

The latter consideration already has impelled the London Times to urge that the British government form its own general staff, composed of all the fighting services. The loss of two cruisers and the aircraft carrier Hermes off Ceylon last week is attributed to the lack of coördination between the air service and the navy.

"The conviction that something is fundamentally lacking in the coördination of the three fighting services has steadily gained ground thruout the present war, and was never more widely nor firmly held than now," the Times said. A combined general staff, it asserted, "would speak thru its chief with a single voice, tendering authoritative professional advice to the defense minister and the war cabinet."

Churchill has been urged in parliament to relinquish his post of defense minister, which has the last word on strategy. Parliament still is waiting for an explanation of the loss of Singapore and other reverses in the Pacific, but the government is said to be unable to supply the complete story, owing to the lack of all facts. Therefore, it is said, Churchill probably will not be able to give the information when parliament reassembles after the Easter holidays.

U. S. WILL CLEAN UP PACIFIC WAR, LONDON IS TOLD

LONDON, April 12 (AP).—The American people are determined "to clean up the Pacific business," Richard G. Casey, former Australian minister to Washington, D. C., who was recently named British minister of state in the middle east, said on his arrival today.

"I do not think there are any political divisions in the United States in anything connected with the war," he added.

Casey will confer with Prime Minister Churchill before going to Cairo to assume his new post.

14 BRITISH PLANES LOST IN BATTLES ACROSS CHANNEL

Meet Force of Nazis in Dogfights.

BULLETIN.

LONDON, April 13 [Monday]—(AP).—Two air raid warnings were sounded last night in Berne, Switzerland, the Vichy radio said today, Reuters reported.

[Air raid alarms in Switzerland frequently have resulted from British planes flying over that country on their way to raids in Italy.]

LONDON, April 12 (AP).—The Royal Air Force ran into "some of the fiercest air fighting since the battle of Britain" of September, 1940, on a bombing sweep today against the railway yards at Hazebrouck in northern France and indications were that losses in aircraft were relatively heavy on both sides.

The British acknowledged the loss of 1 bomber and 13 fighter planes in the thick of the numerous dogfights that developed when the RAF encountered German planes in force. Two fighter pilots bailed out and were reported safe.

2 Wrecked by Collision.

The air ministry news service said that besides two German fighters shot down by British fighters and two others which knocked themselves out in a collision, a number of other Nazi planes were damaged.

The RAF appeared to be bombing the French channel ports again tonight.

From the southeast coast watchers saw great flashes in the Calais and Dunkirk areas and were shaken by reverberations of the explosions.

Crowds gathered on the seashore despite a bitterly cold wind to watch the bursting anti-aircraft shells and searchlights sweeping the skies.

Intercepted Over Channel.

BERLIN, April 12 [from German broadcasts]—(AP).—The high command announced that the British air force suffered "a new serious defeat" this afternoon when German fighters intercepted 12 British bombers and about 50 Spitfire fighters off the French coast and shot down 12 Spitfires and one bomber.

Japs Force Foreigners in Indies to Register—and Pay

LONDON, April 12 (AP).—All foreign residents of the Netherlands East Indies over 17 years of age will be regarded as "hostile" and deprived of "Japanese protection" unless they register with the Japanese and pledge their obedience to their regulations, the Netherlands Indies news agency Aneta said today. The registration fee for Europeans and Americans is $81 for men and $43 for women.

Opens Friday

A featured act with the Olympia circus which opens at the Chicago Stadium Friday night will be Dolly Jacobs, one of the few women wild animal trainers. She shares the spotlight with her husband, Terrell Jacobs, in his den of lions, tigers, and leopards.

NAZIS EXECUTE 5 IN REPRISAL FOR KILLING IN PARIS

VICHY, April 12 (AP).—The Germans announced today the executions of five persons identified as communists in reprisal for the killing of a German sentinel and the bombing of the Wehrmacht bureau in Paris, and warned that numbers of other persons would be shot if the culprits are not handed over before April 17.

The notice published by the German military authorities in Paris said:

"On April 2, 1942, murder was committed against a German sentinel and an explosive machine was thrown against the bureau occupied by the Wehrmacht. As reprisal five communists immediately were shot. If by April 17, the authors [of the attack] are not arrested certain numbers of persons closely responsible, Jews and communists, will be shot."

TURKISH ENVOY RETURNS WITH A SMILE TO BERLIN

ISTANBUL, Turkey, April 12 (AP).—Huesrev Gerede, Turkish ambassador to Germany, ended a three week visit at home today.

As he boarded a train he told interviewers: "You can write that I return to Berlin smiling.

"I am particularly satisfied," he added, "that my return was delayed a few days to enable me to talk once again with my close friend and colleague, Franz von Papen [German ambassador to Turkey]. I return carrying from this interview the best impression and hope for development of our relations with Germany."

U. S. Consuls Will Await Jap Exchange in Shanghai

TOKIO, April 12 [from Japanese broadcasts]—(AP).—United States Consul General M. S. Meyers and 13 other United States consular service men left by boat yesterday for Shanghai to await diplomatic exchange of Japanese officials held in the United States. British Consul General A. P. Blunt and 57 staff members also were on the boat and will await exchange with Britain of Japanese diplomats held in that country.

NAZI RIGHT FLANK FORCES REPELLED IN LIBYA; BRITISH

Artillery Fire Drives Back Other Forward Posts.

CAIRO, Egypt, April 12 (AP).—The British reported today that the Germans had been forced to withdraw their right flank column operating in no man's land in the Libyan desert and that other forward posts and vehicles near the coast west of Ain el Gazala also had been forced back by artillery fire.

The RAF announced a new attack on Crete airdromes where German Field Marshal Gen. Albert Kesserling has been gathering air forces apparently for a possible middle eastern offensive. The results were not announced.

Three German planes were shot down and two others damaged in a formation encountered along the front in Libya, the RAF said. It admitted a loss of seven of its own planes in various operations.

Report Axis "Digging In."

LONDON, April 12 (AP).—Exchange Telegraph's special correspondent with the British forces in the middle east reported today that the axis is "digging in and laying minefields along the Marmarica [Libyan] front, which confirms the impression that a major offensive is not being contemplated at least for the present."

Malta Raids Slacken.

VALLETTA, Malta, April 12 (AP).—The axis air siege of Malta slacked off today and sun bathers made the most of the respite by flocking to the island's warm, sunny beaches. Instead of a day long assault as usual the enemy made only one sharp attack upon Valetta harbor and twice sent over reconnaissance planes. One German bomber and one Nazi fighter were destroyed and two other bombers damaged by anti-aircraft fire.

Report 10,000 Ton Ship Sunk.

ROME, April 12 [from Italian broadcasts]—(AP).—The Italian high command reported today that Italian aircraft had sunk a 10,000 ton enemy merchant ship in the eastern Mediterranean.

Claim Toll of British Planes.

BERLIN, April 12 [from German broadcasts]—(AP).—In air engagements over Libya six British planes were shot down during "lively artillery and patrol activity," in which heavy and light German bombers successfully attacked British communications in the rear, the high command stated today.

A destroyer in dock at Malta was hit several times in raids on that British Mediterranean island fortress, and 13 British planes were shot down, the communique added.

60 Hurt as Spanish Dance Hall's Floor Collapses

BARCELONA, Spain, April 12 (AP).—Sixty persons were injured, some of them seriously, when the floor of a public dance hall collapsed tonight and the dancers slid into the vats of a liquor distillery on the floor below. The firemen were called to rescue the victims from the wreckage.

NEW BULGARIAN CABINET; SAME OLD AXIS 'LINE'

BERNE, Switzerland, April 12 (AP).—Bulgarian Premier Bogdan Philov said in a Sofia broadcast tonight that his newly formed cabinet would hew to the previous government's policy of "coöperating closely with the axis."

Philov declared his country "would pursue a friendly policy towards Turkey." The premier, who emerged from yesterday's cabinet change with the foreign ministry portfolio in addition to the premiership, said the government's future program would include:

Maintenance of a strong, well-equipped army, liquidation of "remnants" of the democratic liberal ideologists, enforcement of strict anti-Jewish laws, and stern measures against communists.

RUSSIANS FLOOD GERMANS OUT OF FORTIFIED TOWN

Change Course of Stream Swollen by Thaws.

KUIBYSHEV, Russia, April 12 (AP).—Soviet forces in one of the most spectacular exploits of the war have flooded the Germans out of a bitterly defended and strongly fortified village by changing the course of a stream swollen from thawing snows, front line dispatches said tonight.

Red army sappers, working under the guns of the Germans, dug trenches thru which flood waters went cascading to engulf the enemy positions.

Battling thru incessant rains, other Russian units were reported to have recaptured a town occupied briefly by the Germans on a river in the Bryansk sector 200 miles southwest of Moscow and liberated two settlements on the Kalinin front northwest of the capital.

Heavy Losses at Leningrad.

German prisoners captured on the Leningrad front said there were enormous losses among their comrades during the Nazis' march offensives. One Nazi said the 53d Alpine division brought from Crete and intended for the Murmansk front was diverted hurriedly to the Leningrad front, only to lose heavily in manpower.

The Leningrad radio broadcast an announcement that a strategic point identified only as "N" had been recaptured with the annihilation of 300 Germans and destruction of every mortar battery defending the point.

On the central front, the Germans lost heavily in hand-to-hand fighting following a thwarted tank counter attack supported by heavy artillery. A single soviet infantry unit reported slaying more than 300 Nazis in two days of fighting.

A Wave of Optimism.

As two warring armies sparred across a 2,000 mile slushy front, a wave of confidence in victory over the Germans went up and down the soviet union today reaching from the lowliest Volga boatman to President Michael Kalinin.

The Russians say it is good healthy optimism, based on ever-Russian realism. Russians summed up these reasons for optimism:

FIRST—And above all, they believe the long expected spring offensive will be their offensive.

SECOND—They are convinced that the German army will be crushed on soviet soil—and this year.

THIRD—If the worst comes—and they never for a moment consider it will—the Russians are prepared to fight on, to the Ural mountains, Siberia, and beyond, in the cause of a victory they are sure will be theirs ultimately.

"Stronger than We Think."

As the Red army moved forward west of Moscow the Russians found evidences of the strength of their young fighting force. Kalinin, as nominal head of the nation, expressed it thus:

"Russia is stronger even than we sometimes think."

Kalinin also declared German aviation is no longer superior in the air. In tanks, he said, the Russians are gradually becoming the equals of the Germans. The German army, he asserted, has passed the climax of its strength, and its power is on the wane.

Bomb Four Ships in Arctic.

BERLIN, April 12 [from German broadcasts]—(AP).—A German dive-bomber attack on a strongly protected united nations convoy in the Arctic sea yesterday, resulting in the damaging of four ships, was reported by the Germans today. [The United States and Britain are sending war supplies to Russia over the Arctic route.]

The high command reported a renewed attack of "strong enemy forces supported by tanks and the air force" on the Kerch peninsula in the Crimea, adding that the attack "broke down."

The communique reported a German bomber attack on "port facilities on the Caucasian coast" [apparently of the Black sea] in which "a large soviet Russian passenger ship" was damaged.

BIG NEW CARRIER BELIEVED USED IN INDIA BY THE JAPS

COLOMBO, Ceylon, April 12 (AP).—The number of Japanese carrier-based planes used for attacks in this area is interpreted in naval circles here as an indication that the enemy has at least one of his new 28,000 ton carriers in the Indian ocean besides several smaller ones.

The 28,000 tonners are supposed to carry 60 planes.

The sinking of Britain's 10,850 ton carrier Hermes within sight of Ceylon's shore last week was described today by two wounded sublieutenants who survived the attack.

They said the Japanese sinking of the battleship Prince of Wales and the battle cruiser Repulse off Malaya in December provided the pattern for the attack.

This time, however, no torpedoes were used—just bombs, dropped in the face of an intense anti-aircraft fire which was believed to have cost the enemy four planes.

"Their bombing was pretty deadly—good enough at any rate for the Hermes to sustain several hits," one of the sublieutenants said.

"We caught fire and started blazing furiously. Wave after wave of them came in. Some of the Japanese planes came in low despite our anti-aircraft fire. They paid for their audacity.

"We reckon that at least four of the Japanese aircraft must never have reached their bases again."

NAZIS DASH LITH HOPE OF FUTURE FREE COUNTRY

Will Be Treated Like the Poles: Berlin.

BY DONALD DAY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, April 12.—Lithuania's hope of obtaining future independence in the European new order planned by Germany was declared here tonight to have been destroyed by an announcement from Berlin that the Lithuanians are going to receive treatment similar to that meted out to the Poles residing in the Polish corridor.

The political spokesman in Berlin said the former Lithuanian republic is so closely connected both politically and geographically to East Prussia that it is going to have a more German future than Latvia and Estonia.

On May 27 the German civil authorities in Lithuania will hold a census during which all Lithuanians will have the opportunity to vote their option to become citizens of Germany.

Threatened with Deportation.

The census will be similar to the one recently conducted by the Nazis in Gydnia, in the former Polish corridor, where the Poles and other nationalities in these territories were given the opportunity of signing a pledge to become Germans. Those who refused have been informed they are to be deported to an unrevealed destination and have the right to carry with them 75 pounds of personal luggage. All their other belongings must be left behind for distribution among newly converted Germans.

Berlin now admits that of the 53,000 alleged Germans who were repatriated to Germany from Lithuania during the soviet occupation of Lithuania in 1941 there were 35,000 Lithuanians and only 18,000 Germans. All these families are to be repatriated immediately to Lithuania to assist in the conversion of the remainder of the Lithuanian nation to become an appendaged state of East Prussia.

Some in Lutheran Church.

Altho the population of East Prussia north of Koenigsberg is largely of Lithuanian origin, this division of the Lithuanian people, once known as the Burssussians, belonged to the Lutheran church, whereas most other Lithuanians are Catholics.

The former national frontiers of this region have been radically changed by the Berlin map makers. The Subalki district, almost entirely inhabited by Lithuanians, which had belonged to Poland since the putsches which followed the World war, has now been incorporated into East Prussia, while other districts in the former Vilna corridor southeast and northeast of Vilna, inhabited exclusively by Lithuanians, have now been joined to Lithuania.

LEGION HILARITY MAY BE OMITTED AT NEW ORLEANS

The traditional fun and social festivity of the American Legion's national convention may be omitted when the Legion meets in New Orleans Sept. 21. William Mundt, Illinois adjutant, told the state executive committee at a meeting in the Hotel Sherman yesterday that the organization's national leaders are considering limiting the convention to business because of the war. Mundt said the tire shortage and the congestion in railroad passenger traffic might make it inadvisable for many of the members to attend the convention. A final decision on curtailing social activity is expected to be made at a meeting of the national executive committee at Indianapolis April 30.

POLES TO DEFEND PARTS OF SYRIA, IRAN, PALESTINE

50,000 Former Russian Prisoners Are Armed.

ISTANBUL, Turkey, April 12 (AP).—The defense of parts of northern Iran [Persia], Syria and Palestine soon will be largely entrusted to Polish forces now moving in from Russia, an informed allied source said today.

Approximately 50,000 Poles already have been transported across the Caspian sea from Russian bases in Turkmenistan to debarkation points in Iran and a second large group is expected to arrive shortly.

The Poles are partially, in some cases completely, equipped with American made guns, clothing, camping kits, transport, tanks and artillery, and other large dumps of material are said to be awaiting them in Palestine and America.

Take Place of Aussies.

The total number of Polish forces expected in the middle east is not precisely known, but this source said it should reach at least 80,000. They will take the place of Australians, many of whom have returned to defend their homeland.

Considerable credit was given William C. Bullitt, President Roosevelt's personal emissary in the middle east, for the swift organization and equipment of the Poles, who formerly were prisoners of war in Russia.

Hint Use of French Fleet.

MOSCOW, April 12 (AP).—Control of the Italian navy by the Germans, who intend to send it into action in the eastern Mediterranean and at the same time use the French fleet in the western end of the sea, "is a matter of the near future," Tass news agency reported today from Geneva, Switzerland.

Italian navy officials have been objecting to the German plans, altho Mussolini has given in, Tass declared.

Quoting "well informed Swiss circles," Tass said, "The Germans demand immediate decision on this question in connection with a number of preparatory measures they intend to carry out on a large scale prior to the beginning of spring operations.

Issue Considered Settled.

"As has been learned from semi-official circles in Rome, Mussolini considers German control over the Italian navy as a settled issue.

"According to available reports, the German plans provide for transfer of the Italian submarine fleet to the west beyond Gibraltar with bases at Spanish ports, and for concentration of the greater part of the Italian surface ships in the Aegean sea.

"The Germans intend to use the French navy and merchant fleet for operations in the central and western parts of the Mediterranean."

Tass said the French units would take over Italy's task of supplying the north African axis armies.

HITLER OFFERS BRITAIN PEACE AGAIN, REPORT

German Banker Visits Sweden to Push Plan.

BY GEORGE R. AXELSSON.

[Copyright: 1942: By the New York Times.]

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, April 12.—A well known German banker, whose name it is not permitted to divulge, has been visiting Stockholm since Tuesday. In diplomatic circles, it was reported he has approached British officials here with offers scarcely distinguishable from those brought by Adolf Hitler's deputy, Rudolf Hess, when he flew his Messerschmitt plane to Scotland 11 months ago.

The banker, who came ostensibly on a private visit to his daughter, is staying with friends in the suburbs and did not lose any time in letting it be known that he wanted to get in touch with official British circles, it was said.

Report Terms Not Discussed.

After repeating the usual platitudes about the stupidity of two highly cultured nations fighting one another, the man, who declared himself to be a Hitler envoy, was said to have declared that Hitler never wanted war with Britain and was still anxious to reach a compromise in order to avoid further bloodshed and economic ruin and to devote his full attention to Russia, which was "the real menace to the whole world."

No concrete peace terms were actually discussed, it was reported, but it was clear that Germany was to be left a free hand to destroy Russia in exchange for certain concessions to Britain's occupied European allies. Regarding Japan, the envoy was vague, but he stated that Germany viewed with concern the magnitude of Japanese successes and clearly desired to call a halt to further Japanese imperialism.

Envoy Awaits Reaction.

The envoy stated that it was Britain's last chance, and she had better grasp it "as after the German army had occupied the Caucasian oil wells the British empire would be wiped off the face of the earth."

The interview ended after this statement, but the envoy, who had made arrangements to leave Stockholm by plane for Berlin this morning, actually canceled his reservation and will stay another few days, perhaps waiting for an official London reaction.

Honorary Aryan No. 1 Is Wrong Number This Time

[Copyright: 1942: By the New York Times.]

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, April 12.—Autograph hunters stormed the Grand hotel here today because they believed that E. Phillips Oppenheim, the British author, was staying there. He was not, but Baron Waldemar von Oppenheim was. He is the Cologne, Germany, banker and racehorse owner, who is the reich's "honorary Aryan No. 1." He is related to the Wallenbergs, the Swedish banking family. He has been in Stockholm since Tuesday.

DUCKS OR TANKS: GUNNERS OF AEF KNOCK 'EM OVER

WITH UNITED STATES FORCES IN NORTHERN IRELAND, April 12—(AP).—A couple of bird hunters have set one of the best firing records thus far established by United States soldiers on a Northern Ireland tank target range.

Corporals Harold Hogfoss of Austin, Minn., and Leroy Agness of Minneapolis, Minn., each at the sights of a 37 millimeter anti-tank rifle, were sending their shots thru the rocking tank silhouette even before they had fired three rounds.

They earned the praises of their commanding officers in the artillery unit.

"I never fired this gun on an outdoor range before, but it's something like shooting ducks," Hogfuss commented.

Agness added: "You've got to lead 'em a little sharper because this isn't a shotgun."

All the men in the unit have been practicing for a week on an indoor range with 22 caliber rifles mounted like anti-tank guns.

Capt. C. E. Streitz of Minneapolis said they like to do that during their evenings almost as well as they like to bowl at home. There are almost nightly competitions.

Other gunners—all Iowans including Roy Dunmore of Clinton, Frederic Drake of Corning, George Bruoessel of Dubuque, and Lewis Raybal of Iowa City—had commendable accuracy. Their last shots went thru the target, which was moving at 15 miles an hour about 600 yards away, almost simultaneously.

BRITONS TELL OF LIFE AS ITALIAN WAR PRISONERS

Got 2 Meals, 5 Cigarets, and 5 Cents Daily.

[By Cable to the New York Times and the Chicago Tribune.]

CAIRO, Egypt, April 12.—British prisoners who have arrived here from Italy in the first contingent under the new exchange plan, sat on hospital cots today and told how it felt to be in a prisoner-of-war camp day after day, often completely out of touch with relatives and friends and with no hope of anything different in the near future.

They also tried to tell how it felt to come back. But words failed them. "God, it's great!" was about the best that they could muster.

They arrived at Cairo yesterday after having traveled from Italy via Smyrna, where they left an Italian vessel and boarded a British ship. A group of Italians who left Alexandria more than a week ago figured in the exchange.

Learn Fall of Ethiopia.

The former prisoners of war have now discovered to their amusement that Italian newspapers were praising "the terrific resistance of our heroic troops in East Africa" three months after Gondar, the last Italian stronghold in Ethiopia, had fallen.

Some Italian soldiers who worked about the camps could speak English. "Most of them were quite kind," one Briton said. "I gathered that none of them thought much of the war."

Several prisoners said that the Canadians ought to be told how much their Red Cross packages had helped. The Italians punctured all canned goods before they distributed the Red Cross parcels. The contents were still edible, however, if eaten without delay.

Confiscate Cards, Books.

Items confiscated from parcels included playing cards and technical books. Novels usually got thru. The men spent most of their time reading or playing with those cards they managed to obtain.

The Sulmona camp, 80 miles east of Rome, where most of these men were imprisoned, was built during the first World war. It consists of brick huts. Eighty men were kept in each hut. Daily issues included two meals, five cigarets, and one lira [a little over 5 cents] in cash, but payments were not always prompt.

Except for two musters a day the men had little to do. The Germans in Libya do everything possible to induce the men to work, but the Italians use only volunteers. Prisoners who had been teachers before the war gave lessons in French and Italian, and in subjects such as wireless, but lack of technical books was a great handicap.

Martha Christens New Liberty Ship the St. Olaf

Baltimore, Md., April 12 [Special].—Elaborate ceremonies customary in peacetime launchings were permitted by the maritime commission today for the launching of the St. Olaf, a 10,500 ton ship built at the Patapsco river yards of the Bethlehem Fairfield shipyard here. Crown Princess Martha of Norway christened the ship with champagne, while a gathering of Norse army and navy officers and hundreds of Norwegians and Americans of Norwegian descent looked on. The ship is one of 1,500 Liberty ships being constructed by the commission and is the 20th launched at this yard.

Friend of the Yanks

[The Friend of the Yanks department will answer questions about the draft and military service, both in the daily columns and personally, if stamped, self-addressed envelopes are sent with the queries. Persons are asked to keep their letters short because of the volume of mail.]

L. P. M. asks: "What is the function of the post exchange service, and is it administered by army or civilian personnel?"

ANSWER: The post exchange is a store that is established in every army camp, making available to the soldier articles of daily life not supplied by the government, such as cigarets, tobacco, various toilet articles, ice cream, soft drinks, etc. Most camps also have mobile exchange units which follow the men on maneuvers and during the last war exchanges were established overseas. The exchanges are not operated for profit. After operating expenses have been deducted, profits are distributed among the company troops or batteries. Each company may use the dividends for any purpose it wishes.

The exchange is under the jurisdiction of the commanding officer of the post. He appoints a post exchange officer who is responsible for stocking the store and the hiring of civilian personnel as clerks.

Mrs. E. M. M. asks: "If a selectee, who has taken out a $10,000 government insurance policy, dies in service, does the beneficiary receive the payments in a lump sum or in monthly payments? What is the amount of the monthly payments?"

ANSWER: If the beneficiary is under 30 years of age at the date of death of the insured, payment will be made in 240 equal monthly instalments at the rate of $5.51 for each $1,000 of insurance. Beneficiaries 30 or more years of age receive a monthly payment as long as they live, the amount depending upon their age on the date of the insured's death.

Mrs. A. Y. writes: "If a man and his wife go to another state on a vacation and then decide to stay in that state where both he and his wife can find employment, must he notify his draft board that he is working in another state? Is it necessary to notify the board that his wife is working?"

ANSWER: Selective service regulations require that a registrant notify his local draft board immediately of any change of address and any new facts which might affect his classification. The fact that a man's wife is working is likely to affect his classification.

L. S. writes: "I am 14 years, 11 months old, 5 feet 8½ inches tall, and weigh 128 pounds. Will I be accepted by the marine corps or navy with my parents consent? I'm not kidding. I really want to get in. Since the outbreak of the war I get bad marks in school and don't eat much. I'm always thinking about it and don't know what to do anymore."

ANSWER: Even with your parents' consent, you will not be accepted for enlistment until you reach your 17th birthday. Meanwhile, you had better eat a little more or else you might be turned down for being underweight.

10,000 BRITONS WARNED TO QUIT FRANCE AT ONCE

U. S. Consulates Give Hint to English.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VICHY, France, April 12.—American consuls today warned British citizens living in France to quit the country and return to England immediately. It is not known if this warning has anything to do with pending developments.

Some 10,000 Britons still live in France. Up to the present they have been financed by American consulates. Any British citizen is able to walk into an American consulate and draw 1,500 francs [about $30] weekly—a sum which enables him to live in France.

This facility was presumably arranged between the British government and Washington, D. C., and clearing arrangements were effected.

It is all off now, according to notices given British residents by American consuls. Each British resident who hitherto has been drawing his funds from American consulates is asked to fill out a questionnaire, failing to do which, his funds from American sources will be entirely cut off.

New Meeting with Laval.

BERLIN, April 12 [from German broadcasts]—(AP).—A DNB dispatch from Vichy reported today that Pierre Laval, former French vice premier, reopened negotiations with Chief of State Marshal Petain and Vice Premier Adm. Jean Darlan during a long conference Saturday.

[Laval previously had been seeking to increase French-German collaboration, which Petain refused, and has been reported as willing to reënter the French cabinet.]

The German news agency dispatch also reported that Henri du Moulin de la Barthete, Petain's confidential secretary, had resigned.

Report Nazi Ultimatum.

LONDON, April 13 [Monday]—(AP).—An Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Zurich, Switzerland, early today said what was regarded as a German ultimatum to Vichy had been published in the Pariser Zeitung.

Demands attributed to Jacques Doriot, pro-Nazi French journalist, were listed as: The Petain regime must take an active rôle against the United States, England, and Russia, dismiss all ministers, generals, and political leaders known to be pro-Anglo-Saxon, and give executive power to those who during the last 18 months pressed for collaboration with the axis.

Further indecision by Vichy "is tantamount to the suicide of France," the journalist said.

Greek King to Go to Egypt from Syria on Way to U. S.

BEIRUT, Syria, April 12 (AP).—King George of Greece was expected to leave today for Egypt, en route to the United States after visiting Greek troops serving with the British in Syria.

IT'S SPRING TIME AND CAPONE TIME IN MERCER, WIS.

That's When Leaves and $100 Bills Unfold.

Mercer, Wis., April 12 [Special].—"When the leaves come out!"

Citizens of this little town of 350 population say it wistfully, and watch the buds, for Al Capone has sent word from his Florida estate that he will be here for his house warming in his new $20,000 home when the leaves come out.

Al Capone, the gangster? They shush you when you ask that here. Mercer likes to think of him as Mr. Capone, the man with the folding money. There will be sad hearts in the homes of a number of prominent residents if no invitation arrives from Capone when the leaves come out. Mercer's view of Capone and his brother, Ralph, has changed during the two summers the Capones have spent at a swank Mercer resort.

$100 Bills Silence Protests.

Women protested when the men with the folding money moved in. But the womenfolk conceded that they might have been a bit hasty when their husbands began coming home with crisp $100 bills that the Capones had spent in their stores.

Hearts have warmed to Al Capone so much that four admirers voted for him for justice of the peace at the election last Tuesday.

Last fall he began building a mansion on Big Martha lake. Its splendor makes the natives' eyes pop. The seven bedroom house is of knotty pine. The interior is of redwood that Capone ordered from California. The two master bedrooms shame a Hollywood dream. The basement boasts not one but two recreation rooms and a cozy bar.

And every one knows that the Capones will bring back the Chinese chef who cooked for them both summers.

Converted to Anchovies.

The Capones were always mystifying the merchants by asking for caviar and anchovies and petit-fours and expensive toilet articles. But the brothers waited patiently until such things were ordered from the city, and paid for them with $100 bills. The merchants kept the items in stock after that, and their wives began using them, expensive tho they were.

When Al Capone's luxurious cottage burned down last summer, he raked thru the embers for more $100 bills. But they had evidently all burned, for the Capones began a new era in Mercer then by paying with $1,000 bills.

Skeptics said the thousand dollar bill hadn't been invented yet. But they'd said the same, the first time, about the hundred dollar bills. So the more credulous merchants accepted the $1,000 notes, sent to the bank, and gave Capone his change the next time he came around.

Mercer is ready. But the leaves aren't even trying.

BRITISH EDUCATORS DRAW UP CHARTER OF CHILDREN'S RIGHTS

LONDON, April 12.—A charter setting forth basic, minimum rights for all children "above considerations of sex, race, nationality, creed or social position" was adopted by the new education fellowship conference here today.

Its six points include the following provisions: The right of every child to proper food, clothing and shelter must henceforth be assumed by the nation as its responsibility; medical treatment must be available for all; all must have equal opportunities in full time schooling, and there must be universal religious training.

Copies of the charter will be sent to all united nations governments.

A woman who served seven years as a teacher in India said that hereafter British children would have to be trained not as imperial leaders but rather as servants of the Indian people.

SPECIALISTS PREVENT BALDNESS

CHICAGO, April 13—"If you are losing your hair or have an annoying scalp disorder, you can be helped," says John E. Warner, noted scalp specialist. "By correcting and eliminating the cause of your trouble we can prevent baldness and give you a normal, healthy scalp. Our services are NOT offered to those completely bald (except cases of alopecia areata) because hair once lost cannot be regrown. Don't wait until disfiguring baldness has permanently ruined your appearance. If your head itches, or your hair is excessively dry or oily and falling, take heed of these signs of approaching baldness and come in for a free hair and scalp examination today. No case is ever accepted unless we are sure you can be helped. Our scientific treatment is superior and more effective because of constant research and study; yet the fees are within the reach of all. Come in today and learn how we can help you just as thousands of others, troubled as as you are, have been helped." There is no charge or obligation for a scalp examination and consultation. Examination and treatment are given in strictest privacy. FEES FOR TREATMENT ARE VERY MODERATE AND ARE PAYABLE AS THE TREATMENTS ARE TAKEN—NOT IN ADVANCE. Hours 10 A. M. to 8 P. M. daily, Saturdays to 6 P. M.

There is a separate department for women. Other Warner offices located in Boston, Hartford, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Detroit, and Los Angeles.

HUTCHINS URGES ACTION TO SHOW BELIEF IN IDEALS

Asserts Equality for All Must Start in U. S.

A demonstration of democracy in action rather than catchwords of the sloganeer was called for yesterday by Robert M. Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago. He spoke in Rockefeller Memorial chapel.

Dr. Hutchins said he could not prescribe the methods by which the war could be won, but explained that the ways in which it could be lost. One of these, he said, would be by following Wendell L. Willkie's 1940 Presidential campaign slogan—"to be strong we must be productive."

Must Have Intelligence.

"It does not follow that if we are productive we will be strong," Dr. Hutchins said. "Equipment does not guarantee victory. We also must have the inteligence and character to use it."

In calling for a democracy at work and worth dying for, he condemned the "You can't do business with Hitler," slogan, and the plea that "we should have to fight Japan in order to get rubber for our tires." Even a fight for survival, he said, is not enough.

May Propose to Buy Survival.

"Those who are animated only by a desire to survive," Dr. Hutchins said, "may sooner or later propose that it is better to buy survival than to die for it. Those who think we are fighting for business and tires may sometime propose that it would be better business to find somebody else to do business with and that it would be cheaper to buy rubber from the Japanese than to fight thru total war to total victory for the privilege of buying it from the British and Dutch."

Dr. Hutchins declared that democracy needing demonstration to a fuller degree is based on principles of human dignity and acknowledgment of interdependence of persons with "law and government established to help each of us in our own lives meet the "immense want of his rational and spiritual nature. Men must be free to exercise those powers which make them men.

Must Show We Believe Them.

"These things we must believe if we are not to lose the war. We must do more than believe them; we must show that we believe them.

"All men, since they are spiritual as well as rational, are burdened with conscience. They do not need to be told that war calls for equality of sacrifice and that neither labor nor capital can be allowed to extract profit from a process which is sending thousands of men to their deaths. They do not need to be told that racial and religious discriminations in the army, navy, and war industries is undemocratic."

Dr. Hutchins said the effort to establish a democratic society now would neither be expensive nor divert the country from its war effort.

STRUCK BY AUTO IN SKOKIE ROAD, DIES IN HOSPITAL

Stephen Richards, 714 West 60th place, died in Evanston hospital yesterday a few hours after he was struck by an automobile in Skokie road, a half mile north of Willow road. He was 50 years old. Raymond Larsen, 20, 4715 Palmer street, was the driver.

Anthony Cunico, 65, of 1627 State street, Lockport, was killed when he was struck by an automobile driven by Martin Tondini, 32, of route 2, Lockport. The accident happened near Tondini's home while Cunico, a retired storekeeper, was walking along the road.

The Rev. James Farrell, 46, of 4949 Patterson avenue, and his mother, Mary, were injured when the car he was driving left the road on route 66 near Dwight, in Livingston county. The Rev. Mr. Farrell is an assistant at St. Bartholomew's church.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday, 217 persons had been killed in Cook county automobile accidents since Jan. 1. Of this total, 174 lost their lives in Chicago where 5,586 persons were injured.

Hungry Greeks Hardly Able to Unload Food Supplies

JERUSALEM, April 12 (AP).—Greek stevedores were so hungry and exhausted they were hardly able to unload 7,000 tons of Australian wheat at the Greek port of Piraeus, crew members of the Swedish freighter Radmanso said today The axis and united nations arranged safe passage for the cargo.

STEAL $300 GOLD FROM DENTIST.

Burglars who forced the front door of his office at 2001 West 51st street, took gold valued at $300, Dr. Ralph R. Creviston, a dentist, reported to the New City police last night.

THE QUESTION.

Were you ever in a position where you had to call for help?

WHERE ASKED.

Madison and Canal streets.

THE ANSWERS.

Elizabeth Middleton, Downers Grove—My little sister and I were standing on the same small stepladder picking cherries. The ladder slipped and we both went down—only I could barely touch the ground with my tiptoes. A strong branch caught in my long hair and I hung there until my sister could forget her own bruises to answer my distress calls.

Del P. Shroyer, apprentice to aviation machinist, 506 7th street, Lincoln, Ill.—Another boy and I were fishing from a small canoe in a lake in Canada. When I got a bite I jerked the line and the canoe rolled over. In no time at all I was all tangled up in my own line. My friend came to my rescue when I yelled to him that I could use his help.

John Downs, renting agent, 7726 South Shore drive—There was a leak in the roof so I climbed to the top of our two story house. After I got up there the ladder blew down. I called to any one in hearing distance—my brother in particular—for about 20 minutes. He finally heard me and put the ladder back in place.

Frances Reinsch, Downers Grove—It doesn't seem like any one should need help to change a dress, but this one had a zipper in back. I had it half off when something undereneath caught in the zipper. I managed to get one arm free, only to be more uncomfortable. My girl friend had to release me.

Rose D. Bubak, switchboard operator, 6650 South Seeley avenue—My arms were full of fragile packages as I walked down the outside stairway. In some way one of my high heels caught in a knothole on the step. It was impossible for me to keep my balance if I stooped over to put the packages down, so I had to call a neighbor to remove my slipper.

Walter Puhr, stock boy, 6619 South Justine street—Even if we bailed water from our leaky rowboat as fast as we could, we wouldn't make it to shore, so my friend and I joined in a duet of "helps." Two other boys on shore heard our calls and rowed out just before we were ready to give up and go down.

GUARDS: DUTIES OF ARMY SCOUT OUTLINED HERE

Intelligence, Keen Sight, Endurance Needed.

BY BOB BECKER.

Scouting is one of the most important branches of modern military service, especially in rough, mountainous, or jungle areas such as our soldiers face in Australia and many other sections of the globe. A commander who doesn't know the position of the enemy and his movements is under an almost insurmountable disadvantage. To get the information to prevent such predicaments, army officers depend upon reliable scouts.

The best definition of a scout is a soldier trained in the use of ground and cover, in movement from cover to cover, in markmanship, in observation, and in accurate reporting of the results of his observations.

Some of Qualifications.

A good scout should have intelligence, endurance and keen sight, be self-reliant, courageous, and know how to travel across any type of country.

The scout's equipment is about the same as that of any infantryman, but on most missions he may carry a compass, tracer ammunition, flashlight, field glasses, wire cutters, canvas gloves, pencil and notebooks. Most of a scout's observations are made from a prone position, and he must know how to traverse various types of terrain without being observed.

Points to Remember.

Members of the MacArthur Guards should remember these points about scouting:

1. The function of a good scout is to learn much, observe everything, but not be seen.

2. Make no quick movements when in one position in any type of protective cover.

3. Usually there are two scouts for each squad, but all members should know how to scout, record what is seen, and to get back with the desired information quickly.

4. A scout is thoro. From concealment he examines strips of ground parallel to his front, with special attention to all spots which might offer concealment to an enemy.

TINY RAILROADS' SHOW TO OPEN ON WEDNESDAY

John Goehst, 58 East Bellevue place, 32 years old, oiled 18 railroad cars in 15 minutes yesterday. He set no record, however. They were model railroad cars which he will enter in the sixth annual model rail show of the Model Railroad Builders Guild of Chicago Wednesday in the Sherman hotel.

Mr. Goehst, a lighting engineer, has made a hobby of building model railroads for the last six years. He has 200 feet of track which occupies a space 35 feet long and 15 feet wide in the attic of his home.

Another interesting feature of the show will be a model collection entitled "History of American Transportation" which will be entered by Frank W. Bering, manager of the Hotel Sherman.

MacARTHUR GUARDS ENROLLMENT BLANK

Any young man who wishes to join the MacArthur Guards and follow the course of instruction may do so by filling out the enrollment blank and mailing it to this newspaper. All those who sign up for the course will be given a special MacArthur Guard button, and those who complete the course will be awarded a MacArthur medal.

ARREST RAPIST WITHIN 12 HOURS AFTER ATTACK

A rapist, 20 years old, was seized by police yesterday, less than 12 hours after he had attacked a 13 year old girl in the presence of her brother, 7 years old, in the Jefferson Park district. The prisoner confessed after he had been identified by his victim.

Benjamin Baldwin.

The confessed rapist is Benjamin Baldwin, 20, 5538 North Sayre avenue. He told the police that his home was in Fairchild, Wis., but that since last July he has been living at the Sayre avenue address with an aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Timm. He is employed as a machinist by an envelope company.

The prisoner was seized by Detectives Herbert Demke and Barney Komie when he went to the station yesterday morning to report he had been held up by two men and forced to drive to Indiana with a load of stolen tires. When the detectives looked at his car, they discovered it answered the description given by the girl as that used by her attacker.

Baldwin said he told his relatives that he had been held up, as an excuse for coming home late. They made him go to the police to report the robbery.

IDENTIFY BODY FOUND IN LAKE.

A body recovered from the lake at 49th street yesterday was identified as that of Ralph Bitner, 50 years old, 6628 Kimbark avenue, a freight handler.

ARMY AND NAVY GOAL PLACED AT 9 TO 10 MILLIONS

Hershey Tells of Plan for Survey on Skills.

The army and navy eventually will require between 9 and 10 million men, Brig. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, national director of selective service, said yesterday. He added that millions of others who are workers must apply their skills to winning the war or lay down their tools and fight.

Gen. Hershey spoke on the University of Chicago Round Table broadcast from Washington. With him on the program were Leo M. Cherne of the Research Institute of America, and Neil H. Jacoby, secretary of the university, connected with the school of business.

Gen. Hershey said that dependency alone will not provide deferment when allowances become available to care for dependents.

Issue One of Replacement.

"What a man is doing becomes increasingly important," he said. "If a man is working in war industry he will be deferred only if he cannot be replaced and also has dependents."

A forthcoming selective service occupational questionnaire, he said, will provide a national inventory of skills. By means of the questionnaire, he said, the government hopes to uncover latent skills among millions of workers not now in war industry.

"The demands of the war," Hershey asserted, "require that man power be allocated on a central scheme. Men cannot be allowed to choose their jobs. At the same time no man will be taken from an essential job until he can be replaced. Production must go on. But business must begin now to train workers for jobs at present performed by men eligible for arms.

Sees Chance of Conscription.

"The pressure of man power demands must not be allowed to force wages up and start plants bidding for workers. In such a situation it might be necessary to institute compulsory allocation or conscription of labor but it is the government's policy to avoid compulsion so long as possible. Nevertheless, we must keep our plans abreast operations, for nothing is worse than to be confronted with a situation before plans for meeting it have been carefully prepared.

"As the pressure increases we hope to protect both family life and industry. However, in these times it is not possible to permit the security of individuals to stand in the way of security of the nation."

Cherne remarked that the calling of 9 to 10 million men will put a squeeze play on nonwar industry which either will force plants to shut down or cause them to turn to war production.

PRINTING UNIONS, EMPLOYERS JOIN IN WAR COUNCIL

Employers in the graphic arts industry and members of five printing trades unions thruout the country were represented yesterday in the Morrison hotel when an organization was completed to protect the mutual interest of employer and employé in the trade and for assisting in the prosecution of the war.

The new organization will be known as the Graphic Arts Emergency council. Officers and a board of directors were elected during the day's conferences.

Officers elected by the council are: Chairman, W. T. Simpson, Louisville, Ky., representing the National Gravure Printers' association; co-chairman, Claude Baker, Washington, D. C., president of the International Typographical union; secretary-treasurer, I. T. Alderson, St. Louis, Mo., of the Printers' National association; and chairman of the board of directors, John F. Cuneo, Chicago.

John Maher, head of a Chicago printing company bearing his name, was chairman of a group representing employers, and George L. Berry, president of the International Pressmen's and Assistants' union and former United States senator from Tennessee, was chairman of the union group.

NO NEW RADIOS; THESE TIPS MAY REVIVE OLD ONE

OPA Tells How to Get Better Reception.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Production of radio receivers for civilian use will be halted by the War Production board April 22 so the radio industry can devote its full effort to military production. Mindful that sets will have to serve for the duration, the consumer division of the Office of Price Administration has made some suggestions toward improving reception and making receivers last longer.

These hints follow:

"Make certain that console radios are not placed with their backs flat against the wall. Tubes, transformers, and resistors heat up, and free circulation of air in the sets is required to prevent overheating. Leave an inch or so between the cabinet and wall.

Check Cord, Plug.

"If your receiver is raucous, crackles or produces static, try the following:

"Check the set's electric cord and plug. The plug should fit firmly into the wall socket, and the wires leading to it should be completely intact. Check connections also on nearby electrical appliances and lamps. Loose connections on nearby gadgets may cause static. Sometimes moving a nearby appliance or lamp farther away will improve reception.

"If the radio crackles, check the aerial and ground wires to determine whether they are broken in any place or are rubbing against other wires or trees, or metals.

"If you have not set up a ground connection and your radio is raucous, fix up one by connecting a wire from your radio's ground post to a water or steam pipe. Do not use your gas pipe as a ground.

May Be Good Tube.

"If you have an outside aerial, make sure that it is equipped with a lightning arrester. Even small static discharges—not lightning—may ruin a set unless they are by-passed by the arrester.

"Check the set's tubes to see that they fit firmly in their sockets. Occasionally what may seem to be a bad tube may be a good tube that merely is loose in its socket.

"If your radio's performance is still unsatisfactory, call a reliable service man."

SKIPPER FREED ON $1,000 BAIL IN MUTINY SLAYING

New York, April 12 (AP).—Capt. Hilton Rowe, skipper of a British ship which is in the New York harbor, was arraigned today on a charge of manslaughter in the slaying yesterday of a Chinese seaman during a mutiny over shore leave. Magistrate Abner Surpless set his hearing for tomorrow in Brooklyn felony court and released him on bail of $1,000.

Police said Capt. Rowe killed Ling Young Chai when Ling and 11 other Chinese crew members rioted aboard the ship and threatened its officers with marlin spikes. The 11 surviving Chinese, who were subdued by white crew members, were held on charges of disorderly conduct.

Thirty-seven other Chinese crewmen who tried to escape last night from another vessel in the harbor were captured by police and also held on charges of disorderly conduct.

GOOD NEWS FROM THE PRODUCTION FRONT!

★ General Motors is in mass production on important war materials!

★ Production is going up and costs to the Government are coming down!

★ The same engineering knowledge, mass production technique and "know-how" that produced high quality automobiles and trucks by the millions have now been successfully applied to the production of aviation engines, Navy Diesel engines, tanks, guns, airplane parts and ammunition.

★ General Motors has undertaken the production of more than 10% of our country's requirements of all war materials fabricated from metal.

Here's the Way We Went at the Job—

Starting in June, 1940, when the Government initiated the Defense Program, General Motors adopted these policies:

1 Active co-operation with our Government in planning the production of war products—acceptance of trial orders—engineering co-operation—and mass production of such products for which we have or can get necessary production equipment.

2 Endeavor to obtain contracts for the more complicated war materials in the production of which the Corporation's engineering and manufacturing experience will be of greatest value to the country.

3 Since General Motors' capacity for the manufacture of metal products is about 10% of the country's capacity, endeavor to get orders and plan to produce at least this same percentage of the country's requirements for this type of war material.

4 Obtain orders for war products for every plant city and every plant. Allot the production where it can be produced with the greatest efficiency and the least new floor space and machinery.

5 Solicit and accept contracts of any type proposed by Government agencies—competitive bids—cost plus fixed fee—fixed price with provision for renegotiation after cost and production experience.

6 Sub-contract component parts for all war materials to dependable and competent contractors who have equipment that can be used to produce such parts.

7 Utilize existing buildings and equipment to the limit. Request new facilities from the Government only when absolutely necessary.

After Pearl Harbor, This Additional Policy Was Adopted:

8 Any machines or materials General Motors now has and cannot use in its war production will be made available to any other manufacturer who can use them in war production.

Here's What We Have Accomplished—

CONTRACTS IN HAND FOR WAR PRODUCTS

One-third of the machine guns.
More than one-third of the Army trucks.
More than half of the Navy's Diesel engines.
Two-fifths of the aviation engines.
More than one-fourth of the tanks.
Three separate types of complete airplanes.
Numerous parts for planes produced by others.
Guns and gun parts of many sizes, from 30 calibre to 5 inch.
Shells and cartridge cases.

Over one thousand orders and contracts for war materials.

SHIPMENTS OF WAR PRODUCTS

1941—First quarter	$ 56,619,168
Second quarter	75,180,914
Third quarter	115,879,493
Fourth quarter	158,469,698

EMPLOYMENT ON WAR WORK

Factory workers—skilled tool and die employees	13,689
Others	121,574
	135,263
Engineers, Process men, tool designers, supervisors, factory
Clerks, accountants and managers	35,335
Total working on war products	170,598

Total employment on war production by October will be greater than total employment on both commercial and war work was in 1941. This time next year it will be 50% above our previous peak employment.

FACILITIES ON WAR WORK

71 plants working on war work.
14 plants being retooled for war work.
3 plants leased to other producers.
5 plants awaiting completion of negotiations of contracts.
8 new plants under construction or negotiation.
54,873 machine tools working or being rebuilt or retooled for war production.
16,950 not adapted for our war work and made available to other war material contractors.

SOME OF THE MAJOR WAR MATERIALS WE ARE PRODUCING

Allison Aircraft Engines	Diesel Engines for Tanks, Submarines and Trucks	Airplane Fuel Pumps	Fire Control Equipment	Ambulances	Aviation Spark Plugs
Army Trucks	Tank Gun Mounts	Electric Motors	Aircraft Cannon	Black-Out Lamps	Machine Guns
Pratt & Whitney Engines	Anti-Aircraft Gun Mounts	Aneroid Valves	Automatic Pilots	Fuses	Radio Receivers
Machine Tools	Airplane Propellers	Tanks	Batteries	Marine Instruments	Airplane Landing Gears
Bearings	Cartridge Cases	Airplane Wings and Parts	Shells and Shot	Oil Coolers and Radiators	Armored Cars
Generators and Regulators		Anti-Aircraft Cannon	Tank Cannon	Carbines	Naval Gun Housings

MANY OF THESE PRODUCTS ARE BEING EXHIBITED IN FORMER AUTOMOBILE SHOWROOMS IN THE GENERAL MOTORS BLDG., DETROIT, MICH.

PRODUCTION FOR VICTORY IS OUR JOB

General Motors is already far enough into the war production job to have demonstrated that our American production methods and our American ways of doing business will out-produce our Axis enemies.

Price reductions of many millions of dollars have been made to the Government on contracts as lower costs have been achieved. Similar price reductions will continue to be made as long as conditions permit the same aggressive and uninterrupted action that has been going on in past months.

The entire General Motors organization—workmen and management alike—is dedicated to the single purpose of producing more tanks, airplanes, army trucks, engines, guns and ammunition to help win this war.

"Our Country! In her intercourse with foreign nations may she always be in the right; but our country, right or wrong."
—Stephen Decatur.

VOTE TOMORROW.

Primary day tomorrow comes in the midst of a war which is being fought by us to preserve the rights of free men. Among the most important of those rights is that of choosing the public officials who enact our laws and administer them. Tomorrow the voters of Illinois are privileged to go to the polls to select the candidates who are to run for office in November.

We have gladly sent our sons and brothers to fight for free government and some of them have already died for it. Those of us at home can be charged with a monstrous indifference to the meaning of the war if we neglect now to play our part as citizens.

Good government is always important but it is doubly so in time of war when the future of the nation itself depends upon the choice of capable and honorable men for public office. The citizen who neglects his opportunity to vote in tomorrow's primary is advertising how little he values his rights as a free man and how indifferent he is to the issues and the outcome of the war.

AN OBLIGATION.

This country has been extremely generous in responding to the appeals that have risen from many lands in a war torn world. We have contributed money, food, clothing, and medical supplies to stricken countries, some of which have become our associates in the war, and others with which we are not allied. There have been campaigns in behalf of Britain, Greece, Russia, China, and the Netherlands, to name a few. Now there is a call upon us to do something for our own.

The people of the Philippines have fought with us and some of them have died with us. The flag still flies over the fortresses of Manila bay, and American and Filipino guerrilla forces are still operating in some of the islands. But the Philippines have gone under and large areas have been devastated. There must be hardship and disease in many sectors.

The Japanese conqueror has not shown himself too considerate of the laws of war, but humanitarian instincts cannot be completely lacking in him. Our government should find out thru the international Red Cross or thru the good offices of a neutral nation whether there is anything that we can do to alleviate hardship among the loyal Filipinos. If medical supplies, for example, are required we should provide them. Neutral ships can be chartered, as was done to move supplies to Greece, and the necessary relief sent into the islands. The Japanese may remember how this country responded with contributions of 11 million dollars after the earthquake of 1923.

The Filipinos in the comradeship of war have laid a claim upon us which merits consideration before that of any other people. We who have been so open handed to all others cannot ignore them.

A USEFUL SERVICE.

The colleges and universities of the nation can make an extremely useful contribution to the prosecution of the war by presenting the kind of specialized training which few industries and no public agencies are able to provide. The University of Chicago was one of the first to determine the kind of specialized instruction most urgently needed and to provide it. At present it is training 1,100 persons in skills which can be applied directly to the war effort.

The university has been careful not to embark indiscriminately on a variety of courses with defense titles, but with small pertinence to the war. Its 13 courses, five of which are being repeated at the request of the war department, are all intended to prepare personnel rapidly to fill gaps as they occur in war production and essential military operations.

Courses in map production and in the preparation of maps from aerial photographs, in radio and micro-waves, in geometrical optics, lens design, and optical shop work, in the spectographic analysis of flaws in steel and other materials, and in office management are all of direct value to the armed services or to production. Last week 50 women completed the course in office management and all had two or more offers of employment in war industry. There were 1,200 applications for places in the course and facilities for accepting only 50, so that the most promising applicants could be chosen.

The university has not engaged in a mass vocational training program, to which its resources are not adapted, but has undertaken a qualitative program of instruction which may break bottlenecks caused by lack of trained specialists.

After war was declared, President Hutchins said, "We have stood for liberal education and pure research. What the country must have now is vocational training and applied research." He has translated his words into action. The university is making a distinguished contribution to the war effort.

PLASTIC PLANES.

The navy has taken delivery on the first plane, a training type, built largely of plywood bonded with recently developed plastic glues. The airplane production program is facing a shortage both of light metals and of metal working tools, and it is predicted that the so-called plastic planes may end this bottleneck. One advantage of the new material, if it fulfills the claims of its proponents, is that it will make available for airplane production the equipment and labor force of the woodworking industry.

The new material is said to be 20 per cent stronger than steel, weight for weight. It resists fire nearly twice as well as steel. It is unaffected by corrosive acids, fuels, or oxidation due to weather. A bullet which penetrates makes a clean hole instead of a flowering, jagged one, as it does in metal. These are not the properties of wood. The plastic bonded plywood is, in fact, an entirely new material. It should be and must be considered as such.

There has been a good deal of loose talking and thinking about synthetic materials. It has been a commonplace, for example, to say that synthetic rubber is made from coal and limestone, or from petroleum. In the strict sense, of course, this is true, but the statement may lead to the unwarranted conclusion that a substance made from abundant and cheap raw materials will itself be abundant and cheap.

The carbon atom is the most useful building block in chemistry. It can be fabricated with other elements into an extremely wide variety of complex products. But this fabrication takes delicate machinery and processes, great skill, and frequently the employment of chemical reagents which are far more difficult to obtain than the coal or petroleum that may supply the essential carbon building blocks.

Synthetic materials, of which the plastics are among the most important, offer almost miraculous technical advances, but to speak of the products as made of coal and limestone or of wood and glue ignores the tremendous burden that this new magic often places on technology.

JAPAN'S COLONIAL PROBLEM.

Japan's conquests in the Dutch and British possessions were made easier by the circumstance that the native populations concerned had no great love for the European nations which ruled them. Some, at least, of the natives coöperated with the invader and the vast majority seem to have been pretty thoroly indifferent.

The Japanese must now administer these territories and the problems involved must be perplexing to Tokio. The 40 millions in Java and the other millions in Siam, Burma, Sumatra, and the other colonies had a low standard of living, but such as it was it was maintained by world trade and in particular by trade with America and Europe. Only America and Europe, as was pointed out once before in these columns, can use the rubber, and tin, and other products of the colonies in the quantities which are available year after year. Japan cannot begin to absorb the surpluses which she now has in her nominal possession. How is she going to employ the millions who formerly made their livelihoods producing the raw materials which went into the soap, the automobiles, the sweets, the radios of America and Europe?

Japan can't process the stuff for lack of factories and can't build storehouses big enough to hold it. More especially, Japan has little or nothing to give in exchange for it. The wants of the individual native are small, but they are insistent and in the aggregate are large. The colonies have depended upon European and American sources for supplies of many sorts. Japan is having difficulty meeting the needs of her own people for essential consumers' goods. How is she going to find surpluses to send to her new subjects when she hasn't enough for herself?

Every month that passes will increase Japan's difficulties of administration. If the colonial peoples were dissatisfied with their condition under the British and Dutch, they will find greater causes for dissatisfaction with a régime which cannot buy from them or sell to them.

The life of the natives before the Japanese invasion was anything but enviable, but to say that is not to say that it was as bad as it could become. Under Japanese administration the standard of living can be expected to undergo a very sharp degradation no matter how eager the Japanese may be to ingratiate themselves with their new subjects. At the end of this war the Javanese, Burmese, and the rest can be expected to demand a much larger measure of independence than they have enjoyed in the past, and it should be granted them; but they should find themselves eager, also, to come to terms of friendly coöperation with their best customers.

KEEP THE SILLINESS IN WASHINGTON.

A few days before the no trouser cuff edict became effective one Chicago store had in its tailoring department, awaiting alteration, some 2,800 suits whose owners had rushed in to purchase them while they could still get them with cuffs. Because it was announced that safety razor blades would probably be rationed, a couple of million men thruout the nation now have on the closet shelf at home a supply of razor blades that they won't use for a year or so. Some housewives haven't used up the sugar which they bought at the outbreak of the war in 1939. Mr. Henderson has demonstrated time and again that he need only hint that the price of a commodity in general consumption is too high to see the price go still higher on a wave of panicky buying inspired by this statement.

All of this hampers the war effort to some degree. Still worse, it is a severe reflection on the intelligence and self-control of the American people. With the exception of tire rationing, the effects of which are still not generally felt, none of the restrictions on civilian supply has had any important effect on the way of life of the average American family. It really doesn't make a bit of difference whether a man has cuffs on his pants or not. He has to turn in a used container tube to buy a new tube of shaving cream, but he would be just as well shaved if he reverted to the soap mug that his father used.

That some of the regulations promulgated in Washington have been silly, or trivial, or badly handled is beside the point. The people who are doing silly things down there will eventually be called to account for their mistakes. There are enough silly people in Washington without everybody in the country trying to match their behavior.

Editorial of the Day

WHY FREE BROWDER?

[Milwaukee Journal.]

American communists are currently using the cry of "Free Browder" as a rallying slogan. Representative Marcantonio, who frequently plays the communists' game since they have the voting balance of power in his particular New York City district shouts the slogan.

Earl Browder was convicted of passport fraud. He, like most American communists, believes the "cause" to be superior to American law. Browder, like most American communists, believes in violating the law when it gets in the way. He did just that.

He was duly convicted and sentenced.

Then Germany attacked Russia and now we are at war with Germany, too. Immediately the American communists redoubled their cry of "Free Browder." We see no connection between the heroic fight of the Russians in their homeland against our common Nazi enemy and the freeing or detention of a Kansas born American communist who has chosen to put Russian and communist interests above American interests and who willfully violated laws of the United States—reasonable laws which the rest of us are supposed to obey.

Just because Russia is our "ally," she is not remaking her internal society to suit us, nor is she disregarding her own laws. Nor are we making such alterations.

But American communists must yap about something. Now it's "Free Browder."

BROODING OVER THE PHILIPPINES.

Carl Sandburg has twanged his free verse lyre about Chicago as "hog butcher and freight handler for the nation," but one could easily think of handsomer epithets. For example, this city might also be called "mother of architects and mighty builders," for its reputation in that profession is international. We are reminded of this as we mourn over the loss of the Philippines, where Chicago architects have had almost a monopoly in governmental building.

* * *

Early in this century the elder Daniel H. Burnham, architect laureate of the Columbian exposition, was invited to the Philippines to suggest ideas for modern city development. His visit bore fruit in the official plans for Manila and Baguio, developed in detail by Edward H. Bennett and the late Peirce Anderson of Chicago. [The latter was the designer of a familiar ornament of our sky line—the Wrigley building.]

* * *

Bennett and Anderson were followed by the late William E. Parsons, who devoted nine years to the development and realization of the Manila-Baguio plans. The last named city was made to order in the cool hills of northern Luzon. Originally intended to be a summer capital, it became a resort center. Parsons returned from the Philippines to join the Chicago firm of Bennett and Frost, architects and city planners. He died in 1939.

* * *

About two years ago Harry Talfourd Frost of that firm went out to the Philippines as architectural adviser to the president. He planned the development called Quezon City, on the outskirts of Manila, which was originally a low-cost housing project. Its scope was enlarged to include a new administrative center, or capitol area, a university campus, and a permanent exposition. Construction of various buildings was in its first phase when the Japanese invasion began.

* * *

Frost left Manila about two months before Pearl Harbor and has returned to the United States. For additional information on this and related subjects, see his article, "Architectural Pearls of the Philippines," in the April-May bulletin of the Illinois Society of Architects.

PEDDLER OF APRIL.

The wind blows bleak; the clouds loom low;
The stones of the street stretch grim;
But here's a fellow who likes them so—
What's a dismal day to him,

Whose basket twinkles with emerald-leaved
And amethyst-petaled charm?
Who bears the beauty of shining-sheaved
April under his arm?

"Two bits a bunch." He smiles and snuffles,
And stolidly waits your choice;
Then patiently down the pavement shuffles,
Vagrant of eye and voice.

But out of the bleak wind sunshine breaks,
And out of the clouds a bird
Sings sudden, and from its feathers shakes
A magical woodland word

That hints of hillsides warm and dim,
And green woods sweet with gloom,
Where, tucked in the clearings, purple and prim,
The first new violets bloom.

"Two bits a bunch." And how should he know
The worth of such merchandise
In priceless memories of long ago
To the homesick heart that buys,

Or guess what heaven he barters here
At less than a song for cost
To the lover of summer and all its cheer
Who has loved, perchance, and lost?

Ferdinand the Cat Smells a Rat.

"I say, my girl," said Ferdinand, my silver tabby, "I have a date tonight with that redhead. How about giving me a good brushing? She always remarks about how well groomed I am."

"You certainly will look a lot better when the hair on your west side grows in again," I remarked. "Right now you appear as tho the rats made a nest in your fur."

"That kid," muttered Ferdinand. "He laughed so hard he dropped his bubble gum on me. And as a barber, he certainly makes a good butcher. But speaking of rats, did you know you have one out in the garage?"

"Well, what are you doing about it?" I asked sharply.

He chuckled with glee. "I'm carrying on a war of nerves. I know old Schicklgruber is there and he knows that I know, because every time I catch a glimpse of him he looks a little leaner and grimmer. And one of these days I'll pull up my panzers and shake the life out of him. And then I shall lay him at your feet and you will cry, 'My hero!'"

"You've got me confused with the redhead," I said.

"Ah, the redhead," he smiled and added with a self-satisfied smirk. "I wish my old pal Mr. Devlin could see me now. I'll bet that guy always gets the 'brush-off'." Eugenia Gerlach Stein.

LINES ON THE CUFF.

We've had you with us quite a while,
Time was when you were just our style;
But nowadays we've come to feel
You're just a bit run down at heel.
You've got to change! Get off the floor
And you can help us win this war!
Away to aid our fighting men,
And don't turn up 'til you know when!

SCIATICA, A PUZZLING AILMENT.

SCIATICA presents a real challenge to the physician. Unfortunately, there are scores of possible causes of pain which shoots along the course of the sciatic trunk and its many branches. Sometimes the structure itself is involved and occasionally we will be dealing with a neuralgia.

But where is this "cable" and what does it supply? It is one of the largest nerves in the body. It leaves the spinal column low down in the neighborhood of the sacrum and travels down the back of the thigh. It sends twigs to the muscles of the thighs, legs, and feet.

There may be distress whenever pressure forces one of the cushions of soft material [which lie between the segments of the backbone] against the canal housing the spinal cord. In addition, any abnormality in the scaroiliac joint, which is formed at the junction of the sacrum and the ileum, will further complicate the picture.

More often than not, however, constitutional factors are responsible. For example, abcesses about the teeth or the tonsils, ulceration within the intestines, or pus producing areas along the urinary tract or within the prostate—one or more may be guilty. Among food possibilities we may think of mineral deficiencies, or any lack of vitamins which will impoverish the nerves and make them cry out with pain. Growths or deformities of the bones, muscles, or ligaments about the hips, including the lower back, may give rise to discomfort in this region. Finally, poison from alcohol, lead, or arsenic must not be forgotten.

One very common source of trouble lies in the unequal length of the legs. Even tho no accident has occurred, the right may be a half inch or more shorter than the left. Nevertheless, the individual stands erect. If this has become a fixed custom we must recognize that the muscles, particularly of the pelvis, have been subjected to a strain for years.

As the reserve of the body fails, the "stretch" will begin to take its toll. If accurate measurements show a difference of more than a quarter inch, it is highly desirable that some procedure be adopted to equalize length. One shoe may be built up to the desired height. Many a patient has obtained complete relief as soon as this has been done.

Another culprit is fibrositis. Small, firm, scarlike nodules may develop in the muscles, set up spasm [contraction] and occasion intense suffering. Here there is nothing quite so effective as vigorous and persistent massage, which should follow the application of heat. The warming process should occupy at least a half hour. The parts are then kneaded deeply for the purpose of "ironing out" and "breaking up" the adhesions. To permit more extensive manipulation, if need be, temporary comfort may be brought about by the injection of a local anesthetic.

In stubborn cases of sciatica, an X-ray examination is essential. Films must be made in several positions so that the sacroiliac joint will show as well as the lower portion of the spine.

CUTLERY CURE.

J. F. writes: Does the use of a case knife help to reduce swelling after a bump?

REPLY.

This is an old custom which has been discarded—probably because it was too hard on the family silverware. The practice originated, no doubt, because a metallic object feels cool [and hence soothing] when applied to a bruised area.

COMPLICATION.

T. R. writes: What is a strangulated hernia?

REPLY.

A hernia occurs whenever a loop of bowel passes thru an abdominal opening. When a kink prevents the forward passage of the intestinal contents, we call it "strangulation."

LIKELY.

J. K. writes: Is it natural to gain weight after a thyroid operation?

REPLY.

Yes—back to normal or even slightly above. If poundage becomes excessive, however, your physician may wish to prescribe thyroid extract.

SERVICE INDUCTION.

Hubbard Woods, Ill., April 6.—I wish to bring to your attention a certain phase of selective service, the "immediate induction plan," in the hope that this obviously unfair and unreasonable practice may be stopped.

Perhaps it does save some money and time to induct a man into the army immediately after he passes his physical examination, but surely all American citizens should be given a few days time to decently settle their various civilian affairs before leaving, perhaps never to return. While a few men, such as men who must arrange for the sale of privately owned business, may succeed in getting a furlough, what about the average jobholder? What is he to do about arranging his affairs beforehand when he doesn't even know if he will pass the physical examination. Why must the opportunity of setting his house in order be left to the decision of arbitrary army authorities at the reception center? Certainly only an unemployed vagrant could enter the army without needing to settle any private affairs at all.

No better way could be found to bolster the morale of the draftees and their families than to change this unfair practice and give every man at least a week's time to get his affairs ready. Perhaps the solution is to give him his physical examination well in advance of the time his order number is due to be called. In this way, the step from civilian to army life would be freed from much unnecessary confusion. A. B. K.

CITY EMPLOYES AT THE RACE TRACK.

Chicago, April 8.—As another racing season approaches, we believe this an opportune time to bring to the attention of city and county officials, as well as race track operators and the public, the ridiculous spectacle which has prevailed in the past of city and county employes working in the mutuel department, depriving other men of a livelihood and drawing their salary from the taxpayers at the same time.

Why aren't they at work on their regular jobs? What are they being paid for? Why do the track officials employ them?

A PUZZLE IN SHORTAGES.

Chicago, April 7.—I notice by the papers that there is enough sugar to go around, the question being that of transportation. And just yesterday they told us there will be a shortage in coal—reason, that of transportation—and to buy all the coal you'll need now, so you won't get caught short.

But don't try that same plan in buying sugar. If you buy a couple more pounds than your immediate needs, you'll go to jail or be fined. JUDGE P. COOK.

LABOR BOTTLENECKS.

Chicago, April 7.—When defense work first opened I was not admitted into it because I could not produce a birth certificate. The rural county in which I was born did not keep such records then. My grandparents, parents, and myself [the same with my wife] have not spent so much as an hour out of the continental United States. Bottleneck No. 1.

The census bureau assisted me in this at a recent date.

The excuse now is that I have not worked on machine tools or at the machine trade for two years. Being out of work, I finally sought whatever I could find. Two years ago I was more or less fresh at the machine trade. I might overcome this obstacle by attending a night technical school, but just as I am about to enroll I find another bottleneck. Tools essential and needed in the machine trade cannot be purchased without a priority number. A priority number cannot be obtained unless one is working in defense. Most defense plants do not wish to accept an employé without tools.

Either the defense industry does not need men as badly as they pretend, or there are too many restrictions which cause bottlenecks for too many men the industry does need. READER.

HOSPITABLE CHICAGO.

Chicago, April 9.—It is very gratifying to me to learn that my contributions of books and magazines to the USO are being so genuinely appreciated. The following is a letter I received from a boy at Navy pier:

"Dear Madam: You are probably astonished at receiving a letter from Navy pier, but I chanced to run across a magazine with your name on it. Because I enjoyed reading it so much, I thought I should thank you. It means a lot to a fellow in the service to know that folks care about entertaining him in his leisure hours.

"It seemed to me when I first went out to see Chicago that the people here were really 'super.' You treat us as humans. We are not, as in some cities, frowned upon. After all, we are willing to die for a good cause. That is why I am so grateful to the people of Chicago in general and to you especially.".

NEGROES IN THE NAVY.

Hammond, Ind., April 9.—Now comes the welcome news that the navy has loosened up its color ban. Colored volunteers will now be accepted in all departments of the service, including the coast guard and marine corps. A big slice of the credit is due to the many broad-minded white men and women who have joined in this fight with the colored people themselves. Until recently, most Americans did not know that the navy had this limitation.

It appears to be industry's move next to relax some of its racial restrictions. Colored Americans cannot understand why they should be prevented from sharing in defense work.

DR. DENNIS A. BETHEA.

NEGLECT OF OUR OWN.

Chicago, April 8.—The American people will hold the administration responsible for the failure to send aid to our brave American and Filipino boys who fought to defend our own in the Philippines. It is a particularly bitter pill for us to swallow when we know that our government has sent aid to everybody else in the four corners of the earth. Is it because they are our own that they were neglected so?

Some day, some one in Washington will get the original American idea to defend American interests first.

FREDERICK J. BERTRAM.

THE JOB AT THE POLLS.

Chicago, April 10.—The voters of this nation will have to pass judgment on the conduct of this war by the New Dealers. It is my opinion that our country can still be saved if the citizens will go to the polls this month and in November, and defeat all candidates who have nothing to offer except that they are 100 per cent for Roosevelt. A. A. F.

THE OLD FLAG DOES SERVICE AGAIN.

Chicago, April 10.—I am using the same service flag in my window for my son that I used in 1918 for my husband. It is made of silk, and after the first World war I laid it away as a souvenir. I wonder if this is true in many homes.

SALABLE TITLE.

Manteno, Ill., April 9.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Over 20 years ago my husband's father left three vacant lots to my husband, self, and heirs. Now we would like to sell them because they bring no income and we have been paying taxes all these years. We have three children, all long past age.

Knowing we need the money to support us they [2] all signed off before an attorney and had paper recorded. All rights to said property to my husband and myself to be sold by us for our support. We are both well along in years and my husband is an invalid.

Would the signing their claim over to us [3] give us the right to give a clear title to purchaser if we should sell it?

4. Could this old deed be set aside and a new one made out if all the heirs signed it?

5. Just what steps would we have to take to have this done? I. M.

1. A gift to your husband "and his heirs" would merely mean that your husband received a fee title. It would not mean that the heirs received a remainder interest.

2. It seems probable that these signatures are not necessary.

3. Probate of the first owner's estate would be necessary in order to produce a readily salable title.

4. We see no object in this.

5. See preceding answers.

Leave It to Smith Girls to Enjoy Life Despite Epidemic

Northampton, Mass., April 12 (AP).—The yoo-hooing on the Smith college campus these days is terrific, but don't get excited, boys—all the girl probably wants is a cup of coffee.

An epidemic of communicable diseases downtown caused the college to restrict the 2,000 students to the campus. But the girls can yodel to the dressmaker at a smart shop near the college grounds for a fitting on the campus or to the clerk in the tea shop for coffee and cakes via curb service.

The first week-end of the self-imposed quarantine saw no great falling off in dates—but home town beaus are taboo until the epidemic in the city abates. House mothers have set up virtual country stores—taking orders and making one trip to the city daily for the girls. A branch postoffice has been opened on the campus. City folks who, in ordinary times, can attend lectures and plays at the college are barred for the time being.

Women in War Work .... By India Moffett

[The Women in War Work department reports on women's activities in war and defense work and will answer questions of women wishing to take part in these activities.]

Mrs. J. D. Rosenbach.

The Women's Coördinating committee, Civilian Defense councils, Oak Park-River Forest, has initiated an extensive program of work. The week of April 27 has been set aside as War Salvage week in Oak Park and members of the committee will organize the village for a collection of waste material. Mrs. Jabez H. Pratt, president, and Mrs. Ben H. Badenoch, chairman of projects, will head the campaign.

Mrs. Lindon Seed has been named Canteen Service chairman for Oak Park and plans to set up an emergency canteen system.

The South Branch auxiliary under Mrs. Joseph D. Rosenbach has conducted a house to house canvass for sickroom supplies. Nearly $600 worth of material was given by the residents of south Oak Park, who then added to this sum with proceeds of a three day rummage sale, bringing the value of their contributions to more than $1,100. Bedding, cots, and other individual contributions also helped equip the Nurses corps of the area for any emergency.

Mrs. Leo P. Cummings, chairman of the Catholic Committee for War Savings bonds, heads a family every member of which is doing war work of one sort or another. Each of her 11 children has a job, even the youngest. In addition to helping their mother sell bonds, Virginia, 24 years old, and Helen, 22, are members of the Red Cross Motor corps and work as drivers four days a week.

Roger Cummings, 20, a student at the University of Notre Dame, has signed up for the Naval Reserve and expects to be called when his schooling is completed. His younger brothers, Leo, 16; Joe, 13, and Mark, 12, also do a good stint of war work after school. Leo sets up stock at the Red Cross, and Joe and Mark work in the stock room of the War Savings bond and stamp headquarters at 105 West Adams street.

Frances, 18, and Mary Cummings, 19, are members of the Military Guard and are being trained for the mounted police corps. They drill once a week in addition to taking a first aid course with the Red Cross. Mary also made a war savings "Minute Men for Defense" news reel. In it she tells why she is buying bonds and stamps and why thousands of Chicago's high school pupils are doing the same.

A married daughter, Mrs. Edward Fitzgerald, is on the war savings staff as Mrs. Cummings' assistant, and Catherine, who lives in Georgia, is working with the Red Cross there. Even Jane, the youngest daughter, who is 14, has signed up with the juniors of the Women's Defense Corps of America.

"What Can I Do to Help?" will be answered for members of the Alliance of Business and Professional Women of Chicago tonight at a dinner meeting at the Chicago Bar association. Mrs. Joseph F. Govan, vice chairman of the committee on public information of the Chicago and Cook County Defense Savings staff; Mrs. Anita Tidball, executive secretary of the Travelers' Aid; Mrs. Helen Joyce, president of the Navy Mothers' club; Mrs. Burnett D. Warner, retiring president of the Chicago Woman's club; Mrs. Lavinia L. Schwartz, midwest education director of a radio station, and Miss Mercedes Hurst will speak. Gen. MacArthur buttons will be presented to each volunteer in the organization who is doing war work.

New legal problems raised by the war in the average American home will be the subject of 10 lecture conferences at the Art institute during the spring quarter. B. Fain Tucker of the University of Chicago will speak on "Women's Legal Problems in a World at War." The first lecture will be given tonight at 7 o'clock. The lectures are sponsored by the University college of the University of Chicago.

Are you looking for a job? Well, likely as not the shoe is on the other foot and the job is looking for you. The federal government is hiring about 1,000 people a day and needs all kinds of workers.

Women are wanted at once to meet the shortage of stenographers. They must be between the ages of 18 and 53 and be able to take dictation at 96 words a minute. Office machine operators and accounting assistants are also needed, and an office supervisor is worth her weight in gold.

Women in scientific and engineering fields can also take their talents to the government. If you can fill any of these positions, the Civil Service commission, 433 Van Buren street, will show you how to apply.

The Washburne trade school, Sedgwick and Division streets, is offering courses in stenography, accounting, secretarial practice, comptometry, bookkeeping machines, speed typing, and journalism.

Women, in their eagerness to help at this time, are enrolling daily in courses which offer training in the newer office practices, brush-up drills, and the latest addition to the Washburne curriculum, social security and pay roll accounting. Such training will enable them to take the place of men called into active service. There is no tuition charge.

Plans for DAR Congress Here Assume Shape

BY IRENE STEYSKAL.

The work of the local committee participating in the complicated task of bringing the 51st Continental Congress of the Daughters of the American Revolution to this midwestern city has begun to attain coherence and form. The basic schedule for round tables and meetings auxiliary to the congress proper, which convenes on Monday, May 4, to continue for four days in the Stevens hotel, is now in the possession of Mrs. J. De Forest Richards, local chairman on arrangements.

Major developments in planning the program are looked for today when Mrs. William H. Pouch, the president general, arrives from Washington, D. C., for a day of consultation with Chicago leaders. It is definitely indicated that the 1941 congress will have a simplified program dictated both by the spirit of the times and the necessities imposed by the transfer from the traditional meeting place in the society's headquarters in Washington.

The schedule now in Mrs. Richards' hands calls for executive board meetings on Thursday, April 30, and Friday, May 1. On Friday there is to be an informal meeting of state regents, a National Officers' club meeting and luncheon, and, in the evening, the annual national officers and state regents banquet.

Friday will see the arrival of 50 high school girls, one from each state, an Alaskan and District of Columbia miss—the Good Citizenship Pilgrims. The young women will be in Chicago for four days as guests of the DAR, and will appear on the congress platform at the formal opening ceremonies to receive their awards from Mrs. Pouch. On the day of their arrival they will be guests at a dinner party in the Stevens and will attend a dance in the Grant park recreation center for service men. The 14 cabinet officers, 21 vice presidents and state regents, constituting the national board of managers, will meet Saturday, May 2.

The White House reception always has been a social highlight of the DAR congress. To replace that function, Joseph M. Cudahy, president of the Chicago Historical society, and Mrs. Cudahy will receive the delegates on Sunday afternoon, May 3, at a tea in the society's building in Lincoln park. Preceding the tea, the traditional memorial service for deceased DAR members will be held in the Stevens hotel, with the chaplain general, Mrs. William K. Belk of Charlotte, N. C., officiating.

Cabinet members will be special guests of the Illinois society Sunday night at a buffet supper in the Boulevard room of the Stevens.

A new room to "The Living American Indian" has been prepared in the DAR buildings in Washington. On Monday morning, May 4, its dedication will be conducted here, with Mrs. Loren Edgar Rex, chairman of the American Indian committee, presiding. Mrs. John Trigg Moss, parliamentarian of the society and consultant on rules of order, will open a four day school in parliamentary law that morning.

One of the important meetings of the congress, a national defense rally, will be held Monday afternoon, under the chairmanship of Mrs. E. Thomas Boyd, Denver, Colo. Taking an important part in arranging this meeting is Mrs. Vinton Earl Sission of Chicago, former librarian general. The defense rally is to be addressed by Dr. Edmund A. Walsh, vice president of Georgetown university and dean of its foreign service department. Hugh Clegg of the Federal Bureau of Investigation and Earl G. Harrison, newly appointed director of registration of the department of justice, are also scheduled to speak.

Mrs. Pouch last week approved an invitation of Mrs. Otto H. Crist, Illinois regent and official hostess of the congress, that the formal opening Monday night be held in the Medinah temple, which will seat 5,000 persons. Sons of the American Revolution, state and city officials, foreign consuls, representatives of national patriotic societies and high ranking military and naval officers will be seen in attendance on this night.

Thirteen round table conferences will precede the formal opening ceremonies that day. A conservation committee breakfast will be held Tuesday morning, and eight round tables and a breakfast meeting of the important Ellis Island committee are on Wednesday's schedule. In the course of the congress each state delegation will have a luncheon or dinner.

The grand finale will be the Victory dinner Thursday, May 7, in the Grand ballroom of the Stevens. One known and several yet unnamed speakers will address the delegates and guests that night. He who has been invited to speak—and there was not a dissenting voice among the program builders—is Lieut. Comm. Carlos Fallon, formerly of the Colombian navy.

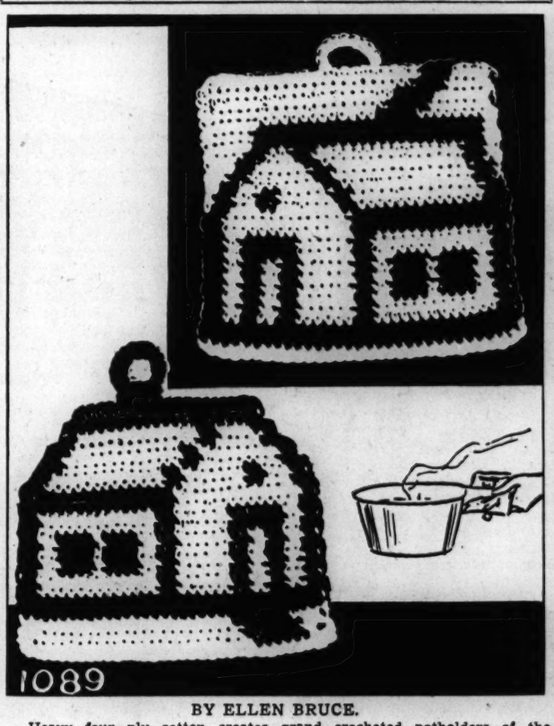
Seeing Eye to Open Drive for 1,000 New Members Tomorrow

A campaign to obtain 1,000 members in the Chicago area for the Seeing Eye, Inc., the organization which obtains and trains dogs to lead the blind, will be opened tomorrow afternoon at a meeting in the Racquet club under the chairmanship of Mrs. William H. Mitchell.

Elliot S. Humphrey, vice president in charge of research and education at the Seeing Eye school in Morristown, N. J., will address the opening meeting and a motion picture showing the training of dogs in the school will be screened.

Twenty-six Chicagoans now are led by Seeing Eye dogs, of which there are 45 in Illinois and 700 in the United States. The membership drive for 1942 is designed to obtain money to provide 150 additional trained dogs for the blind.

Pretty Bungalow Potholders



BY ELLEN BRUCE.

Heavy four ply cotton creates grand crocheted potholders of the luxurious size most persons want. The cotton is worked in a single crochet and with two threads, which gives it an added thickness without being bulky. These "bungalow" holders are done in green and white and require little time to create. A graph accompanies the instructions and simplifies the needlework.

For instructions in crocheting the bungalow potholders, No. 1089, send 10 cents in stamps or coin, plus 2 cents to cover mailing cost, to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

Engagements

Mr. and Mrs. Stuart J. Bierly of River Forest and Klinger Lake, Mich., announce the engagement of their daughter, Jane Ellen, to Glenn C. Lange, son of Mrs. William W. Lange and the late Mr. Lange of North Kildare avenue. Miss Bierly attended the University of Michigan and was graduated from the school of journalism at Northwestern university. Mr. Lange received his master's degree in journalism at Northwestern.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur E. Warner of Western Springs announce the engagement of their daughter, Nancy, to John G. Mahagan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gilby K. Mehagan of La Grange. Miss Warner was graduated from Edgewood Park, in New York, and her fiancé is completing his senior year at Rose Polytechnic institute, Terre Haute, Ind.

Spring Rush Under Way at Bridal Shops

BY REA SEEGER.

A romantic haze hangs around the wedding bureaus in Chicago shops and stores these first spring days. Wedding gown designers are working overtime, and swarms of brides-to-be and the cash carrying parents fill the shops to view the newest arrivals. Color, material, veils, bouquets, and the trousseaux are discussed exhaustively, but not exhaustingly, for this subject never palls. No matter how much or how little you have to spend for your bridal plans, the best place to take your ideas are these expertly staffed bureaus.

Wedding gowns are, of course, of paramount interest. All the new models in the first spring collections will be on display in the bureaus and in fashion shows during the week ahead. Here you will see just what the materials look like when made up, you'll compare, appraise, and make the final selection after watching the mannequins on parade. There are also on display all the newest ideas in wedding veils and headdresses—wreaths of spun glass flowers, coronets of fragile lace, or new ideas for real flowers, or clever small caps of flower petals or leaves.

Summer materials are star attractions. There are modestly priced wedding gowns of crisp organdy [bridesmaid's dresses also of organdy] and the picture book beautiful gowns of all lace, clinging gowns of thin crêpe, and gowns of jersey, exquisitely slenderizing and flattering to the figure lines. The satin gowns are high fashion in deep old ivory, in gleaming white, in ice blue and shell pink. Long trains, and very restrained decorative trim accentuate the beauty of the satin.

If your wedding plans do not include the formal wedding gown, see the many beautiful afternoon dresses, the costumes of dress and jacket, or dress and long coat, or the white or ivory silk suits before you think you are missing too much of the fun without the flattery of a long sweep train and veil.

Ramfis.....Harold Kravitt
The King of Egypt...Richard Wentworth
Priestess.....Louise Warren [debut].
Aida.....Anne Roselle
Dances by Lydia Arlova, Lucien Prideaux, and the San Carlo ballet.
Conductor.....Carlo Peroni

BY EDWARD BARRY.

Fortune Gallo's popular priced touring San Carlo Opera company, which is not to be confused with Fortune Gallo's relatively expensive, stationary Chicago Opera company, took over the Civic Opera house last night for an eight day, nine performance engagement.

Time and change and the draft have touched the company more lighly than might have been expected. Hizi Koyke and "Madame Butterfly," it is to be regretted, are missing, but otherwise roster and repertoire are much the same as in prewar years.

For its first opera the troupe chose that most reliable of openers, Verdi's "Aida," and gave it a performance in true San Carlo style. That means that it was competently staged and adequately and sometimes brilliantly sung.

The mellowed San Carlo sets looked well on the vast stage of the Civic. The pageantry of the second act was especially effective, altho if the management had known the performance was to be a sellout [a thousand or more people were turned away], it might have ventured to hire a few more prisoners of war.

Many of the vocal honors went to Anne Roselle, the Aida. She used her comparatively small voice intelligently, and phrased and colored with a fine understanding of the drama's implications.

The opulence and the nice lyrical overtone of Harold Lindi's voice helped make the character of the lovesick Rhadames an attractive and sympathetic one.

Coe Glade not only sang the music of Amneris competently but also contributed importantly to the stage spectacle, for her costumes were of a brilliance and originality to defy description. Mostyn Thomas, Haroid Kravitt and Richard Wentworth were sonorous and effective in the bass and baritone parts.

Louise Warren, a newcomer to the company, displayed a well focused voice of good quality and ample size in the music of the priestess. Carlo Peroni had a little difficulty with balance between orchestra and stage forces but solved his problems well by the beginning of the second act.

The exquisite Devi Dja and her East Indian dancers and musicians presented the dances of Bali, Java, Sumatra, and Papua at the Civic theater yesterday. Some of these dances were so highly formalized, and were fraught with such subtle religious and racial meanings that a western audience had to be content to enjoy merely their outward beauty of form. Others, notably a Sumatran folk routine, had a universal quality which made light of the gap between west and east.

Jacques Fray and Mario Braggiotti, who are among the mast facile and clever of two piano teams, presented at the Eighth Street theater yesterday a program which included their own transcriptions of standard concert and operatic music, a brilliant arrangement of Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue," and an amusing series of take-offs on the style of various composers.

Tale of a Little Dog.

A woman who lives in Lake Shore drive was in a taxicab headed toward the loop the other day when she saw a tiny whimpering mongrel crouched in that triangle of land where Oak street, Michigan avenue, and the Outer drive intersect. Thinking he was lost and frightened in the traffic, she got out of the cab, carried him to the Oak street sidewalk, and went on her way.

About 5:30 that evening she was on her way home, again by cab. She had just had her hair done, she had on a Lilly Daché hat and a perishable suit, and it was raining hard. And there, back in the triangle, crouched the whimpering little dog.

Again she stopped the cab and got out, but this time the dog ran from her. Again and again she tried to lure him inside, but he was adamantly cold to her wiles. Thoroly soaked, she got back in the cab and drove to a Rush street meat market, where she bought 27 cents' worth of hamburger and returned to the triangle.

She tried again, holding out tender morsels of the meat. If she dropped them, the little dog would eat. If not, he would not. So, getting into the cab, she began to drop a tiny trail of tiny morsels, and the little dog trotted slowly behind, lapping greedily at each bit. Traffic, badly snarled, was in an ominous, honking humor, but the cab, the woman, and the dog inched casually out of it. Over to Rush street and down it they went, the woman's purpose being to get the little dog to the Humane society shelter on West Grand avenue.

About a block from the shelter the hamburger gave out, and she paused to survey herself. Her hat had melted away. Her suit had shrunk to Lilliputian proportions. Her hair hung in strings. She sighed and opened the door to cluck once more to the little dog. The little dog was gone.

Laconicisms.

A contributor, F. E. M., writes that Caesar's Veni, vidi, vici has become a cheap and overrated piece of fustian in the light of America's warrior reports of the last war and this. All America sang a few weeks ago with Mason's casual Sight sub, sank same, but who of World War I. vintage, he asks, can forget its Demobilized, deloused, delighted Delaney, by a boy of that name?

Man with a Carnation.

Sven N. Oftedal, formerly publisher of a newspaper in Stavenger, Norway, was in town last week to speak on the occasion of the second anniversary of the invasion of Norway. A short, dark man with a weathered face and iron gray hair, he escaped from Norway last October by way of Sweden, telling all his friends he was going to Oslo to get a job.

"I couldn't even tell my wife my real plans," he continued, "but when I got to my sister's home in Oslo and opened my bag, there on top lay a little brown packet and in it was a red carnation. Carnations," he added softly, "are my flower, so that, you see, was her way of letting me know she knew it all the time."

We will be accused of self-interest, self-aggrandizement, and other ignoble attributes when we say that Mr. Oftedal sees in journalists the hope of the world, excepting only those of Germany and certain South American countries who, he said, are "dogs."

Junior Leagues to Hold Their Meetings Today

BY JUDITH CASS.

MEMBERS of the Chicago and the Evanston Junior leagues will be starting out early today to attend meetings of these organizations. The Chicago league is gathering at 11 o'clock at the Casino to discuss business for the year and to hold its annual election of officers. This meeting usually is held at the Saddle and Cycle club, or at some country club, but was changed to a more central location to save tires.

The league's headquarters at the Ambassador East will remain open all summer, it has been decided, for members are busy with war work. One extra league topic of conversation at the Casino today will be the arrival of twin daughters to Mr. and Mrs. Alanson Donald last Saturday at the Alice Home hospital in Lake Forest. Mrs. Donald, the former Margot Reid, has been an officer or board member of the Chicago league for several years. Mr. and Mrs. Bryan S. Reid are grandparents of the little twin debutantes of 1960, who have a 2 year old sister, Margot.

Evanston Junior League to Welcome Candidates.

Provisional members of the Evanston league will be welcomed at luncheon at the Georgian hotel. Mrs. Henry P. C. W. Barber is in charge of the training course to be given the provisional members of the league, beginning on April 20 in the league clubrooms. Mrs. Barber is entertaining them at tea on the 18th. Among the speakers in the course will be Mrs. Charles M. Price, former placement chairman of the Evanston league; Drennan J. Slater, who will speak on state and civic government; Harry Lippincott and Howard Hill of the Council of Social Agencies; Mrs. Catherine Lord of the art center at the Evanston Public Library; Miss Elizabeth Pool, head of the out-patient department of the Evanston hospital, and Mrs. John M. Baker, regional director of civilian defense. The course will include a number of field trips, among them visits to the dental dispensary maintained by the league, and to the crippled children's room at the Haven school.

Casino to Hold First Aid Course for Its Members.

Members of the Casino are looking forward to a Red Cross first aid class to be held at the club on Wednesday nights, beginning on April 22. There will be about 50 in the class, it is expected, many of whom will take advantage of a special supper to be served at 6:30 o'clock on class nights. Barrett Wendell has been appointed to fill Maj. Walter Frazier's unexpired term as a governor of the club. Maj. Frazier left on Saturday to take over his duties with the army air force.

The work of the last year and plans for the new one with its wartime program will be reviewed at the annual meeting of the Garden club of Illinois at 2 o'clock today in the Palmer House. Mrs. Joseph M. Cudahy, who long has been associated with the work of garden clubs, will report on the activities of garden clubs in Red Cross work. Mrs. O. W. Dynes, chairman of the Chicago Flower show, will tell of the preliminary work at Thornhill farm, the site of the 16th annual Chicago show, to be held May 14, 15, and 16. Members of the flower show committee will be special guests at the meeting.

Following the business part of the meeting, Mrs. Charles R. Walgreen will give a talk on "Historic Hazelwood," illustrated with pictures in color. Past presidents of the Garden club of Illinois will preside at the tea tables, among them Mrs. Dynes, Mrs. W. L. Karcher, Mrs. Euclid Snow, and Mrs. George Plamondon. Mrs. Warren W. Shoemaker is president of the club.

Reservations Going Fast for Latin American Dinner.

Because of the intense interest at the present time in Latin America, reservations are almost all taken for a dinner in the grand ballroom of the Stevens hotel tomorrow night at which Nelson A. Rockefeller, coordinator of inter-American affairs, will make the principal address. The dinner is sponsored by the Pan-American council, and is one of a dozen interesting events taking place in Chicago this week, which is designated as Pan-American week.

Mrs. Howard R. Peterson is general chairman of Pan-American week. Dr. Clarence E. Parmenter, acting president of the Council, will introduce President Franklyn B. Snyder of Northwestern university as toastmaster at the dinner. Mayor Kelly, who is honorary chairman of the celebration, also will speak. Mrs. Rockefeller is not accompanying her husband from Washington.

Latin American consuls in Chicago and their wives, forty students from Latin American countries who are studying here; Adm. John Downes, Col. Edward Roth Jr., and Lieut. Col. Chester Fordney are some of those who will be at the dinner. Others are Miss Florence D. Bartlett, Mrs. Jacob Baur, Barrett Wendell, Mrs. Frank Howes, Thomas E. Donnelley, and the William A. Nitzes.

The Woman's Exchange of Chicago and Mrs. James Ward Thorne have issued invitations to a tea for the Exchange's oldest consignor, Mrs. A. M. Shreve, at 4 o'clock on Friday afternoon. Mrs. Shreve will be celebrating her 84th birthday.

The Chicago Drama league has arranged an interesting program for 2:30 o'clock this afternoon in the Crystal ballroom of the Blackstone, where Ruth St. Denis will give an illustrated lecture on "The Importance of Body Expression." Mrs. Hugo Dalmar, Mrs. Laban J. Brady and Mrs. Sherman T. Spitzer will pour at tea following the lecture.

Miss Jean Woolhiser, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert L. Woolhiser of Winnetka, and Ensign William M. Belding, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hiram H. Belding Jr. of Glencoe, were married on April 4 in San Francisco. Their engagement was announced recently. Mrs. Woolhiser and Mrs. Belding went west for the ceremony, which took place in the chapel of Grace Cathedral. The bride's sister, Mrs. Robert C. Bennett Jr. and her bridegroom of a month ago, missed the wedding as they recently arrived at home from a wedding trip to California. Ensign Belding is on duty on the west coast.

Mrs. Margaret Shallene and Dr. Small to Wed.

Mrs. Margaret Wilkinson Shallene and Dr. Arthur A. Small will be married next month, probably in the home of her brother, David Wilkinson, in St. Louis, Mo. Mrs. Shallene, daughter of Mrs. George Lamphere, has one son, George, who attends St. John's Military academy. Dr. Small plans to take his bride to Lake of Bays, in Ontario, to spend the summer at his summer home there.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Westerman, who formerly lived in Chicago, are at the Drake for several days on their way from their winter home in Hollywood, Cal., to their summer place at Manchester, Vt. Mrs. F. W. Engers, also a former Chicagoan, is with the Westermans.

It May Be Low, but This Farce Is Very Funny

"GOOD NIGHT, LADIES!"

Farce in three acts by Cyrus Wood, based on "Ladies' Night" by Avery Hopwood and Charleton Andrews. Staged by Edward Clarke Lilley. Sets by Ernest Glover. Gowns by Jack Perkins. Presented by Howard Lang and Al Rosen in the Blackstone theater, Sunday evening, April 12, 1942.

THE PLAYERS.

Skeets Gallagher, Buddy Ebsen, Jo Ann Carter, Mary Ellen Popel, Bernadene Hayes, Dora Clement, Marie Dwyer, Max Hoffman Jr., Lottie Harrison, Cecil Elliott, Gayle Mellott, Frances Knight, Beatrice Newport, and John Stewart.

BY CECIL SMITH.

"Good Night, Ladies," which has taken tumultuous possession of the lofty Blackstone theater, is a far cry from the demure Mennonite restraint of "Papa Is All," the previous tenant. The farce which Cyrus Wood has built upon the substructure of the famous "Ladies' Night in a Turkish Bath" is no more—or perhaps I should say no less—than three acts of continuous blackout material which never blacks out, even at the most indiscreet moment.

The story, if such it may truthfully be called, has one engrossing preoccupation—the undraped female form. This proves to be an exceedingly fruitful preoccupation, for the Messrs. Lang and Rosen, who produced the sex festival, have been careful to maintain a high standard of pulchritude in the young ladies who patronize the Turkish bath in question. You haven't seen a better collection of curves and props in any musical comedy within memory.

It is an entertainment for every taste except good taste. But I am not willing to put on an act, even tho THE TRIBUNE is a family newspaper. We are all entitled to our nights off from the better things in life, and I sat all evening howling with laughter along with the rest of the audience. I think I may even go back to see it again!

In the old days of parlor, bedroom, and bath farce, so they tell me, certain explicit forms of plain speaking and behavior were debarred, out of deference to the family trade. Families must be broader minded by now, for Mr. Wood's script is remarkable for its lack of inhibition. "Good Night, Ladies" is definitely aimed at those who admit to a knowledge of the facts of life, and it is my duty to suggest that you do not take the kiddies.

For purposes of record, the plot—which is lightly abandoned whenever more tempting maneuvers appear in the offing—concerns the education of Buddy Ebsen, who is girl-shy, by Skeets Gallagher, who is anything but. When the police raid a stag party next door, the boys run to the ladies' bath parlor for shelter, and, as you can understand, anything can happen, and anything does.

Mr. Ebsen and Mr. Gallagher make a good thing of their present opportunity, for both are skilled at farce.

If you don't like "Good Night, Ladies," don't blame me. Blame your repressions.

Weddings

Mrs. Charles E. Erbstein of Villa Olivia, Elgin, and Palm Beach, Fla., announces the marriage last Saturday of her daughter, Charlene Margaret, to Ensign J. H. Sedlmayr. Ensign Sedlmayr is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Sedlmayr of Great Neck, N. Y.

Announcement is made of the marriage last Saturday of Miss Phyllis Erbe, daughter of the Roger W. Erbes of Winnetka, and Horace E. Fritschle Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Fritschle of Chicago. The ceremony took place at 4:30 o'clock in the chapel of the Winnetka Congregational church, with a small reception following in the Erbe home.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter C. Brown came from San Francisco, Cal., for the marriage last Saturday of their niece, Miss Betty June Brown, and Clarke Norwood Simm, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur M. Simm of Geneva. The ceremony took place in the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Adelbert Brown, in River Forest, with a reception following from 5 until 7 o'clock at the Lake Shore club.

Miss Virginia McDonnell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry G. McDonnell of East 65th street, and George R. Drandt, son of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Drandt Jr. of Bergenfield, N. J., were married last Saturday morning in St. Clara's church, with a breakfast following in the Windermere East hotel.

INSTALMENT XXXVII.
ARRIVAL AT SECO.

Martha watched Dave clean the table of dishes, carrying them awkwardly, his big hands gentle with the few pieces of china she owned.

She said, gravely, "Dave, you mustn't think too badly of Beth. She's no fool."

Dave stopped, his hands full of dishes, and looked at her. "I know that."

"I wasn't sure if you did." She shook her head slightly. "Do you remember when you talked to me up there at Chevron? I couldn't see your face, only hear you. And your voice shamed me for not being loyal to Tip. Remember?

Dave nodded.

"Then don't hate Beth for her loyalty to Gove." She paused, and Dave nodded soberly, and then she spoke again. "And don't think Sam Kinsley owns her, Dave."

Dave made his face expressionless, but he was listening carefully. In his eyes was polite query.

"I know what you thought," Martha said. "You wondered how Kinsley would dare break into her room without her permission."

"I did," Dave confessed.

"He loves her, and he thinks that gives him the rights of ownership. When Beth left for the east he followed her for three days, ordering her to come back."

"And she didn't?"

"No. Beth Hilliard can't be bullied."

Ives stepped inside the door now and said, "Martha, what guns you got here?"

Dave found himself following Martha into the bedroom, where she kept the guns, but he was thinking of what Martha had just told him. In some obscure way, what she had said comforted him. For all during the day, he had wondered at Kinsley breaking in Beth's room last night. Dave hadn't forgotten the look of ugly suspicion on Kinsley's face, and it had troubled him. He'd been too proud to ask Ives, and Martha might have sensed that.

Martha brought out two rifles, a worn Colt's .45 and shells for all three, and they took them and tramped out.

Pete had three horses saddled. He had exchanged Dave's horse for one of his own string that Martha had ridden down from Chevron, a deep chested, short coupled bay gelding.

They mounted and lined out abreast into the night, heading west toward the desert. With food inside him, Dave felt his sleeplessness hit him. He had been in the saddle almost two days and a night, and he was hungry for sleep. But Jess Gove was not the kind to wait. After they saw Seco, he could sleep.

He wondered idly what the Seco line camp would hold for them. Seco meant 'dry' in Spanish, and Ives, discussing it during the day's ride, had said it was close to the desert. Aside from that, he knew nothing, and could guess nothing. Inside the shack would there be signs that told of the fight in which Tip was killed? He doubted it. Yet there was something there that Chance and Gove had fought desperately to conceal.

It was long after midnight, and they were in a gently rolling country of thick grama grass that swished against the legs of their horses at every step; the black squat shape of an occasional cedar loomed and faded into the night as they rode. Off to the south was the vast spread of reservation grassland, while to the west lay the big and silent desert. Some of the loneliness of both was on this land, and Dave understood why Tip had settled here.

Ives reined up presently and pointed ahead into the night.

"It's about a mile yonder, set up above a dry arroyo. We go careful from here on, so leave your horses."

He led off, Dave falling in behind him. The land sloped gently now, and the scrub cedar was thicker. Presently, Ives reined up and dismounted and went on afoot.

And then he hauled up so abruptly that Dave moved into him.

Dave looked ahead and there at the bottom of the slope lay the crude line shack, naked to the starlight. There was a lantern lighted inside it.

Ives said grimly, "He beat us."

Dave looked carefully at the shack, and Ives faded silently into the night. There was a pole corral between the shack and the sandy bed of the dry arroyo, and the buildings squatted there in the starlight, barren of any surrounding trees. Dave knew now he had part of the answer. If this place wasn't important to Gove, why would these men be here?

Ives returned soon and said sourly, "Four Chevron horses in the corral. It's Arnie, all right."

Dave said nothing.

Ives murmured quietly, "I can go down. I can take a look, and they won't suspect me."

"It's not the shack," Dave said.

Pete looked at him in the dark. "Why not? Chevron hasn't had a man here this spring until now."

"If it was anything a man could see, Arnie Chance would have burned the place," Dave said. He was quiet a moment. "It's the country, something here, something around here. And it's still here, or Chance wouldn't be here now."

"But there's nothin' here except a holdin' corral. There's grass all around it, and behind it's the desert," Pete said.

"Something happened here that Tip Macy saw. It's still here," Dave reiterated stubbornly.

"How you goin' to look, tho?" Ives demanded.

Dave was silent, then, eying the shack thru the night. The plan was slowly forming, and even now Dave knew what he would have to do.

He said quietly, "Ives, if I toll this crew away from here, can you get your look?"

Ives said sourly, "You can't without gettin' them on your neck."

"That's my idea."

He let Ives consider this for a moment in stunned silence, and then he said: "As far as Chance knows, I'm alone. If he figures he can run me down and nail up my hide, he'll pull the whole crew away from here, and put them on me. When they're gone, you step in."

"They spot you and they'll have the whole slope on your trail."

"But you can have your look, can't you?"

Ives said, "Yes," with a quiet, shrinking reluctance.

Dave turned to Pete. "You're free to ride this country, Pete. I'll need grub cached, and a change of horses."

Ives cut in, and his voice was dead earnest. "Son, this won't work. They'll crowd you into the high country and trap you in one of them canyons on up above. You don't know the country and they do. Once they got you on the run, instead of holed up, you're a gone goose."

"Maybe," Dave said quietly.

"You aim to go thru with it?"

"If you two will back up my hand."

Pete answered instantly, as Dave knew he would. Ives was quiet for several minutes, sizing up the odds. Not for himself, but for his partner. Finally, Ives said, "I don't like it, Dave. But it's your say."

"It's settled then."

They moved away from the shack, and in the darkness, well away from the wash, they discussed their plans.

Afterward they broke up, Pete to return to Martha's place, Ives to cache himself where he could watch what went on at the shack, and Dave to return to the spot where they had first beheld Seco camp.

Dave took a rifle and all the shells for it Martha had given them.

When he drifted into the shadow of the cedar and looked down on the shack, the lantern had been doused and the men were sleeping.

Good Morning!

Great excitement at and around Ginger Bar!

Ginger Bar is an army bomber training and relay station near the Canal Zone for pilots who fly bombers from the United States over the perilous Mato Grosso jungles to Africa. . . .

Characters spotlighted are "Hardtack Hamilton," training officer; Harley Ames, playboy air wizard of the rock-the-boat variety, and Susan Merrill, daughter of the station commander, who is engaged to Hamilton and pursued by Ames. . . .

Hamilton, making a test flight in a training bomber, barely escapes crashing into the cabin plane in which Ames is showing off preparatory to landing and applying for a job as bomber pilot. . . . This gets the men off to a bad start—for Hamilton wants flyers who can do a difficult job and realizes how necessary it is for discipline to be maintained. . . . Being an astute officer he also realizes that Ames really can fly and that he will be valuable if he can be brought into line. . . . Which is why he puts up with much that he wouldn't have tolerated from another man—including the intruder's persistent horning in on his romance. . . .

It takes death—the crash of a fellow pilot brought about by Ames' own foolhardiness—to knock sense into the latter's handsome head.

Chester Morris has never done anything better than his portrayal of doughty, straight-shooting, immensely capable Hamilton. . . . You believe in and root for him every minute. . . . John Hubbard is equally believable as Ames—only you don't love him, despite his handsome face. . . . Harriet Hilliard is excellent thruout and has one big moment—that when over the radio she hears the crash that is Hamilton's plane in what she believes is a death plunge. . . . I have never witnessed more natural, electrifying reaction.

See you tomorrow.

THRU THE LOOKING GLASS

Hand care is something that should not be relegated to the background with the end of cold weather. We may not be as acutely aware of the need for it when actual chapping is relieved by balmier temperatures, but the woman who is really interested in keeping her hands white and youthful looking will care for them consistently every season of the year.

A perfect duo for grooming the hands are a lotion and cream made by a woman whose products are compounded with the needs of the dry skinned person uppermost in mind. The two provide a means for accomplishing a maximum of effect with a minimum of effort.

The lotion is designed for use during the day when its fast drying is most appreciated. It is nongreasy and the skin seems to absorb it instantly. Gloves may be pulled on immediately or you can go about your regular duties without delay. The lotion serves as a protection and slight lubricant as well. We're quite impressed with the small amount of the liquid needed to do the work for both hands. Just a few meager drops are all that is necessary, which makes it quite inexpensive.

For use at night, or when you have more time to spare during the day, is the heavy hand cream. It is wonderfully rich in oils that aid in keeping hands white and exquisitely soft. It requires a little rubbing to work it into the skin, and just when it looks as if the stuff is never going to sink in, it suddenly disappears, leaving the skin not at all greasy or sticky. Both the lotion and the cream are scented with a fragrance that is reminiscent of dainty Victorian ladies.

Together, the lotion and cream will keep the hands so smooth and white you'll be proud to display them at any time.

WAYS TO CONSERVE SUGAR:

1. Omit it from coffee. [Nonsense! You can, too, get along without it in your breakfast beverage!]

2. Omit it from cereals. Salt them when cooking, if they're the cooked kind. If you must have some sweetening in your oatmeal, add chopped dates, prunes, apricots, figs, or raisins. Dried fruit, being naturally sweet, will sweeten food in which it is used.

3. Omit sugar from whipped cream which you use to garnish desserts. And tuck away those rich, sweet dessert recipes in favor of the simpler puddings, fresh and canned fruits, etc., which are better for you, anyway.

4. Forget about salads which require sugar in their makeup or in the dressing. The true salad is not sweet, it is tart. Fruits are better as desserts than as salads. Go in for more tossed greenery, with oil, vinegar, salt, and pepper as the only dressing. [If you crave a fruit salad now and then, try a recipe similar to the one which comes a little later in this column, with no sugar.]

5. Omit sugar from waffles, muffins, shortcake. Make the simplest of cakes, and use honey, corn sirup, molasses when possible as sweetener.

6. Use sirups from canned fruits as sweeteners for pudding and sauces when you can.

7. A little salt increases the sweetening power of sugar and will make a little sugar go a long way.

8. Keep in mind the fact that sugar is good for nothing except sweet taste and energy. There are plenty of better energy foods, such as bread, cereal, meat, potatoes, butter, etc. As for sweetness, we Americans have overindulged our sweet teeth for years. It's time we became sensible.

COTTAGE CHEESE FRUIT SALAD.
[Serves eight.]

1 tablespoon or envelope plain gelatin
¼ cup cold water
2 cups cottage cheese
¾ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon paprika
¼ teaspoon onion juice
¾ cup cream or milk
½ cup cut pineapple, canned or cooked
1 orange, diced
1 cup fresh strawberries, grapes, or sliced bananas
Dressing, whipped cream

Soften gelatin in cold water and place over boiling water until dissolved. Mash cheese fine and add seasonings, cream, and gelatin. Turn into a ring mold which has been rinsed in cold water. Chill until firm. Unmold on lettuce and fill center with mixed fruit and dressing. If you use a cooked dressing which is very sour, add honey enough to overcome the extreme tartness.

Answer to "Why don't we grow more olives in this country since foreign imports of olive oil have been shut off?" It takes 16 years for an olive tree to bear fruit, and something like 40 years before it is at peak of production. Planting more trees now won't help the current situation.

Round Table to Present Sixth Annual Institute

"The Shape of Things to Come" will be the theme of the sixth annual Institute of Human Relations sponsored by the Chicago Round Table of Christians and Jews, to be held at the Sherman hotel on Thursday. Principal speakers will be Louis Fischer, foreign correspondent, and Dr. Howard Thurman, dean of the chapel of Howard university, Washington, D. C. Mrs. Willett H. Cornwell is chairman of the institute committee.

TODAY'S PRIZE RECIPE

If you've been serving scallions and green onions in their raw state only, you've been missing something. Mrs. Clarence A. Frambers, 1245 West Dickens avenue, Chicago, wins today's $5 prize with a recipe that proves the point.

Perhaps you have some unusual way of preparing a favorite vegetable or other food. Write the recipe, listing ingredients in the order of use, giving standard, level measurements and clear and complete directions. Then send it to Recipe Contest, CHICAGO TRIBUNE. Your recipe may win the $5 prize given daily.

Scallions in Cheese Sauce.
[Serves four to six.]

Three bunches scallions or green onions
1 quart boiling water
1 teaspoon salt
1½ tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup milk
¾ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
½ cup grated American cheese
⅛ teaspoon paprika

Trim roots and tops from scallions, leaving them about 6 to 8 inches long. Rinse and tie into serving sized bunches. Cook in the boiling, salted water, roots standing upright, until tender, about 10 minutes. Melt butter, blending in flour, and add milk. Cook, stirring constantly, until thickened. Add seasonings and cheese, and stir until melted. Pour over the drained, untied onions. Sprinkle with paprika and serve hot.

[Send in your favorite recipe.]

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MACKAY.

On the "L."

In transit: On the morning "L" [noted by B. B.], the chic young lady who carefully spread a paper napkin on the window sill and taking a peeled orange from her capacious knitting bag, sat, oblivious to the stares of fellow passengers, nonchalantly nibbling on orange sections while reading her TRIBUNE.

On the evening express, the unobtrusive gentleman who sat, equally oblivious to his fellow passengers, with one perfect deep pink, long stemmed rose [stuck thru the edge of the window fixture] bobbing over his head. Every now and then he glanced up at it with calm satisfaction.

Federalese.

The American university's public relations department has coined a new word for government "cliches" such as "we are keeping an active file on," or "the matter will be expedited." "Federalese" is the term for these outworn phrases by no means limited to government usage. After a five year study of government correspondence and reports the conclusions were: Too much federalese; too many modifications, conditional clauses, etc., which represent hedging; ineffective verbs; too many indirect phrases in an attempt to appear impersonal; too long sentences [sometimes 65 to 80 words] and "the tendency to make ideas the heroes of sentences."

For Career Girls.

A man who sits at the information desk of one of Chicago's business colleges and daily answers questions for career girls from 17 to 55 utters a few pertinent "asides" on the subject of the business girl.

"I wonder if the white collar girls of Chicago would be interested to know that, in many cases, they make life harder for themselves thru the hard boiled attitude they adopt when trying to give the impression of being "businesslike?"

"I wish you could get word to them that most men who have been in the business world for years are not trying to 'sell' them something, nor are they 'gyps.'"

"Women think to be businesslike means to be brittle, suspicious, brusque, and even discourteous. If, in their manner, they can just 'take it easy' they will find the going much smoother and life in the business world much happier."

Slogan.

Addenda to a diploma is this slogan of the women hotel managers and executive housekeepers:

He who graduates today,
And stops learning tomorrow,
Is uneducated the day after.

Chins Up.

"Ducking your chin as you bend over your typewriter may turn out good copy, but it turns out a bad figure," says a beauty specialist, whose clientele consists mostly of working girls. "Ethel Barrymore," she reminds us, "has a beautiful neckline and she always reads with her chin up. The typist must take short neck exercises daily to overcome this, and she must sleep without a pillow. It takes just ONE week to break the habit of using a pillow."

One week. And this is Monday! No more propping of a tired head on a plump pillow. Contradictory as it may sound: Head down . . . and chin up.

Asks Washing Machine for Needy Family

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

[Activities of the Sally Joy Brown department are sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.]

We feel sure that any reader who owns a washing machine that she no longer needs will be able to appreciate this man's plight, and if possible, help him by donating it.

"Dear Miss Brown: I have been told by my worker that you have been able to help needy people. For the last five months, I have been forced to accept relief for the support of my five children, one of whom has been afflicted with infantile paralysis. My wife is a semi-invalid, and while I am capable of working, I have been unable to look for work every day, due to the condition of my wife and her inability to care for the children.

"I would like nothing better than a steady position so that I could care for my family in the proper way. The oldest child is 11, the others are 7, 5, 3, and 1 year old.

"We all need a number of things, but the most essential are a washing machine and a baby buggy. At the present time, I am doing the laundry on a washboard in the bathtub, and if you could in any way help me to obtain a machine, I would be most appreciative.—M. K."

The worker for the agency which is assisting this family will take responsibility for moving a machine if some reader has one in good working order. The address is west of the loop.

U. of C. Scholar to Speak at YWCA Benefit Affair

Dr. Henri S. Bloch, research assistant at the University of Chicago, will speak on "Social Justice in a War Economy" at the YWCA's annual scholarship luncheon for the benefit of the summer schools for workers. It will be held at noon tomorrow in the YWCA loop center. Other speakers will be three young workers who went to school on scholarships last summer.

Looking at Hollywood

—By John Chapman—

Hollywood, Cal., April 12.—Sunday—Homework done by noon, and to the Riviera for the Easter horse show. Leo [I love a horse parade] Carrillo leads the parade on a prancing palomino and you just know he'd rather do this than eat. . . . A Women's Volunteer ambulance corps parades smartly in uniform, and for the rest of the afternoon the gals are all over the place, saluting one another. Jack Holt says he has seen more saluting in 15 minutes than he observed all the time he was at a Phoenix air field on the "Thunderbirds" location. . . . A women's Red Cross outfit in a snazzy station wagon ambulance sees some real action when a rider gets the heave-o during a steeplechase.

Monday—Nosing around. . . . D'ya know what Orson Welles' nickname has been from childhood? Intimates call him Pookles, and he signs his letters that way! . . . Director Norman McCleod has had an eentsy weentsy cut in income. He isn't drawing those pineapple ads any more because there aren't any more pineapple ads. . . . Sam Goldwyn and RKO are working out a new deal for RKO to distribute Sam's pictures for another year. . . . First will be "The Pride of the Yankees"—in which, incidentally, Gary Cooper will be seen in a bathing suit for the first time.

Tuesday—To Paramount for a look at "Take a Letter, Darling." Rosalind Russell, Fred MacMurray, and Author Claude Binyon have made it a top grade comedy. . . . To RKO and a party for Dr. Assis Figueiredo, Brazil's assistant chief of press and propaganda. He's an amiable guy and no slouch as a good will ambassador. He says Brazil's former ban on anti-Nazi pix such as "The Great Dictator" was adopted because his country was trying to stay neutral. But that's all over and "today Brazil is grateful for those American motion pictures which so effectively convey the ideas and beliefs we share."

Wednesday—Will Price, dialog director, tells a story he picked up when he went home to Mississippi to marry Maureen O'Hara. One of Price's friends in Pascagoula is a business man of many interests, including a booming shipyard. This chap has an old colored servant named Tobe, who isn't useful for everything, but Tobe sure does know the art of raising pecans. The boss heard of a pecan orchard for sale some distance away. He told Tobe, "You go there and look it over, and, if you like the looks of it, we'll buy it." About four weeks passed without news. Tobe's boss, busy building ships, had forgotten all about him. Then came a wire: "Yes. Tobe." The boss-man couldn't remember what Tobe was doing, so he wired back, "Yes what?" Replied Tobe: "Yes sir."

Thursday — To 20th Century-Fox, where there are more pretty girls working! On the "Thunderbirds" set Gene Tierney, fresh as the old daisy after her vacation east, busts in on a Red Cross first aid class, where babes are giving each other artificial respiration. . . . On "Orchestra Wife" Linda Darnell is dancing with George Montgomery for a tearoom scene. Linda, who usually plays demure young things, has zip and youth in this one. Next week she and George are to do a jitterbug number—but both need lessons.

Friday—This should be a day off, but I have a date to interview Rosalind Russell at her house, and what darn fool would take a day off with a date like that? . . . More on Miss R. later. . . . I notice that the house is all over flowers. They're for her bridegroom, Fred Brisson—because today he became a United States citizen. He used to be a Dane. Got his citizenship as soon as possible because he wants to go in the army; and Miss Russell may rent the house and live wherever he is stationed. . . . In the evening to see "My Gal Sal," 20th Century's musical in color about Paul Dresser and his songs. It's one of the best screen musicals I ever saw.

Saturday — Desk work, and to Chasen's to a meeting of Hollywood members of the Players, and then to the annual party of the Warner Studio club.

Catholic Women's Party.

The Archdiocesan Council of Catholic Women will hold its annual benefit card party on Friday night at the Palmer House.

• Contract According to Culbertson •

[Copyright: 1942: By Ely Culbertson.]

There is no play in bridge more mysterious in operation than the aptly named "smother play." Let us carefully analyze the following deal:

South, dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

NORTH
♠ A 7 5
♥ K 6 4
♦ 10 6 4 2
♣ K Q J

WEST
♠ K 6 4 2
♥ J 9 5
♦ 9 8 3

EAST
♠ 3
♥ Q 10 8 7 3
♦ Q J 7

SOUTH
♠ Q J 10 9 8
♥ A 2
♦ A K 5
♣ A 7 5

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 spade	Pass	2 no trump	Pass
4 no trump	Pass	6 spades [final bid]

West opened the nine of diamonds. Dummy played the deuce, East the seven, and declarer won with the ace. The spade finesse was immediately tried and, to declarer's satisfaction, the queen held. When the jack was let ride, however, and East showed out, matters took on a different complexion. Apparently, the still-guarded king in West's hand would have to be conceded and, in addition, declarer had a diamond that was a sure loser.

There was just one chance, and that was to "consolidate" the two losers into one. Let us see how declarer went about this feat.

At the fourth trick declarer led the club ace, after which he cashed dummy's king and queen. He then led a heart to the ace and returned the heart deuce to the king. The heart six was led and ruffed by declarer. Now, with clubs and hearts eliminated from both hands, declarer cashed the diamond king, after which he merely exited by leading the five of diamonds. East won with the queen, and at this point the situation was:

♥ None
♦ 6
♣ None

WEST
♠ K 6
♥ None
♦ None
♣ None

EAST
♠ None
♥ Q
♦ None
♣ 9

SOUTH
♠ Q J
♥ None
♦ None
♣ None

Now declarer was "home." It did not matter whether East returned the heart or the club. Actually, he chose the former. Declarer ruffed with the spade jack and West was helpless. If he chose to overruff with the king, dummy in turn would overruff with the ace, and declarer still would have the spade queen. If West chose to underruff declarer's spade jack, obviously dummy would discard the diamond and the spade ace would remain for the 13th and fulfilling trick.

Small Child's Rudeness May Have Reason

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

[Copyright: 1942: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

In spite of the fact that our mail is full of provocative questions about children, and interestingly written accounts here and there of problems solved, very little of this correspondence has gotten into our column for a long while. So this week we'll mend our ways with some questions and answers. Here is today's letter:

"Dear Mrs. Bevans:

"My daughter was just 3 years old. She is very sweet and good at home, but when I am walking with her she is quite 'fresh' to adults. She loves other children and plays beautifully with them. She is very generous and shares all her possessions. But whenever she meets adult acquaintances of mine she says 'get out of here' or some such remark. Today I met an acquaintance and this person obstructed my daughter from entering a store in back of me, so my child said 'you're a big elephant.' I ignored it. However, this woman repeated the remark to several women in the store and they all agreed I definitely should have reprimanded her and made a big issue of it. I felt that if I ignored the remark she would never say it again, inasmuch as she had never used this particular expression before. They all seemed to agree I was wrong."

And the reply:

"The particular incident you describe certainly does not redound to the credit of the grownup involved. She was making herself definitely disagreeable to your little girl; and your child expressed her frustration and helplessness by calling names. Besides, we must admit, with a smile, that 'elephant' didn't sound as bad to the child as to the woman.

"So there are two possible explanations of your small daughter's rudeness to adults. One is that, perhaps, many adult friends or relatives have been rude and even unpleasant to her. Some grownups are this way with children, and they reflect the attitude. The other thought is that your little girl may have heard these expressions and seen these manners used by other children, and is copying them. Since she is so sweet at home, the reason seems to me to be the fault of others.

"You were certainly right in not making an issue of the incident you described. I think public scenes, spankings, and scoldings of children are uncalled-for, and do not get any one anywhere, except to satisfy rather vindictive adults. However, your little girl is old enough for you to talk quietly to her about these things at home, and be made to understand how rude her remarks make her seem to others. I take for granted that you are gradually and gently trying to teach her the ordinary amenities of life, as she is able to absorb these ideas, such as saying: 'Thank you,' and 'please,' and 'excuse me,' and practicing other simple little courtesies.

"Unfortunately, and too often, we have to expect even our small children to exercise more self-control and courtesy than many adults! So we find ourselves saying, 'Even if another person is rude, we don't want to be rude.'"

TORONTO WINS; DETROIT MANAGER SUSPENDED

NELSON, HOGAN TIE; PLAY FOR MASTERS' TITLE TODAY

BEN PICKS UP 3 STROKES ON LAST 18 FOR 280

Texas Rival Falters on 17th Hole.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Augusta, Ga., April 12.—John and Bill will play a golf match tomorrow. This is not a sentence out of one of Dr. McGuffey's readers. It is a statement of the fact that John Byron Nelson of Toledo, O., and William Benjamin Hogan of Hershey, Pa., will tee off against each other at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow for the ninth annual Master's golf championship.

Two kids, who once met each other in a Texas caddy tournament 16 years ago, and in the final of their home state battle two years back, will clash for the third time. None calls these gents by their first given names. It's not John and Bill, but By and Ben.

Hogan shot a 70 this afternoon, thereby finishing with a 72 hole score of 280, eight under par for the Augusta National course. In doing so he made up three strokes on Nelson who westerday led at the 54 hole mark with 207. Today Nelson took 73. Hogan was happy about the five footer with which he got his birdie on the 12d for a final round of 70. But he felt that would do not better than second. He knows Nelson, his pal, as well as any one else in the game.

32 Helps Nelson in 1937.

Nelson had once shot a 32 on that back nine in order to win his 1937 Master's title. Hogan knew that Nelson was not capable of another 32 this afternoon. But he did think that his friend would make those three pars needed for the 279 that would tie the tournament record set three years ago by Ralph Guldahl of Chicago.

Ben was wrong. So was By, when he selected a No. 8 iron on his second shot to the 400 yard 17th green. There he buried the 8 iron in the sand and wound up with a bogey 5. Both had missed little putts previously, Nelson one from 10 inches on the fourth and Hogan from less than a yard on the seventh. The last No. 6 iron and 6 foot putt of Hogan's and Nelson's poor iron, [for him, it was a poor shot by a great iron player] brought this party into extra innings for the second time in its history.

There has been only one other extra session in the records of this tournament. That was precipitated by the deuce which Gene Sarazen hurled at Craig Wood on the 485 yard 15th and thereby tied Craig, ultimately winning the playoff in 1935.

They've Met Before.

This unscheduled arrangement tomorrow matches two 30 year olds born in the vicinity of Fort Worth, Tex., within six months of each other. And it isn't the first time they ever have met. Back there in 1926, the members of the Glen Garden club used to hold a Christmas tournament and party for their caddies. The Nelson boy and the Hogan boy, having watched their employers swing clubs were getting to know how to swing them. They wound up in a tie, with Nelson winning the playoff. They encountered each other again in 1940 Nelson winning the Texas open playoff from Hogan by 70 to 71. Last summer in Denver, it was Nelson who eliminated Hogan from the National Open quarter finals at 2 and 1.

So much for past performances of tomorrow's battlers. That is unless you want to know that Nelson won the Masters' in 1937, the National Open in a double playoff in 1939, and the National PGA in a 36 hole final with Sam Snead. O, and he did go 38 holes in defense of that title at Denver. Hogan? All this 140 pound citizen has done is to take over two departments valuable to all remaining golf professionals working in road companies. Ben holds the Vardon trophy and money winning titles.

Runyan Third with 283,

To go away from [John] Nelson and [Bill] Hogan for a space, they didn't have this tournament to themselves today. A little man named Paul Runyan, who played with Nelson this afternoon, projected himself into the party by doing a 71, one under par, for the 283 that gave him third place. Sam Byrd, who once understudied a man called Ruth in the New York Yankee outfield before he went into pro golf, followed in fourth place with 285, no thanks to a six on the ninth, where Byrd hooked his second over third base and then took three strikes on that green.

For the record, the host did all right, and the army tied the navy. In other words, Host Bobby Jones worked hard for his 78, the score that gave him a 72 hole total of 304. That was matched by another Atlantan, Ensign Charley Yates of the Charleston navy yard, who played with Jones this afternoon, off a 76. The army was represented by Corp. Marvin [Bud] Ward of Fort George Wright, Spokane, Wash. Ward was glad to see a 75 for the score that tied the

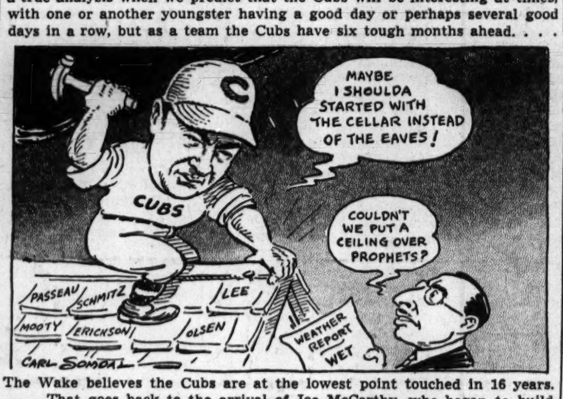
In the Wake of the News

BY ARCH WARD.

THE Chicago Cubs, not many years ago one of the most interesting teams in major league baseball, tomorrow will open their season at St. Louis. . . . It would be pleasant to paint a word picture about the devastation they might spread in St. Louis, Brooklyn, Cincinnati, New York, and other cities with potential National league champions. . . . Critics would label such a piece an unadulterated fake. . . . Cub officials are optimistic. . . . They place their hopes in a group of youngsters who still must prove their major league caliber. . . . We have been in this profession long enough to know there is nothing certain in sport; otherwise it wouldn't be sport. . . . The 1942 Cubs may measure up to the high goal set for them by club executives. . . . None will be happier than this department if that comes to pass. . . . But we feel we are much closer to a true analysis when we predict that the Cubs will be interesting at times, with one or another youngster having a good day or perhaps several good days in a row, but as a team the Cubs have six tough months ahead. . . .



The Wake believes the Cubs are at the lowest point touched in 16 years. . . . That goes back to the arrival of Joe McCarthy, who began to build immediately. . . . It took him four seasons to win a pennant. . . .

When McCarthy took over the Cubs he had a fairly sound foundation on which to work. . . . A few newcomers did the rest. . . . There is little or no backbone on this year's squad. . . . Older players have been sent away, some of whom probably would have stabilized the club until the youngsters have acquired enough experience to travel on their own. . . . A year or two from now some of the new talent may develop satisfactorily, but until then we believe Jim Wilson is carrying the heaviest load in major league baseball. . . . If the Cubs this season succeed in finishing in the first division, it will take phenomenal pitching to offset the lack of hitting power and shaky fielding. . . . Will Bill Lee be the effective pitcher he was a few years ago? . . . Can Claude Passeau turn in between 15 and 20 victories? . . . Will Vern Olsen suffer a recurrence of his stomach miseries? . . . How many victories will Wilson find in the arms of Jake Mooty, Vallie Eaves, Paul Erickson, and Johnny Schmitz? . . . When a roof begins to leak it must be repaired at once to prevent heavy damage. . . . The Cub roof was allowed to leak until it had become almost a sieve. . . . If Jimmy Gallagher and Jimmy Wilson this spring have patched up the leaks, they deserve ratings as master roofers.

Inward Confusion.

Six times a drunk knocked at my door last night
And each time when I went to let him in
He staggered slightly but was quite polite
And said, "Excuse me!" with a silly grin;
But just as I got ready to undress,
And while my hotel room was still unlocked,
I heard what seemed commotion or distress
And as I listened some one sharply knocked.
I opened up the door and there again
Stood my polite inebriated friend.
The look upon his features made it plain
That he was having trouble to no end;
He backed away and murmured: "Holy hell!
Do you own every room in this hotel?"

Suddenly in front of me the hotel tripped toward the street. I tried to run, but the street came up and met me. Every one around me fell down, but a policeman held me up. KUHEL STEALS HOME—AND THE SERIES FOR SOX

Hanyzewski Holds Ball, So Cubs Lose, 4-3.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Joe Kuhel, the old but sprightly White Sox first baseman, a magician or parts, mesmerized the Cub battery of Eddie Hanyzewski and Clyde McCullough yesterday, then pranced across the plate while they were under his spell. The run gave the Sox the final of the spring exhibition series, 4 to 3, and also the spring city championship, six victories to five.

Young Hanyzewski, personable boy wonder from the South Bend sandlots, entered the game at the start of the sixth inning after Vallie Eaves had left him the heritage of a 3-all tie. In the sixth Luke Appling and Harry Sketchley easily were retired on infield outs. Myril Hoag knocked a single but was promptly forced by Bob Kennedy. The exuberant muscle boy from St. Joseph county, Indiana, was very happy.

Has Sox Under His Spell.

In the seventh inning Tom Turner and Eddie Smith contributed infield outs. Don Kolloway walked, then Wally Moses tapped to Hanyzowski [pronounced Hanazesski], who was happier than ever as he tossed to Phil Cavarretta for the third out.

Kuhel, first up in the eighth, ran the count to three balls and two strikes, then lined a single to right field. Appling singled to left, putting Kuhel on third. Then Eddie Hanyzewski went to work with all the skill that made him famous in the Dune country. He struck out Sketchley. He made Hoag pop to Lou Stringer. Two out and the score still was tied.

Then while the kid pitcher, who won the Cub camp with his amazing poise in exhibition games, stood in the middle of the diamond ready to pitch to Kennedy—it happened.

And Joe Comes Home.

While Eddie was holding the ball, Appling ran half way to second and stopped. By this time Kuhel had on a full head of steam, bound for home with another Sox city championship under his arm. Eddie promptly was in a panic. He couldn't make up his mind what to do with the ball—not until Kuhel had stolen home and Appling had stolen second. He made a try for Luke, but was much too late, tho the result could have been the same if he had speared Appling, for Kuhel by this time was starting for the dugout.

Kennedy walked after a 3 and 2 count but was forced by Turner and the Sox had concluded their spring exhibition offensive. The Cubs went out in order in the ninth.

Smith was the winning pitcher. The southpaw dedicated five innings to showing the Cubs how little they know about the hitting art when the pitching is good. In the five innings Smith worked as successor to Bill

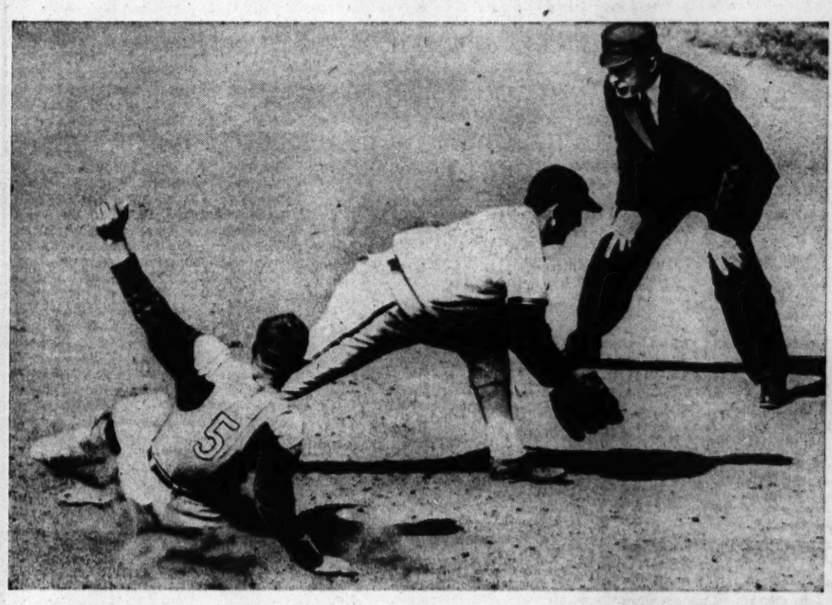
Sox Alertness Pays Off on a Freak Play



Clyde McCullough, Cubs' catcher, being forced at second base on a short fly which fell safely in right field in the second inning of yesterday's game with the White Sox in Comiskey park. Harry Sketchley, Sox right fielder, failed to catch the ball hit by Bob Sturgeon, but Second Baseman Don Kolloway, on the alert, backed up the play, picked up the ball and fired it to Luke Appling for the out. The umpire is Joe Rue. The Sox won, 4 to 3. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

WHITE SOX, CUBS READY TO OPEN LEAGUE RACES

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The White Sox will try on their new suits this morning to make sure the tailor didn't make more than a few mistakes. Then the players will take light exercise in Comiskey park. The Cubs have been ordered to assemble at Wrigley field at 11 o'clock and may work or do nothing. It all depends on how Boss Jim Wilson feels at the time. One thing certain is that he will advise them to be on time for the 4:50 p. m. train today for St. Louis. They will open the season tomorrow against the Cardinals.

Vallie Eaves' first pitch of yesterday's game was directly at Don Kolloway's head, but the Sox second baseman did a safety first dive. Coach Mule Haas then started some of his very choicest jockeying to which Eaves made reply. Eaves followed with a pitch that plunked Kolloway in the back. It was all good, clean fun, of course.

Thornton Lee, the Sox able left hander who has been tormented by a sore shoulder for more than two weeks, pitched batting practice yesterday and reported the arm that won 22 games last season felt excellent.

The Sox pitching program for tomorrow's opener against the Browns in Comiskey park and the two subsequent games of the series is John Rigney, Johnny Humphries, and Bill Dietrich. The only definite announcement by Wilson was that Claude Passeau probably will serve against the Cardinals in the St. Louis inaugural.

Taft Wright, Sox regular right fielder, devoted most of yesterday to heat treatment. The pudgy fellow is the victim of a pulled abdominal muscle and there still is some doubt as to whether his valuable bat will be working in behalf of the Sox tomorrow.

The two Dykes boys—Jim Jr. and Charles—watched yesterday's game in hopes of picking up some baseball pointers. They leave today for Jonesboro, Ark., where the Waterloo, Ia., club, with which they'll start their pro careers, is doing its spring training.

ABC Gets Three New Leaders; Burton Tops Singles with 746

Columbus, O., April 12 [Special].—The man who keeps the standings in the American Bowling Congress tournament spent one of his busiest days of the meet today, following an early morning sortie by the St. Louis Budweisers who nearly displaced Chicago's Budweisers as the team leaders. First place in the singles, doubles, and all-events changed hands in a rousing attack on the pins by midwest stars after the St. Louis Buds had rolled 3,111, only 20 pins short of the 3,131 total recently piled up by Joe Wilman's Chicago Randolph league team.

The new singles leader is Nelson Burton, a member of the St. Louis Budweisers, who struck out in the 10th frame of his third game for a 746 total. Burton opened with 235 and then hit 246 and 265. Burton won the ABC doubles with Virgil Gibbs in New York in 1937. He also took 12th in the all-events today with 1,917, just behind teammate Art Scheer who got 1,922.

Milwaukeeans Take Doubles Lead.

A pair of Milwaukeeans, Eddie Nowicki and George Baier, took over first place in the doubles, piling up a 1,377 total to beat out Angelo Zanoni and John Seebeck of Clifton, N. J., who had hit 1,365 on an earlier squad today. Nowicki, 29 years old, rolling in his fifth tournament, scored 245-231-206 for 682. Baier, a diminutive machinist, counted 224-235-236 for 695. Zanoni had rolled 670 on 233-192-245, and Seebeck piled up 213-245-237 for 695.

The Milwaukee pair's 1,377 is the sixth highest ever recorded in an ABC tournament. The all time record was set by Frank Benkovic and the late Gil Zunker, also of Milwaukee, who bowled 1,415 in 1933.

Simmons Has Big Day

Stan Moskal of Saginaw, Mich., rolled into the lead in the all-events with 1,973. Moskal had 599 in the team event, 711 in the doubles, and 662 in the singles. Moskal landed tenth in the doubles with Mike Gustat of Sagina on a 1,304 total.

It was a big day for Roy Simmons of Des Moines, Ia., too. He piled up enough strikes for a 711 to take ninth place in the singles, and then captured the fourth spot in the all-events with 1,952. Simmons coupled a 629 team score and 612 in the doubles to his 711.

Later Joe Fliger of Chicago hit 1925 in the all-events and 708 in the singles, to tie for ninth in the all-events and 708 in the singles for eleventh place.

Henry Wollenberg of Davenport, Ia., helped complete the day's excitement when he started his final game with eleven strikes and then missed the head pin to leave three pins standing and score 297. A perfect game has never been scored in the five-man event. Wollenberg's City Hall smokehouse team took seventh in the team event with 2,989.

MRS. J. C. MULLEN, WIFE OF BOXING PROMOTER, DIES

Mrs. James C. Mullen, wife of the pioneer Chicago boxing promoter, died last night in a washroom in the Bismarck hotel. Dr. Maurice W. Samuels, who attended her, said death was caused by a brain hemorrhage. Mrs. Mullen, 57 years old, suffered the attack while waiting to join her husband, their son, and a friend preparatory to leaving for a loop theater. The body was removed to the chapel at 5348 West North avenue. The family home is 1521 North Monitor avenue.

Detroit, Mich., April 12 [Special].—The Toronto Maple Leafs staved off elimination in the Stanley Cup hockey playoffs tonight by edging out the Red Wings in a bitterly fought game which ended in a near riot and the indefinite suspension of Jack Adams, Detroit manager.

The brawl came after the Leafs had gained a 4 to 3 decision over the Red Wings in the fourth game of the best of seven series—their first triumph—when Adams ran across the ice and started swinging at Referee Mel Harwood as he started for the dressing room.

Only a minute before, Harwood had assessed a $50 fine and misconduct penalty against Eddie Wares of Detroit and had penalized Don Grosso and fined him $25.

Fans Leap Into Fray.

As soon as the game ended Adams rushed across to the penalty box to where Grosso and Wares were arguing with Harwood and squared away against the official.

Both traded blows, with spectators joining in now and then, before police could separate them.

The crowd, which showed a dislike to the officiating by booing thruout and littering the rink with everything from paper and peanuts to a woman's shoe, hung about long after the game.

Frank Calder, league president, who saw the fight, suspended Adams immediately and prohibited him from taking any further part in the bench management of the team. Calder also raised the penalties on Grosso and Wares to $100 each.

The Leafs dressed quickly and left for Toronto, where the fifth game will be played Tuesday night, but there was jubilation and even Detroit feared the series might go seven games.

If other games are necessary they will be alternated at Detroit and Toronto next Thursday and Saturday, respectively.

Grosso Equals Scoring Record.

The game was played before a record crowd of 13,694 spectators.

With less than eight minutes to play in the final period Nick Metz fired home the winning goal for Toronto. The Leafs had spotted Detroit a two goal lead in the second period and had fallen one goal behind early in the third period.

Modere [Mud] Bruneteau and Sid Abel scored Detroit goals before the half way mark of the second period and the Leafs seemed headed for their fourth straight defeat.

But then Bob Davidson slapped the puck past Goalie Johnny Mowers at 13:54 of the second period, and less than 2 minutes later the veteran Lorne Carr blasted Billy Taylor's rebound into the cage.

Detroit went in front again on Carl Liscombe's 35 footer at 4:18 of the third period. Syl Apps, who had gone without a goal in the final series, then smashed one home to square the count again. Apps also assisted on Nick Metz's goal.

By picking up an assist on Abel's goal, Grosso equaled the all-time playoff record of 14 points held by Bill Cowley of the Boston Bruins.

GORDON GROH OF N. U. BEATS PRITZ FOR SWORD TITLE

Gordon Groh of Northwestern university won the intermediate duelling sword event in a meet sponsored by the Illinois Division Amateur Fencers League of America yesterday in the University of Chicago fieldhouse.

He was tied for first with Ben Pritz of the University of Chicago, each with three wins and one loss and won the fenceoff, 3 to 2. Demarest Polacheck of the University of Chicago was third, and Art Cohen, a teammate, placed fourth.

Roy Herter of Senn was undefeated in four bouts to win the state championship in the high school individual foils meet. A field of 38 fencers competed. Stan Jacobs of Senn was second [3-1], Ross Beynon of South Shore, third [3-2]; Bob Scanlon, of Lindblom, fourth; and Sam Meyerson of Austin fifth.

SPARTAS ENTER WESTERN FINAL; BEAT FALKS, 1-0

Jimmy Wolf Scores Lone Goal; Slovaks Lose.

BY OFFSIDE.

The Spartas kept their record clear of defeat by whipping the Falk Field club of Milwaukee yesterday, 1 to 0, to earn a finalist berth in the western division of the National Open Soccer cup tournament. A crowd of 4,000 watched the battle in Sparta stadium.

Preceding the cup semi-final, the Raftery Eagans of St. Louis whipped the strong Slovaks of Chicago, 4 to 3, in an intercity challenge contest.

Play in the Sparta-Falk clash was rough, three players, Tony Posejpal, Frank Pavlecik, and John Rega, suffering head cuts serious enough for time outs and the attention of trainers.

The Spartas crashed home the only goal of the match one minute before the end of the first period, when Jimmy Wolf and Pavlecik worked the ball up on the left side of the field, Wolf finally climaxing the movement by crossing over for Posejpal to beat William Rega, Milwaukee goalie, from five yards out.

Both teams launched sustained attacks in the second period, but brilliant work by Goalies Rega and Joe Silovsky repelled all thrusts.

The Spartas will face the winner of a home and home series between Galatin, Pa., and Slavia of Cleveland, O., in the western division final. Yesterday's lineup:

MIDGET RACER ADDS FIGHTING TO NIGHT OF SPEED

Tempers flared and fists flew last night during midget auto races in the International amphitheater, a racing driver becoming involved in two altercations with other contestants.

Jimmy Caris, former boxer, launched hostilities against Pete Nielsen of Los Angeles after his mount was bumped by Nielsen's car. Several punches were exchanged before officials and other drivers intervened.

When Caris' car was bumped again during the next race by Myron Fohr of Milwaukee, Jimmy came out of his cockpit swinging as soon as the two midgets had throttled down to a stop. Again some hard blows were exchanged.

Ray Richards recovered the lead in the race for the midwest season championship by winning the 30 lap feature in 5:08.01, a half car length in front of Fohr. Ted Duncan was third, and the belligerent Caris was fourth. Wally Zale captured the 15 lap handicap in 2:28.34, with Bob Muhlke finishing second. Warren Irwin was the winner of the 15 lap consolation race.

ALTICE CAPTURES VLA SHOOT AT LINCOLN PARK

Harry Altice won the annual V. L. and A. Memorial shoot yesterday afternoon at the Lincoln park traps, breaking 49 clay pigeons at 16 yards. In the class A event Jack Wintermeyer shattered 48 birds. C. Lopez captured class B honors with 48 and Henry Bock finished first in class C with 49.

In the handicap event A. E. Gade won first honors with 48. J. R. Anderson won the skeet shoot by breaking an even 50. Mrs. D. A. Flewelling took the women's event with a 47.

ADVANCE DATE OF BOSTON A. A. RACE TO APRIL 19

Boston, Mass., April 12 (AP).—To give workers in war industries a chance to see the race, the Patriot's day Boston AA marathon will be run for the first time on a Sunday—April 19. C. Desmond Wadsworth of the BAA said today the date was advanced from Monday, April 20, when the holiday will be observed in Massachusetts, at the request of Gov. Saltonstall.

SMILIN' JACK—SOMETHING IN THE WIND

SALLY GREEN AND PAGLIARO RETAIN NATIONAL TITLES

Detroit, Mich., April 12 (AP).—Louis Pagliaro of New York and Sally Green of Indianapolis still are the king and queen of table tennis.

Pagliaro, three times winner of the men's singles crown, defeated Charles Burns of Detroit, 21-12, 22-20, 21-17, in the finals of the national tournament at the university co-ed, beat Mrs. Mae Cloument tonight. Miss Green, Butler ther of Arlington, Mass., 22-20, 21-18, 21-13.

Holzrichter Wins Doubles.

Ed Pinner and Cy Sussman defeated Pagliaro and Jim Jacobsen, 21-7, 21-19, 19-21, 21-13, in an all-New York City men's doubles finals.

Other champions crowned today were Mildred Shahian of Boston and Mrs. Clouther, who defeated Leah Thall of Columbus and Miss Green in the women's doubles finals, 21-19, 23-21, 22-20, and Miss Thall and Bill Holzrichter of Chicago, who trounced Mrs. Clouther and Les Lowry of Somerville, Mass., in the mixed doubles finals, 20-22, 19-21, 21-14, 21-13, 22-20.

Tucker Tops Veterans.

Melvin Nichols, 14 year old high school sophomore from St. Louis, won the boys' title by beating Daniel Cory of Chicago, 11-21, 14-21, 21-11, 21-12, 21-19, and Marlin Tucker of Chicago won the veterans' singles crown from Bill Gunn of New York, 21-11, 21-17, 12-21, 21-16.

Pinner upset Holzrichter, seeded No. 2, in the quarter finals of the men's singles, 21-11, 15-21, 18-21, 21-13, 21-13.

National AAU Boxing Meet to Open Tonight

Boston, Mass., April 12 (AP).—With only one 1941 winner back to defend his title, the National AAU boxing tournament opening tomorrow night in the Boston Garden shapes up as a free-for-all.

The war has had its effect, especially in the absence of the always colorful Hawaiian fighters, but a good field is assured with more than 100 entries from 18 states and the District of Columbia.

Jimmy Mulligan, 160-pounder from Keith academy, Mass., is the only former champion in the field—and he leads the hardest hitting New England aggregation in the tournament in years.

Tabbed as the boy to watch, however, is Ralph McNeil, of Newark, N. J., the New York Golden Gloves flyweight champion who entered at the last minute.

All the entries are champions in their own communities in Oregon, Idaho, Washington, Utah, Missouri, Nebraska, Colorado, Louisiana, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Iowa, Arkansas, and Virginia.

As only one ring will be used, instead of the two or three in action in recent national tournaments, the AAU has authorized bouts of three two-minute rounds up to the semi-finals.

Another major change gives the boxers a two-day rest before the semi-finals and finals on Friday, when eight national champions will be crowned.

$25,000 for Riggs, Headaches for Others on Pro Tennis Tour

BY WILLIAM FAY.

Bobby Riggs always has been a handy man with a buck, a telephone slug or even a few breakfast food boxtops. Nobody will be surprised to learn, then, that Bobby finished first financially in the late and lamented pro tennis tour even tho Don Budge finished first in the won and lost column. Frank Kovacs was third and Fred Perry fourth.

Bobby Riggs.

Riggs received a $25,000 guarantee for turning pro. Budge and Perry were working for expenses plus commission, the winner of the tour to get 40 per cent of the profits, etc.

Promoter Lost $25,000.

There weren't any profits. Promoter Alexis Thompson probably lost $25,000 on the venture which drew only 100,000 spectators in 71 cities. Consequently, you might say that Budge received even less than Perry, for Don finished first and drew down 40 per cent of nothing, while Fred, in fourth, earned 10 per cent of nix, a clear gain of 30 per cent.

Kovacs received a $25,000 guarantee, also, but poor Frankie was taken for a ride, literally, by a press agent before he got to the cashier's window with his check. Two weeks before Thompson dreamed up the tour, Kovacs, still an amateur, was driving around Hollywood, Cal., with a press agent.

The Ride Begins.

"This is a swell car," Frankie observed.

"Like it?" the press agent asked. "Well, tell you what I'll do. Make me your business manager on a 50-50 basis, and I'll give you the car."

Frankie, who didn't see how in the world he could turn an honest penny until the next grass court season, readily agreed.

Consequently, when the Thompson offer came thru, Frankie learned that $25,000 divided by 2 is $12,500. A disheartening discovery then, but it may turn into quite a financial coup. That was a new car, remember, so Frankie now owns four slightly worn tires and a brand new spare. The spare, incidentally, was examined last week by experts who declared it a genuine Akron by that Old Master, Goodyear.

No Red Ink for Bobby.

But cash in the hand must be considered worth two on the rim, so Bobby has come out of the tour $12,500 ahead of Frankie and $25,000 ahead of both Don and Fred.

Bobby always had the Midas touch. He never appeared in want even in his struggling expense account days in the amateurs. He is reputed to have discovered—quite by accident one night while poring over his expense account at Seabright—the cost-plus contract which has gained considerable following of late among our shipbuilders.

Altho he trailed Budge on the tour, Bobby thinks he'll beat Don later this summer in the pro grass court tournaments. "I beat him the last three times we played," Bobby declared yesterday between sets at the Chicago Towns and Tennis club, "and I beat him at Indianapolis, too."

That Reminds Elm.

Recalling Indianapolis brought a grin and a story from Bobby:

It was 4-4 in the final set, Riggs serving to Budge, and behind 30-40. Don smacked a backhand down the line. Bobby thought the ball was out. The base linesman thought otherwise. The umpire called the point and the game for Budge.

Bobby moaned. He said harsh words to the linesman. He lifted his hands high, calling upon the whole auditorium to witness that he, Riggs, had fallen among thieves, cut-throats, and robbers.

One spectator in the first row of the balcony was not impressed. Advised this spectator: "QUIT STALLING, YOU LITTLE SHRIMP, PLAY TENNIS."

Bobby happened to have a tennis ball in his hand, so he forehanded it up to the balcony. The ball zipped past the nose of the unimpressed spectator and knocked off his hat [there were ladies present, anyway].

The Spectator Sits Down.

The spectator stood up, put one foot over the railing and paused, debating the risk of a 10 foot drop to the court against the gain of getting Bobby within grabbing distance.

The spectator was bigger by 6 inches and 50 pounds than Bobby. He thought fast. Sitting on the service line was Olin Parks, Notre Dame's Indiana state champion, who weighs 230 pounds and stands 6 feet 2 inches.

Bobby and Olin played doubles together in the Western last summer. Bobby rushed over to Olin and shook his right hand enthusiastically.

"What's going on?" Olin wanted to know.

"I just want to show that guy up there"—Bobby pointed to the poised spectator—"that we're good friends. Stand up a minute, will you?"

Olin stood up. The spectator sat down.

CHICAGOANS HIGH IN STATE MEET SINGLES, DOUBLES

Chicago Booster bowlers continued to dominate the 1942 Illinois State Bowling association tournament last night in the doubles and singles on the Sylvandell alleys in Aurora.

The Keeley Boosters of Chicago still were leading the five man event with a 2,891 series. Holding first places in the individual divisions were A. James and B. Rishe of Chicago with 1,137 in the doubles, and Frank Stankus of Chicago with 637 in the singles. Regulars will make their first appearance next week. Leaders follow:

EASTERN PAIR WINS D CLASS DINGHY RACE

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Dowry, Long Island Sound yachting veterans who recently purchased George Hamilton's D class Frostbite dingby, won the Chicago Yacht club's series of seven races yesterday with a score of 35 points.

Marvin Searle, with Joe Schack as crew, was runner up with 28 points, followed by Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Halligan with 27 points. A strong southeast breeze kept the little craft moving over the triangular course in Grant Park harbor.

The club has challenged the Grand Rapids [Mich.] Yacht club's dinghy fleet to an intercity regatta here April 25-26. Four teams of Grand Rapids yachtsmen would compete with four Chicago Yacht club crews. Chicago defeated Grand Rapids last year at Reed's lake, near Grand Rapids.

Park District Schedules Water Carnival This Week

The Chicago Park district will hold a water carnival on Wednesday, Friday, and Saturday evenings at 8 o'clock in Independence park, 3945 North Springfield avenue. Diving exhibitions and a water ballet will feature the program, which will be directed by Jack Dash.

CHICAGO FIVES BEAT CLEVELAND CYO CHAMPIONS

Cleveland, O., April 12 [Special].—Chicago's CYO basketball champions, Annunciation seniors and St. Leo juniors, won the annual inter-city games from Cleveland's CYO champions here this afternoon at Cathedral Latin gymnasium.

Annunciation defeated Holy Family, 55 to 26, and St. Leo came from behind in the second half to defeat Immaculate Conception, 30 to 26.

George Hoffman was high scorer for Annunciation with 14 points. Annunciation led at the half, 23 to 12. St. Leo, losing at the half, 16 to 12, won in the final period on a drive led by Bill Pallardy. Lineups:

WINS WOMEN'S NET TITLE.

Pittsburgh, Pa., April 12 (AP).—Katharine Winthrop of Boston defeated Hope Knowles of Avon, Conn., 1-6, 6-0, 6-2, today to win the singles of the Women's Invitation indoor tennis tournament at the Pittsburgh Golf club.

JOYCE GETS HIS CHANCE AGAINST SECREET TONIGHT

Willie Joyce, who lost a split decision to Sammy Secreet last December, hopes to even the score with the Canonsburg, Pa., welterweight in a 10 round return bout tonight in Marigold Gardens, Broadway and Grace street.

The 24 year old Gary lightweight faces quite a task, but he believes he can disprove the adage that a good little man can't beat a good big man. In three matches this year, Joyce pounded out a decision over Bill Davis of Minersville, Pa., lost a close fight with Tony Motisi, and scored a first round technical knockout over Jimmy Maddox of Terre Haute, Ind.

Davis and Maddox are lightweights, while Motisi is a welterweight. Against Maddox, Willie appeared in excellent form.

Sammy, who held Norman Rubio to a draw in a semiwindup in Madison Square Garden on Feb. 20, will be making his last appearance as a civilian boxer. Tomorrow he will report for duty as a coxswain at Great Lakes. Sammy expects to weigh 147 pounds and Joyce 138. Supporting matches:

George Baratka, Cleveland, vs. George Feltes, Great Lakes [6], 162.
Ramey McKnight, Milwaukee, vs. Isadore Miner, Chicago [6], 147.

Melio Bettina, Beacon, N. Y., heavyweight contender, who dealt Booker Beckwith a sound beating in the Stadium last Friday, will leave for home today. He expects to return for a contest against Lou Nova or Bob Pastor in the west side arena May 8. Nova and Pastor originally were scheduled to meet on that date, but it is indicated plans for this match may be abandoned. Eddie Short, formerly attached to the Stadium's publicity department, now is a private in the 82d signal corps at Camp Claiborne, La. Johnny Colan, New York light heavyweight, who stopped Ernie Vigh on the west side last Sept. 10, will come back Thursday to open training in Trafton's gymnasium for his 10 round headliner against Altus Allen in the Coliseum April 24.

REDS NOSE OUT TIGERS IN LAST EXHIBITION GAME

End Training Series with 6-5 Victory.

Cincinnati, O., April 12 (AP).—The Cincinnati Reds ended their exhibition game schedule today with a 6 to 5 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

Four walks by Harold White, rookie Tiger right hander, in the first two innings contributed to the Cincinnati score. Frank McCormick, Red first baseman, doubled in two runs in the first after a walk to Gerry Walker forced across a run and in the second, after walks to Hank Sauer and Lonnie Frey and a single by Eddie Joost filled the bases, drove in two more tallies with a single.

The winning run was singled home by Rookie Bert Haas in the fourth. Elmer Riddle, who yielded only two hits in the first two innings, got credit for the victory. The Tigers made six of their nine hits and four runs off Ray Starr, who issued eight walks. Score:

BRAVES BEAT RED SOX.

Boston, Mass., April 12 (AP).—Rookie Johnny Pesky, whom Manager Joe Cronin of the Red Sox brought up to take his place at shortstop, made four errors today as the Braves took the only game in the spring city series, 7 to 5, at Fenway park.

The Braves got five unearned runs in the fifth when Pesky gave them life by booting Ernie Lombardi's grounder with two out and the bases filled. Up to this time the Red Sox led, 3 to 2. Eddie Miller's double with the bases loaded accounted for three of the Braves' runs in that inning.

Six hundred service men in the crowd of 8,700 gave Ted Williams a rousing reception in his first appearance in Boston since his reclassification in the draft.

PIRATES BEAT A'S, 9-5.

Wichita, Kas., April 12 (AP).—The Pittsburgh Pirates concluded a successful spring training trip by defeating the Philadelphia Athletics, 9 to 5, here today.

The victory made it 7 out of 10 for the Pirates over their American league barnstorming mates and gave the Pirates a 17 won, 7 lost record against big league opposition as they wound up training.

Babe Phelps, Pirate catcher, hit a two run homer in the ninth after the Pirates had broken a 5 to 5 deadlock with a two run rally in the seventh.

THE GUMPS—SIGNER'S TROUBLE

Yankees Beat Dodgers, 8-7; Browns Win

New York, April 12 (AP).—Ed Levy, who today was added officially to the New York Yankee roster, emphasized his right to the first base job with the world champions by driving in three runs as New York nosed out the Brooklyn Dodgers, 8 to 7. The outcome gave last year's world series rivals a split of three games apiece in their spring series.

Whitlow Wyatt and Ernie Bonham, who faced each other in the final game of the series last fall, opened on the mound today but soon turned the chores over to teammates. Newt Kimball, who hurled the four middle innings for Brooklyn, was pounded for seven of the Yankee runs and 10 hits.

Augie Galan hit a homer with two on in the seventh and John Rizzo hit another with the bases empty in the ninth. A crowd of 20,086 saw the contest. Score:

GIANTS, INDIANS CANCEL AGAIN.

Cleveland, O., April 12 (AP).—The Cleveland Indians and New York Giants rounded out a week of loafing here today when weather conditions canceled their last scheduled exhibition game. It was the seventh consecutive day the teams had been forced to loaf.

MONARCHS TAKE SUNDAY TITLE IN CLASSIC LEAGUE

The Monarch Beers left no doubt that they are champions of the Sunday division of the Classic Bowling league. They needed only one victory to clinch the title last night at Cascade Bowling center, then went out and swept three games with National, meanwhile piling up 3,044 on games of 1,031, 1,009, and 1,004.

The Monarchs thus finished three games ahead of Schlitz, also winner of three games over Blatz. Schlitz topped Monarch's 3,044 by shooting 1,147 in the final game to get 3,069.

Paul Krumske, Schlitz anchor, won the Sunday division individual title for the second straight year. His total last night was 673, which raised his average to 206.7. He is also the probable champion in the Wednesday division in which he has 206.44. Scores:

All Square at 72 Holes—Now for Playoff

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Ben Hogan (left) and Byron Nelson, fellow Texans who yesterday tied for the lead with 280s in the Masters' golf tournament on the National course in Augusta, Ga., check up on their scores. They will meet in an 18 hole playoff today for the title.

Hogan, Nelson Tie at 280 for Masters' Lead

navy. Wood was pleased with the 34 with which he finished the first nine today. It didn't put him in the same groove with which he won the National Open and the Masters' last year, but it did give him a 302, for which he was grateful.

The final cards for Nelson and Hogan follow:

Par, out	454	343	454—36
Nelson, out	453	444	563—38—207—245
Hogan, out	454	343	544—36—210—246
Par, in	443	545	344—36— 72
Nelson, in	433	544	354—35— 73—280
Hogan, in	443	445	343—34— 70—280

Nelson hit a beautiful drive on the 525 yard second that kicked into the rough on the left. After he and Runyan had been delayed by the preceding twosome, when Chick Harbert of Battle Creek, Mich., lost his ball in the ravine to the left, Nelson switched from his first choice of a spoon to an iron and played his second short from the bad lie.

His third landed 25 feet above the pin and he took two from there, Runyan picking up a stroke with a seven foot birdie putt. A 12 footer dropped for Nelson on the third, but he missed the teeny putt on the short fourth. He three putted the 185 yard sixth also, was trapped at the seventh, and in the woods at the eighth. He finally dropped a putt for a birdie on the ninth. Runyan, whose only error of the nine was taking three from the fringe of the fifth, had holed a 15 footer for a birdie on No. 7.

Nelson Gets Birdie on 11th.

Coming home, Nelson dropped a 35 foot putt for a birdie three at the 11th. After he had hammered a No. 4 wood from a hanging lie onto the green at the 485 yard 15th, he rimmed the cup from 10 feet in trying for an eagle. He got this par at No. 16, then went for for the flag at the next, but his iron second buried the ball in the sand and he wound up with a bogey five. He was on the 18th in two, but his putt ran by and wide of the cup.

Hogan, missing birdie putts of less than 12 feet on the opening three greens, got his pars on the next three, and then hit his iron shot too heavily to the seventh, catching the lip of the bunker fronting the green. His recovery was elegant, but he blew the putt of less than a yard remaining. On the eighth and ninth, Hogan's deliberation over his third shots was unusually long. From off the right of the mound-shielded eighth, he dropped his third six feet past the cup and sank the putt for a birdie four. He was in the sand before the ninth, then measured it as tho he aimed to hole it therefrom. What's more, he almost did, getting his four from three feet above the cup easily.

Misses Chance for Eagle.

He missed 15 footers for birdies on the 10 and 11th, got his par three from the edge of the water 12th. Another 15 footer on the 480 yard 13th in search of an eagle, failed to drop. He was over the green in the bank on the long 15th, and happy to get his par five from there. Came the two pars on the 16th and 17th and the No. 6 iron and putt on the home carpet.

Conns Are Parents of 6 Pound 4½ Ounce Son

Pittsburgh, Pa., April 12 (AP).—Mrs. Billy Conn, wife of Pittsburgh's heavyweight boxing title contender, gave birth to a son weighing six pounds, 4½ ounces in Mercy hospital early today. Hospital attachés reported both mother and child were doing well. Conn, who enlisted recently as an army private, obtained a short furlough to be at his wife's bedside.

MorelandWins 4th Midwest Golf Tourney

French Lick, Ind., April 12 [Special].—In a 10-hole playoff, Gus Moreland of Peoria, Ill., today won his fourth Midwest Amateur golf championship here, nosing out Gus Novotny of Memphis, Tenn., who had led the scoring during the first two rounds.

Each finished the 54 hole distance with 233 and went on in what was intended as a nine hole playoff, only to tie again with 37s. On the extra hole, the 28th of the day, Moreland dropped a putt for a par 4, taking the title when Novotny had a 5.

Novotny Misses Chance.

Coming up to the 18th hole, the men were tied and each took a 5. Novotny missed his chance when he three-putted from 15 feet away from the cup. Moreland's score for the day's first 18 was 39—37—76, and Novotny's 38—41—79.

In the playoff Moreland was continually rescuing himself from the rough with brilliant shots, going into a three stroke lead at one time. Novotny managed to even matters with a birdie three on the fifth hole of the deciding 10 and a par three on the following hole. On both these occasions he sank 15 foot putts.

In third place was John Lehman of Chicago, who had lowest score of the day and the tournament, a 75, for a 54 hole total of 237.

Hunter Hicks Fourth.

Right behind Lehman was Hunter Hicks of Skokie, who carded 82 for a 238 total. Chick Evans, who went out today in a par 36 on the first nine, developed difficulty with his putting and finally ended up with a 77 and a total of 239, tying with Ben Conforti of Chicago and Walter Cisco of Louisville, Ky., for fifth place.

Kuhel's Steal of Home Wins for Sox, 4 to 3

Dietrich the Cubs got one batsman to first base. Stan Hack got there in the eighth on a walk.

The score was 3 to 2 in favor of the Cubs when Dietrich completed his day's work, tho the Sox had comforted Bill with a two run lead in the first inning.

Chief Has a Wild Streak.

Those first inning runs of the Sox were made on a grand total of one single, Chief Eaves having been a slightly wild Indian during the session. Eaves hit Kolloway, first up for the Sox, with a pitched ball and Don galloped to third on Moses' single to right. Kolloway held third while Eaves threw out Kuhel, but he scored while Bob Sturgeon was throwing out Appling, Moses taking third, whence he scored on a wild pitch. Sturgeon then threw out Sketchley.

The Cubs tied the score in the second before the Sox could accomplish a putout. Dom Dallessandro pushed off with a double to left center and stopped at third on Cavarretta's sharp single to left, Phil taking second on Hoag's throw to the plate. McCullough singled to left to score Dallessandro and Cavarretta with the tying runs. There was no further progress in the remainder of the inning and the only hit the Cubs made after the second inning was a single which Cavarretta wasted at the start of the fourth.

Sox Tie It in Fifth.

A pass to Hack, Charley Gilbert's sacrifice, a pass to Bill Nicholson, the fourth ball being a wild pitch, and an infield out produced the run which gave the Cubs a 3 to 2 lead in the third.

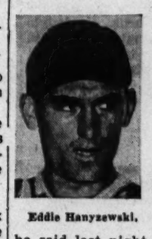
Moses' single in the first inning and Hoag's with two out in the fourth were the only hits off Eaves when he started his last inning, the fifth. But in the fifth the Sox touched up Vallie for three singles and the tying run. The hits were by Tom Turner, Smith, and Moses, the run by Turner. Thereafter followed the scoreless prolog to the Hanyzewski lapse in the eighth.

RUTH HAS JUST ABOUT WON FIGHT WITH PNEUMONIA

Hollywood, Cal., April 12 (AP).—Babe Ruth just about had pneumonia beaten today. He spent a restful night and his temperature was normal, attendants at the Hollywood Presbyterian hospital reported. He isn't permitted visitors yet and attendants wouldn't guess how long he will be forced to stay in bed.

Ed Hanyzewski Roots for Sox Despite Theft

Eddie Hanyzewski, Cubs' rookie pitcher, didn't exactly enjoy himself immediately after Joe Kuhel stole home yesterday to give the White Sox a 4 to 3 victory and the spring city series championship, but he won't let his most embarrassing baseball moment get him down.



Eddie Hanyzewski.

"The funny thing about it," he said last night, "was that I was expecting the Sox to pull something. When Luke Appling broke for second, I stepped off the mound. I decided to bluff a thro to second to invite Kuhel to leave third base. My thought was to throw to third, but I guess I hesitated too long, because it was too late even to catch Joe at the plate. I wasn't scared, but maybe I was a little excited."

Eddie hopes to get a starting assignment for the Cubs. He believes the White Sox will give the Yankees a hard battle for the pennant and just to show that he holds no ill-feeling against Kuhel or his associates, he said: "I hope they beat 'em out."

AWAIT ORDERS FROM OPA ON RENT FREEZING

Realtors Say Increases in City Reasonable.

The appointment of a rent dictator for Chicago seems assured, it was agreed yesterday by Ald. Arthur Lindell (9th), chairman of the city council rent committee, and Leonard Downie, business manager for the Chicago Real Estate board. They said it appeared likely that Leon Henderson, head of the Office of Price Administration, would name some one to enforce an order he is expected to issue soon to effect the freezing of rentals here.

Ald. Arthur Lindell.

Wait Washington Order.

Pending the issuance of the expected order, there is little to be done by either the real estate board or by the council committee, the spokesmen said. Ald. Lindell said he couldn't give information to tenants or landlords until the word comes from Washington.

"We still recommend that no rent increases exceeding 5 to 7 per cent be put into effect," Downie said.

Downie said real estate owners see no necessity for government intervention here. He said the average rent increase on homes is 5.7 per cent. "This represents the increased cost of labor and material. Increased taxation may mean additional rent increases later on, he said, but at the present taxes have no bearing on raising of rents.

U. S. to Enforce Order.

"The government and Ald. Lindell didn't want to hear the landlord's side of the rent problem," Downie said. "Ald. Lindell wanted government intervention and undoubtedly he will get it," he added.

"Neither the mayor nor the city council will have anything to do with naming the rent administrator, if one is appointed," Lindell said. "I don't know what the attitude of the city will be on an order from the OPA. Therefore there is nothing we can do now."

Ald. Lindell said about 65 per cent of the city's leases expire May 1. The other 35 per cent expire Oct. 1. He said he believed 90 per cent of the May 1 leases have been negotiated at new rental figures.

Downie said the average rent increase is $2.50 per month. The board has acted in hundreds of cases where tenants objected to proposed increases and in almost all cases have been able to effect adjustments acceptable to both sides.

WAR VETS MAP PLANS TO AID IN ARMY RECRUITING

Ten state commanders of the Veterans of Foreign Wars completed plans here yesterday for aiding the recruiting of the army air corps. They announced they will provide medical assistance for recruits who wish to join the service but have physical defects which can be corrected.

The VFW will in addition give aid to volunteers whose deficiency in educational requirements can be made up.

The commanders, meeting in the Morrison hotel, adopted a resolution calling for conscription of all the resources of the nation and for complete price control. States represented were Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin, Kentucky, Ohio, Iowa, Missouri, Kansas, Michigan, and Oklahoma.

THE 'PETTICOAT BRIGADE' IS OUT OF OCD AT LAST

20 Highly Paid 'Experts' Go; Hysteria Also.

BY JOHN FISHER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 12.—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt has been followed out of the Office of Civilian Defense by her petticoat coterie of experts on "frills," a checkup disclosed today.

The President's wife packed her briefcase and left her office as assistant OCD director Feb. 20 after she had been invited none too gently to take that step by aroused members of congress following disclosures that OCD was being run as another WPA project rather than an agency to protect America's civilian population.

The Ballyhoo Is Over.

Today the OCD has settled down to more humdrum functions without the ballyhoo and hysteria-shouting that characterized its earlier days under Mayor Fiorello La Guardia of New York City and Mrs. Roosevelt, whose friends occupied the plush offices in a ritzy apartment building from which the tenants had been ousted by government edict.

More than 20 high paid executives, about a dozen volunteers and a proportionate number of clerks were swept out of the OCD in the spring housecleaning which followed Mrs. Roosevelt's exit. Liquidation was ordered for some of the more obvious boondoggling divisions, including the "youth" and "know your government" sections, as well as the office of "inspectors general" which was a $6,500 a year parking place for exmayors who were friends of the administration.

Dan Hoan Is Out, Too.

Among these former mayors who were taken off the pay roll were T. Semmes Walmsley of New Orleans, La., Bernard F. Dickmann of St. Louis, Mo., and Joseph D. Scholtz of Louisville, Ky. Daniel W. Hoan, former Socialist mayor of Milwaukee, Wis., also was severed from his job as assistant director of "state and local coöperation."

But the two most celebrated members of the "frills and furbelows" set of the OCD were Mrs. Roosevelt and her friend and protégée, Miss Mayris Chaney, blonde night club dancer, whose appointment at $4,600 a year to supervise folk dancing, singing, and picnicking, started the whole rumpus over OCD activities and brought on the purge. Miss Chaney preceded Mrs. Roosevelt out of office by two days.

Mrs. Morgenthau Goes.

Other members of the petticoat party who have vacated OCD offices include: Betty G. Lindley, wife of Ernest Lindley, New Deal columnist and President Roosevelt's biographer, who was on the pay roll at $5,600 a year as "principal civilian participation adviser"; Mrs. Henry Morgenthau, wife of the secretary of the treasury and close friend of the Roosevelt family, who was a deputy assistant director; Thelma Tabb, assistant racial relations advisor at $3,800 a year; Sara G. Matscheck; Mrs. Nathan Straus, consultant; Eleanor Pierson, consultant; Doris D. Rafler, consultant; Alice Pentlarge, consultant; Agnes Reynolds, business specialist in youth activities at $10.55 a day; Jane Seaver, junior assistant in youth activities at $2,600 a year, and the following volunteers: Mrs. Lucille Hill, Mrs. Lex Green, Mrs. Stanley Resor, Mrs. Lawrence Cramer, and Mrs. Edward Berle Jr.

Male members of the boondoggle set who have departed include Daniel Lang, who was a "roving reporter" and business specialist at $12.77 a day; Gilbert Harrison, civilian participation advisor in youth activities at $3,200; Samuel E. Ericsson, assistant specialist in youth activities at $2,600, and James Ward, also engaged in youth activities.

Melvyn's Vision Shattered.

The OCD arts council on which the spotlight focussed briefly when the movie actor, Melvyn Douglas, was appointed its head, has been whittled down to Mrs. Selma Hersch and a secretary instead of the vast specialist corps visioned by the starry-eyed actor, whose alleged communist front affiliations were attacked in congress. Douglas is in Hollywood, where he does odd jobs for the arts council between movie making, and hasn't occupied his office here since a brief stay shortly after his appointment about two months ago.

S. FORRY LAUCKS, ORIGINATOR OF 'YORK PLAN' SPEEDUP, DIES

Wrightsville, Pa., April 12 (AP).—S. Forry Laucks, a one time office boy who lifted a near bankrupt company to the top of its field and then helped to speed up America's great war production program by creating the "York plan," died last night.

The 72 year old president of the York Safe and Lock company at York, Pa., who obtained the nation's first private ordnance contract since the World war, also was prominent in the agriculture and dairy field.

The youngest of six children, Laucks, at 17, said higher education was a time-waster and told his father he would rather go to work than to college. Starting as an office boy, he became general manager three years later when the lock company was near bankruptcy.

In 1938 he perfected the "York plan" by which skilled workmen and small tool shops coöperated in turning out armament.

The funeral will be held Tuesday at his Laukmont farms near here.

FR. WOJTALEWICZ DIES IN FLORIDA; PASTOR 50 YEARS

The Rev. Father Francis M. Wojtalewicz, 81 years old, for more than 50 years pastor of Immaculate Conception Polish Roman Catholic church, 88th street and Commercial avenue, South Chicago, died yesterday in Miami, Fla., where he had been for the last four months, following a stroke in Chicago. The body will be brought to Chicago for burial, arriving here Tuesday evening.

Father Wojtalewicz was born in West Prussian Poland. He was brought to this country by his parents, studied for the priesthood, and was ordained in Milwaukee in 1889. He was one of the best known Polish-Americans in the country and following the first World war was almost constantly in touch with Paderewski, when the statesman and pianist was premier of Poland.

Funeral services are to be announced later.

GEN. BEAUMONT, VETERAN MARINE OFFICER, IS DEAD

San Diego, Cal., April 12 (AP).—Brig. Gen. John Colt Beaumont, 63 years old, veteran marine corps officer, died today at the naval hospital. He retired in 1940 because of a heart ailment.

Beaumont was a native of Washington, D. C., and a graduate of St. John's college and Fordham university. He was commissioned a second lieutenant in the marine corps in 1900.

He served in the Philippines and in the Nicaragua and Haiti revolutions and was commander of marines in Cuba during the World war. He was sent to China as commander of the 4th marine regiment in 1933.

Survivors include the widow, a daughter, and three sisters, Lady Beaumont Nathes, London; Mrs. C. H. Cobb, Annapolis, Md., and Mrs. Conrad Krez, Long Beach, Cal.

WRITER OF SONG POPULAR DURING LAST WAR DIES

James Morgan, 53 years old, writer of "Don't Bite the Hand That's Feeding You," patriotic song of World War I., died yesterday in County hospital of a heart ailment. He had made his home recently with his sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Caradine, 7544 Phillips avenue.

"When vaudeville was big he was in the big time," said Mrs. Caradine. "He spent most of his time in New York and Chicago. He struck his crest when he wrote that song. He wrote several others since but none of them ever struck the popular fancy."

Funeral services will be at 2 p. m. tomorrow in the chapel at 8944 Commercial avenue with burial in Oak Woods cemetery.

CURB ON FOREIGN LANGUAGE PRESS STUDIED BY U. S.

Suppression of All in Axis Tongues Considered.

Washington, D. C., April 12 (AP).—The government is studying the question of putting restrictions on the foreign language press in the United States, it was learned today.

The program has been under discussion in the justice and war departments for several weeks.

Officials said there was no question about the power to exercise control over the approximately 1,600 publications.

They said authority is ample under the 1917 act relating to trading with the enemy and also under more recent legislation.

Licenses Are Considered.

Military officials were reported favoring suspension of publications in German, Italian, and Japanese, and licensing all other foreign language printing. Justice department officials were said to favor some general control system such as licensing which could be used to weed out periodicals deemed undesirable.

The military argument is understood to be based on the job of translating and examining nearly all matter printed in foreign languages. This is said to be extremely difficult in some cases, notably Japanese.

It has been suggested that such publications carry translations alongside the foreign language matter, but this has met with the objection that the cost would virtually put the foreign language press out of business.

Service to Allen Groups Cited.

The justice department view is that, while the foreign language press raises problems, such publications also can perform considerable service as a contact between the government and noncitizens. It was said it has been valuable in such programs as alien registration, enemy alien identification, and surrender of contraband.

Publications in the enemy languages total nearly 400, according to latest figures. These include 220 in German, of which 13 are daily newspapers; 150 in Italian, with 8 dailies, and 25 in Japanese, with 9 dailies.

The leading groups in other languages are 213 in Yiddish, with 9 dailies; 159 in Spanish, with 9 dailies; 91 in Polish, with 9 dailies, and 61 in Czecho-Slovakian, with 6 dailies.

S. S. CARVALHO DIES; DIRECTED N. Y. NEWSPAPER

New York, April 12 [Special].—Solomon Solis Carvalho, 86 years old, former reporter whose business genius helped build the Hearst newspaper empire, died today at his home in Plainfield, N. J. He retired from several of his list of positions on William Randolph Hearst's newspapers in December, 1917, and became an advisory counsel to newspaper publishers. He had headed the company which published the New York American. He continued his connection with the Hearst organization as chairman of its executive committee. His widow and two daughters survive. He helped launch the Chicago American in 1900. He also had worked for Charles A. Dana and Joseph Pulitzer, famed publishers.

SYPHILITIC HEART DISEASE

kills more people each year than all our auto accidents!

As 40,000 people die each year of syphilitic heart disease—more than from all auto accidents, wouldn't it be well to be tested for this prevalent ailment? Organized by public-spirited citizens as a corporation "NOT-FOR-PROFIT," the Public Health Institute makes a full examination for syphilis and gonorrhea at very low cost, and gives individual treatments at fees so small as to be within the reach of every wage earner.

DAY by DAY on the FARM by GAIL COMPTON

Little Pigs in Clover.

April 12, 1942.

THE brood sows and their new litters are being moved each day from the big colony house at the Fox river farm to fresh clover pasture. As one sow and her litter leave the house the farrowing pen is cleaned out, disinfected, and another sow moves in to have her pigs.

The steady stream of swine in and out of the colony house indicates the importance and size of the swine program at the farm. So far 15 sows and their pigs have been moved to summer grass, and less than a quarter of the sows have come in.

One of the prime reasons for the success of the swine program at the farm each year is the famous McLean county [Ill.] system of swine sanitation which is rigidly enforced. The system was devised in 1919 by two members of the United States bureau of animal industry and first tried out in McLean county.

System Widely Used.

Since its inception the McLean system has been adopted in many states. There are four simple but necessary steps, all designed to prevent young pigs from becoming infected with any disease or worms.

The first step consists of cleaning the farrowing quarters thoroly. The pens at the farm are scrubbed with one pound of lye to 30 gallons of hot water. Then the quarters are sprayed with one pint of compound cresol solution to four gallons of water. The hot water kills worm eggs and the lye loosens the dirt. The disinfectant destroys any germs.

The second step is to wash the sides and udders of each sow with soap and water before placing the animal in the clean farrowing pens. This removes worm eggs which the young pigs otherwise might take in.

Third, the sows and litters are either hauled to clean pasture from the pens or are driven over ground that has not been used by hogs for a year. This prevents the sows and litters from picking up germs or disease by traversing old, filthy lots.

Clean Pasture Vital.

The fourth step is to make sure the sows and litters are confined to clean pasture and do not have access to old hog ground. The young pigs should be kept on clean pasture at least until they are four months old. Each sow and litter should have an acre of ground on which to graze. Good alfalfa fields, however, will carry five sows and their pigs, and good pastures of red clover, or oats and rape sown together, may carry three sows and their pigs.

The sows at the farm pair up and share an individual hog house on pasture. Before they leave the farrowing pens the sows thus paired are allowed to mingle with each other so that they are accustomed to another litter mixing with their own when they move to pasture.

The McLean county sanitation program has proved its worth. The average saving is almost two pigs per litter as compared with the days when no sanitation program was followed. The farm manager urges every hog raiser to adhere to the system if they expect ton weight litters.

THOMAS SMITH, N. Y. PUBLISHER, SUCCUMBS AT 61

New York, April 12 (AP).—Thomas R. Smith, 61 years old, editor and publisher of Liveright Publishing corporation, died Saturday in Bellevue hospital after a short illness. Smith and the late Horace Liveright were charged with indecency in 1928 for publishing the novel "Replenishing Jessica," and were acquitted.

Smith formerly was managing editor of Century magazine. He became associated with Liveright in 1921 as a director of Horace Liveright, Inc.

Upon Liveright's retirement in 1930, Smith and Arthur Pell continued the business under the name of Liveright, Inc. When the firm was thrown into bankruptcy, Smith organized Liveright Publishing corporation.

TEN FIRMS TOLD TO END WORKER DISCRIMINATION

5 Chicago Concerns Affected by Order.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 12.—Charging discrimination against Jews and Negroes in the hiring of war workers, President Roosevelt's committee on fair employment practice tonight ordered 10 companies in the Chicago and Milwaukee areas to cease such practices immediately.

Dr. M. S. MacLean.

The findings and directions to the companies, which hold millions of dollars in war contracts, were based upon public hearings held in Chicago on Jan. 19 and 20. Dr. Malcolm S. MacLean, president of Hampton institute, is chairman of the committee which made the report.

Names of Companies.

The committee said that the companies involved in the Chicago area are: Stewart-Warner corporation; Buick aviation plant at Melrose, Ill., a unit of General Motors corporation; Bearse Manufacturing company; Simpson Manufacturing company, and the Studebaker branch factory.

In the Milwaukee area the companies affected are Nordberg Manufacturing company, A. O. Smith corporation, Heil company, Allis-Chalmers corporation, and Harnischfeger corporation.

One company, the Majestic Radio corporation of Chicago, was commended by the committee for its prompt action in correcting discriminatory practices in its hiring of employes. The committee said that H. A. Gates, president of the company, discharged two of his supervisors "after he had checked and found the charges of discrimination made by the committee to be valid."

Charges of Committee.

"The complaints filed against the several companies," explained the committee, "included allegations that they had refused to employ either Negroes or Jews, or both; that they had given restrictive orders to either public or private employment agencies, asking for only white or only gentile workers; that they had advertised in newspapers for help and specified 'gentile,' or 'Protestant,' or 'white,' or that they had refused to give workers of certain races and creeds opportunity for promotion in keeping with their qualifications.

"The companies for the most part denied that they were discriminating, but in each case the committee found that the evidence supported the charges of discrimination. Each concern has been asked to file reports with the committee, showing the extent to which steps have been taken to bring the company's employment policies and practices into line with the national policy."

Alderman on Committee.

Earl B. Dickerson, Chicago, Negro alderman from the 2d ward and Democratic candidate for congress from the 1st Illinois district in Tuesday's primaries opposing the Kelly-Nash candidate, William L. Dawson, is a member of the President's committee which approved the report. Other members are William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, or his alternate; Philip Murray, president of the CIO, or his alternate; David Sarnoff, president of the Radio Corporation of America; Mark F. Ethridge, Louisville, Ky., publisher; P. B. Webster, vice president of the Pullman Porters brotherhood, and Maclean.

COMPANIES COMPLYING

Arthur A. Sullivan, attorney for the Studebaker corporation before the Chicago hearings of the committee, said last night that the percentage of negroes employed by the company thruout the area already is in excess of the ratio of the population.

"It is hard to understand," he said, "why the company should be included in any criticism. Our employment blanks, for the first time, in conformation with an order by the FBI, include questions as to race and religion for the express purpose of employing negroes. The company continues to employ them whenever possible. At the hearings here two members of the committee said the case against Studebaker was one of the weakest they had encountered, and we were then, as now, doing everything possible to conform."

Stewart-Warner's Position.

Frank A. Ross, senior vice president of Stewart-Warner corporation, said, "The company employs negroes, and we are trying as fast as possible to catch up on the ratio fixed by negro and white population. There is no discrimination. We have at present applications from all races and creeds and are employing them as we find places for them."

Dale E. Williams, operating manager of the Buick plant in Melrose Park, said he knew of no employment practices there which might be discriminatory.

"We have never discriminated and we are not going to begin now," he said. "Our position has been in accord with President Roosevelt's expressed stand. It was made plain some time ago by H. H. Vurtice, president of the company, and we are following it."

Predicts Great Change in U. S. Economic Plan

New York, April 12 [Special].—A drastically changed economic system for the United States after the war—a system described as a mixed economy based on full employment and full production—was predicted today by Stuart Chase, economist, in a special report to the Twentieth Century Fund.

Chase expects "a modified system of free enterprise, sustained at key points by government controls. Full employment will be insured by a system of public works in housing, conservation, power development, transport facilities. Every effort should be made to develop new products for the consumer industries."

He views such a system as the logical outcome of trends that have been developing in this country since 1914.

Five Major Points.

Defining the specific objectives of the new system, Chase states five major points:

FULL EMPLOYMENT — All men and women seeking work which cannot be found in private industry should be employed by the state.

FULL AND PRDUENT USE OF MATERIAL RESOURCES—Idle plant and idle machines must become as great a scandal as idle men. Natural resources, however, especially soils, waters, forests, must be utilized without progressive deterioration of these assets.

GUARANTEE OF THE FIVE ESSENTIALS—Food, housing, clothing, health services, education.

SOCIAL INSURANCE—This would include old age allowances, benefits for sickness, accident, temporary unemployment, child bearing.

LABOR STANDARDS—These would include minimum wages, maximum hours, standards for working conditions in every branch of employment.

Has Resources to Win War.

Chase asserted the United States had everything it needed to win the war and win the peace.

"It has resources, the man power, the science, and technical skills to give the people all they demand, without surrendering the ballot or the Bill of Rights."

Chase's report, entitled "The Road We Are Traveling: 1914-1942," is the first of a series of six special reports he is preparing for the Twentieth Century Fund under the general title "When the War Ends."

VALUE OF FARM LAND MAKES BIG UPTURN IN YEAR

Washington, D. C., April 12 (AP).—American farm real estate made a spectacular $2,360,000,000 increase in value during the last twelve months under the influence of rising farm product prices, a record war demand for food, and a brisk land market. The total value was estimated at 36 billions. This gain, equivalent to 7 per cent, was reported in an agriculture department survey made public today as the administration studied measures to prevent inflation.

Some officials looked upon this advance as the forerunner of a possible inflationary land boom such as developed during the first World war with disastrous results later for thousands of farmers who went into debt to buy high priced land.

The corn belt increase was about 10 per cent. The national acreage was said to be about 25 per cent above the depression low.

GIFT OF WAR BONDS CAN BE MADE THRU TELEGRAPH SERVICE

New York, April 12 (AP).—Edwin F. Chinlund, president of Postal Telegraph-Cable company, announced today that beginning April 14 gift war savings bonds could be sent by telegraph. The new service was arranged with the coöperation of the treasury department.

Bonds of $25, $50, and $100 denominations will be delivered for a charge plus the cost of the bond. A gift message will be included.

ANACONDA NETS $5.01 A SHARE; SALES UP 45%

Gross Volume Rises to 354 Millions.

The Anaconda Copper Mining company reported yesterday for 1941, a consolidated net income of $43,433,659 after charges, taxes, and a reserve of $5,000,000 for contingencies, but before depletion of metal mines. This profit was equal to $5.01 each on the 8,674,338 shares of capital stock outstanding. In 1940 the company had a net income of $35,052,699, or $4.04 a share. The increase in earnings reflected new high records for nonferrous metal production and fabrication.

Gross sales last year amounted to $354,773,916, an increase of $111,111,016, or 45.6 per cent, over 1940.

R. H. Macy Sales Set Record.

The annual report of R. H. Macy & Co. and its subsidiary companies showed the highest sales in the history of the corporation. Business totaled $153,522,896 in the 52 weeks ended on Jan. 31, against $135,323,578 for the 52 weeks to Feb. 1, 1941, an increase of 13.45 per cent.

Consolidated net profit for the year amounted to $3,641,427, compared with $4,269,010 in the preceding year, or $2.20 a share on the 1,656,067 shares of common stock outstanding, against $2.57 a share on 1,659,554 shares a year earlier.

Gimbel Brothers Earns More.

Gimbel Brothers, Inc., in the year ended on Jan. 31 had net profit of $3,174,336, or $2.08 a common share, against $2,348,054, or $1.21 a share, in the preceding year.

Net sales for the year were $117,433,355, against $99,546,531 in the preceding year. Net profit amounted to less than 3 cents on each dollar of sales, Bernard F. Gimbel, president, reported.

Cities Service Power and Light company and subsidiaries had 1941 net income of $4,222,857, a decrease of $1,749,813 from 1940 as a result of higher taxes.

NORTH AMERICAN AVIATION CUTS TRAINER PRICES

Inglewood, Cal., April 12 (AP).—North American Aviation, Inc. today reported a voluntary reduction in training plane prices which will mean a saving of about 60 million dollars to the federal government.

J. H. Kindelberger, company president, said increased manufacturing efficiency had made the move possible. The price cut applies to ships contracted for but not yet in production. North American recently reported a 14 million dollar refund to the government which the war department immediately reallocated to the firm for production of more planes.

Kindelberger explained improved manufacturing methods make possible production of combat training planes at approximately 66 per cent of their cost in the summer of 1940.

CURBS ON STEEL AFFECT MILLS ONLY SLIGHTLY

Cutting off the supply of steel for all except war purposes will have little effect on steel makers, as they have been unable for some time to promise deliveries on orders in lower priority brackets and requirements for the general run of durable consumer goods have not been given consideration, the magazine Steel reported yesterday.

"Most producers of plates, sheets, shapes and bars can promise nothing definite below A-1 preference," the review said. "Some producers can do little better on pipe, wire and other products which until recently could be supplied at lower ratings without difficulty."

Short Storage Is Big Problem of Grain Trade

BY PHILIP WARDEN.

Crop reports last week indicated a smaller wheat production this year, but yesterday the grain dealers were wondering what could be done to avoid railroad embargoes on grain shipments to most all terminal markets when the harvest gets well under way late in June.

Department of agriculture grain men conferred with elevator interests in Chicago and the other large terminals last week, but the storage problem remained unsolved. The government men told the grain trade that more of the new wheat would have to be stored on the farms.

Problem Is Not Solved.

But the grain dealers knew this offered no solution to the problem. Many farmers wish to sell their grain as soon as it is cut. They know that combined grain requires special attention—the treatment given it by experienced elevator men. Others already have their farm bins loaded to capacity and will have no place to store new grain.

Already crop observers in Oklahoma and Kansas sections are predicting that vast amounts of newly threshed wheat will be dumped on the market and bring distress prices.

Crops Far Exceed Space.

The department of agriculture finished its survey of the nation's grain storage facilities last week. In Kansas, Texas, and Oklahoma, the report showed, there is space available for the storage of 74 million bushels. These states alone expect to produce a crop in excess of 270 million bushels.

The impending storage problem depressed bread grain prices on the Chicago Board of Trade thruout most of the week.

452 More Firms, Persons Added to Trade Blacklist

Washington, D. C., April 12 (AP).—The government today added 452 firms and individuals in Latin America and European neutral countries to its already lengthy trade blacklist.

TWO BILLION DOLLARS FOOLISHLY HOARDED, SAYS RESERVE BOARD

Washington, D. C., April 12 (AP).—The Federal Reserve board estimated today that about 2 billion dollars of American money is being hoarded. But, contrary to the ordinary bankers' disapproval of hoarding, the board concluded that, under present conditions, about the only danger is that people may take the money out of hiding and deposit it in the banks.

The reason for this unusual "danger," the board explained, is that the banks already have plenty of money, and the addition of the presently hoarded money might expand bank reserves [available for lending] at a time when a policy of credit restraint was in the public interest.

Discussing the growth of money in circulation to a record breaking total of $11,500,000,000, the board figured that 2 billions of this amount was hidden away. Americans were estimated to have hidden between 500 million and 1 billion of the total, foreigners accounting for the rest.

Unwarranted fear of banks and taxation were said to underlie American hoarding. In this connection the board said hoarders were foolish and could keep their money more safely and earn interest at the same time by buying war bonds.

NEW RAIL STUDY TO DETERMINE WAGE POLICY

Washington, D. C., April 12 (AP).—L. Metcalfe Walling, wage-hour administrator, announced today that a new study will be made of economic conditions within the railroad industry with a view to recommending new minimum wage scales, not exceeding 40 cents an hour.

Maintenance-of-way workers will benefit principally from any increase in the present minimum of 36 cents an hour for trunkline employés and 33 cents for shortline employés. There are about 60,000 trunkline and 4,000 shortline employés. A previous study resulted in increases March 1, 1941, from the former 30 cent statutory minimum.

Employers, employés, and the public will have equal representation on a committee named by Walling to make the study. The committee will convene in New York April 28, with George E. Osborne of Stanford university as chairman.

People and Events

Paul Grady, a partner of Arthur Andersen & Co., accountants, has been drafted by the navy department to serve as a special assistant in the bureau of supplies and accounts and to help in the organization and direction of the cost inspection division.

Prof. Charles E. Merriam of the National Resources Planning board, on leave of absence from the University of Chicago, will address the noon meeting of the Investment Analysts club of Chicago tomorrow at the Chicago Bar association.

The Chicago Financial Advertisers will hear Kenton R. Cravens, vice president, Cleveland Trust company, speak on consumer credit at a luncheon meeting in the Bismarck hotel on Wednesday.

The business development section of the Central Motor Freight association will meet tomorrow afternoon in the Hotel Stevens. General order No. 1 recently issued by the Office of Defense Transportation will be discussed.

AUTO INDUSTRY SALES, PROFITS SET PEAK IN 1941

Deliver One Billion in War Orders.

New York, April 12 [Special].—Delivering last year the first billion dollars of war orders totaling nearly 15 billions, the automobile industry and its suppliers had record sales and earnings before taxes in 1941, a survey disclosed today. For the tire companies even the profits of 1929 were surpassed after a record tax, it was shown.

Profits of 101 companies in these fields last year were almost 15 per cent above 1940, after taxes, and more than three times the level of 1938. In 1941 these profits after all taxes and charges were $416,664,000, against $362,737,000 in 1940, $323,639,000 in 1939, $132,201,000 in 1938, and $371,098,000 in 1937.

Civilian Sales High.

Despite the already important contribution to the armament effort achieved by the automotive group in 1941, it was an unusual year for sales of civilian goods as well. Factory sales of cars and trucks were second only to 1929, and retail sales in this country were estimated close to 1929. There was, however, a sharp contraction in export sales compared with the banner year.

Net sales of 16 automobile manufacturers, comprising substantially the entire industry except Ford, were $4,227,459,000 in 1941, a new record, against $3,061,769,000 in 1940, a gain of 38 per cent. Earnings of these companies before federal income and excess profits taxes were $639,073,000, against $402,179,000 in 1940, a gain of 59 per cent. Profits after taxes were $275,757,363, against $246,454,378, an increase of nearly 12 per cent.

Tax Burden Is Large.

The income and excess profits tax burden was two and one-third times the 1940 total at $363,316,000. In addition, special contingency reserves of $18,799,000 were set up, compared with $15,000,000. Dividends paid were $209,480,000, against $202,465,000. For the two principal companies, earnings before taxes were $558,459,000, against $381,952,000 in 1940, $300,743,000 in 1929, and $344,948,000 in 1928.

Thirteen tire and rubber companies had combined profits of $51,780,120 last year, compared with $39,227,662 in 1940, $40,054,350 in 1939, $23,494,502 in 1938, and $37,285,667 in 1937. Six of the leading tire makers reported net sales of $1,182,268,000 in 1941, against $816,273,000 in 1940.

MARSHALL FIELD OFFICIAL TO AID ARMY DIVISION

Wilbur C. Munnecke, vice president and general operating manager of Marshall Field & Co., will report for duty April 27 with the control division of the army service of supply, as a civilian consultant on certain organization problems. Marshall Field & Co. has given Munnecke leave of absence for the next few months to comply with the division's request for his services.

CORN PRODUCTS.

I would like your report on Penick & Ford. This stock has been recommended to me because of increased 1941 earnings and because the company appears to be in a position to benefit from cane sugar restrictions. —W. B. R.

Answer: Penick & Ford, Ltd., Inc., is a large manufacturer of corn products, including sugar, starch, sirup, oil, dextrines, and other derivatives. It also produces molasses, cane and maple blended sirups and dessert powders. Stock and poultry feeds are obtained as by-products from corn refining. Headquarters are in New York City.

Last year's profit was the highest since 1930. The following are operating results in the last five years:

	Net sales.	Net income.	Per shr.
1941	$19 087,477	$1,597,343	$4.33
1940	13,565,979	1,073,939	2.91
1939	13,118,444	1,456,456	3.95
1938	12,612,574	1,139,922	3.09
1937	15,504,159	271,809	0.74

Penick & Ford has paid regular dividends since 1929. Distributions on the no par common stock, the company's sole capitalization, amounted to $4 a share in 1941, $3 in 1940, $4 in 1939, $3 in 1938, and $1.50 in 1937. A 75 cent payment was made March 16 this year. There are 369,000 shares outstanding. The stock is listed on the New York Stock exchange.

BRAZIL INTEREST.

I have heard that an interest payment is being made on Pernambuco 7 per cent bonds. Is this correct? If so, where should the coupons be sent to receive payment?—F. V.

Answer: Interest due Sept. 1, 1939, on State of Pernambuco [Brazil] 7 per cent external bonds, due March 1, 1947, is being paid at the rate of $4.66 for each $35 coupon. Coupons should be presented for payment to White, Weld & Co., special agents, 40 Wall street, New York City.

ASSET COMPARISON.

How do American Telephone and Telegraph, United States Steel, and du Pont compare as to total assets?—C. D. L.

Answer: At the end of 1941, American Telephone and Telegraph had total assets of $5,893,765,919; United States Steel, $2,045,021,088, and du Pont, $1,069,399,343.

Salesmen.

INDUSTRIAL LUBRICATION SALESMAN

Old established, reliable company, backed with top products, is in need of the services of an experienced man who understands cutting oils, soluble oils, general oils and greases for proper lubrication of machinery in industry and who has successfully sold such lubrication.

Position will pay $2,400.00 per year salary and expenses to start—future based on productivity. Travel in the states of Illinois, Wisconsin, and Iowa. Write, stating age, experience, territory worked, and full particulars. Enclose snapshot.

Address H E 490, Tribune.

Attention—"Frozen Salesmen"

With our sensational campaign of conserving fuel which helps "win the war" we are smashing all previous sales and production records. Hence this ad for additional draft-deferred, competent salesmen with cars for our "full steam ahead" expansion program.

We offer guaranteed drawing account with substantial commissions and a real chance (with transportation problem effectively solved) and will give special consideration to salesmen from frozen industries with proven record of consistent production. Apply 9:30 to 11:30 a. m.

CONSUMER'S INSULATING & ROOFING CO., 3110 S. Michigan-av.
